P R E F A C E.

I AM happy to be able to issue the second volume of Wood's Life and Times so soon after the first. That I have found leisure to do so is chiefly due to the kindness of my friends, the Rev. Fraser H. Penny and the Rev. Sidney A. Alexander, whose goodness in taking upon themselves great part of my necessary duties I cannot sufficiently acknowledge. I have again to express my warmest thanks to Mr. F. Madan for many invaluable corrections and suggestions. My pupil, Mr. John Darlington, Commoner of Lincoln College, has continued throughout this volume his help in preparing for press the narratives of University solemnities taken from Wood MS. D 19 (3).

This second volume departs even more widely than its predecessor from the tradition of former editions. My readers will perhaps favour me by comparing this with any previous editions under the years 1674, 1675, 1676, 1680. In most other years also much new matter, often of great interest, will be found; e.g. in 1665 the account of the Royal Visit, in 1666 the note of the effect in Oxford of the great fire of London, in 1681 the narrative of the famous one-week Oxford Parliament.

The Index to this volume, like that to vol. I, is merely a makeshift, but will probably be found of present service. My transcript of the Diaries down to Wood's death in 1695 is finished and has been sent to press. The new matter is so considerable that the years 1682-1695 will quite fill a third volume. I therefore propose to complete the work by adding a fourth volume, containing complete indexes to the Diaries and a full catalogue, which I have prepared and have by me, of the MS. authorities used by Wood in his works on the history of Oxford City and University.

Numerous correspondents have favoured me with notes and suggestions about the first volume. This evidence of their appreciation of my work in making Wood's MS. autobiographical notes accessible has been peculiarly gratifying.

ANDREW CLARK.

ADDENDA TO VOL. I.

- VOL. I, p. 8, lines 20, 21.—I think I have now come across a fragment of the missing Wood MS. F 31. MS. Rawl. D olim 1290 fol. 693 is a copy of a letter, dated 1 Apr. 1600, from Thomas James to Mr. Allen. This is, I fancy, no. 8 from the missing Wood MS. F 31. In Wood MS. E 4 Wood describes this letter as 'Letter of Thomas James to Mr. Allen, concerning the exemplar of Asser Menevensis de vita regis Alfredi in bibliotheca Lumley (nunc in bibl. Cotton.) which was published by Matthew Parker archbishop of Canterbury at London, 1 Apr. 1600: see Twyne's Collections (in the University Archives) II. 75, 225.' Wood cites this letter in his Hist. et Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. I, p. 16.
- Vol. I, p. 18, line 18.—It amounts to criminal negligence on my part that I omitted to note here that the text of many of the Wood ballads is printed and references given to the Wood Collection in the Rev. J. Woodfall Ebsworth's Bagford Ballads and Roxburghe Ballads published for the Ballad Society.
- Vol. I, p. 47, note 3.—The MS., of great importance for Oxford history, which I had to cite as MS. Rawl. D olim 1290, has had a notable history in the way of pressmarks. It was marked MS. Rawl. D 1283 and afterwards 1290. In Nov. 1891, it figured as MS. Rawl. D 1487; in Feb. 1892, it had moved back to MS. Rawl. D 912.
- Vol. I, p. 48, note 4.—The lines had not escaped Mr. Ebsworth's search. They have been printed by him, in Bagford Ballads, i. 517.
- Vol. I, p. 112, note 3.—I am happy to be able to add that the original from which Hearne printed these notes as an appendix to his Liber Niger Scaccarii (supposed to be lost; see Clark's Wood's City of Oxford i. 675) has now been discovered. In Nov. 1891 in arranging for cataloguing the latter part of the Rawlinson miscellaneous MS. (MSS. Rawl. D) a small oblong MS. was found, pushed back behind the others, whose existence had not previously been suspected. This MS. has now been marked MS. Rawl. D 1268. It is headed 'Anthony Wood, Coll. Merton Oxon. June 6, 1657'; and is the MS. from which Hearne printed these notes. It belonged to Hearne himself, and contains this note by him, 'Dec. 10th, 1726, Saturday. This MS. all written by the late Mr. Anthony à Wood was then given me by Mr. Lancelot Hill, butler of Queen's College in Oxford—Thomas Hearne. Notes relating to the history of Oxford and the places thereabouts by Mr. Ant. à Wood.' Two collotype specimens from it are given in the present volume; viz. fol. 17 b and 18 a on Plate IV, and fol. 31 b and 32 a on Plate V. It contains besides the notes printed by Hearne a number of miscellaneous jottings by Wood; e. g. (i) references to books, 'vide John Rouse Antiquitys, Clem. Reynere de Apostolatu Benedict(in)orum'; (ii) notes of books lent by him, 'June 8, lent to Mr. (William) Stane The clergy in their colors. The 10 June, lent to Mr. . . . Smith The gift of preaching'; (iii) references to his family history, 'Alys, married to . . . Beare; Mary, married to . . . Barncote; Emma, married . . . Makyne' (see vol. i. p. 24); (iv) notes of expenditure, 'For pamphlets (to)

Mr. Forrest, 3s 6d; paper, ink, 4d; (v) notes on heraldry, lists of bishops, etc.

- Vol. I, p. 119.—Mr. Benj. W. Greenfield of Southampton sends me this note about the West family. 'John West the elder, who purchased the manor of Hampton Poyle in 1648, died 8 Jan. 169<sup>5</sup>/<sub>8</sub>, aged 79, and was buried in St. Aldate's, Oxford. His wife was Mary, youngest daughter of Jarvis Kirke of Greenhill in Norton co. Derby: see my article in Nichol's Herald and Genealogist, vols. I and III (1863 and 1866) on "Descent of the manor and advowson of Hampton Poyle."'
- Vol. I, p. 207.—Delete note 6. Mr. B. W. Greenfield says 'I think it will be found that this lady was wife of Sir George Wilmot kt. of Charlton in the parish of Wantage, Berks. She was daughter of Richard Aldworth of London. Her husband, Sir George, was alive in 1664, was then aged 63 [Visitation of Berks, 1664-6].'
- Vol. I, p. 259.—The Rev. Octavius Ogle suggests that the name Wood was trying for is Crange, and refers to Hutchins' History of Dorset (edit. iii), vol. ii. p. 214.
- Vol. I, p. 298.—Several correspondents have written about the word 'machtet.' I ought perhaps to have made it plain that there is in the MS. no mark of contraction; and if therefore it is to be identified with 'manchet,' it must be assumed that Wood has neglected to mark the stroke over the 'a,' or has dropped the letter 'n' in writing. Either assumption is possible, but it is an assumption.—The Rev. J. T. Fowler suggests that if 'manchet' be the word, the treat may have been a commons of bread broken into the cup of beer and stirred up.
- Vol. I, p. 314.—As to the destruction of the Royal arms in Oxford during the Civil war, I may refer to a jest in William Hickes' Grammatical Drollery, Lond. 1686, p. 81. 'Upon the taking down of the king's arms at Oxford in the time of the Rump, viz. 1649; who instead of plucking down them on the gate of the Physick Garden in Oxford, they were such excellent Heralds that they pluckt down the Earl of Danby's arms who was the founder there.'
- Vol. I, p. 413, note 5.—Numerous books from Magdalen Hall library have been recently sold by Hertford College. I give the titles and inscriptions of some which I saw in the shop of Mr. B. H. Blackwell, 29 Dec. 1891. (1) Richard Baxter's The Saints' Everlasting Rest, 6th edition, 1656, 'Liber Aulae Magd. Oxon. 1657 ex dono Samuelis Duns armigeri.' (2) John Spencer's Things new and old, Lond. 1658, 'Liber Aulae Magdalenae Oxon. 1658, ex dono Josephi Herveii Art. Mag. et Coll. Mert. socii.' (3) Thomas Goodwin's Certaine select cases resolved, Lond. 1647, 'Liber Aulae Magd. Oxon. 1656, ex dono Johannis Ryland.' (4) Daniel Dyke's The mystery of selfe-deceiving, Lond. 1642, 'Liber Aulae Magdalenae Oxon, pret. 3s, ex dono Henr. Wilkinson S. T. D. et Aulae Magdalenae princip. 1653.' (5) Joh. Gerhardi Commentarius super posteriorem D. Petri epistolam, Jenae, 1641, 'Liber Aulae Magd. Oxon. 1671 ex dono Nath. Hardy SS. Th. Prof. Decani Roffensis et olim ex Aula Magd.'
- Vol. I, p. 425, line 9.—The name Eyton is a misreading of Hearne's for Exton, and the person referred to is Edward Exton M.A. Magd. C. 9 Nov. 1660. Ibid., l. 28.—The name Sly is a misreading of Hearne's for Iles. Mrs. Iles (i. 154), being widow of a President of C. C. C., is a better authority about Richard Hooker than the old apple-wife, the only Mrs. Sly to be traced in Oxford.

†About the beginning of Jan. Thomas Wood D.D. became deane of Lichfield loco William Paul, by the endeavours of his brother.

7 Jan., Th., "Wit<sup>5</sup> in a Constable" acted at University College; 8 Jan., F., "The Tricks<sup>6</sup> or Floraes Vagaries" acted at Ch. Ch. by undergraduats, ⟨written⟩ by Richard Rhodes, of that house, student. Entred.

† Jan. 8, F., play at Ch. Ch.; the deane (Dr. ⟨John⟩ Fell) encouraged it; caused the dores of the College to be all shut, let no body in but whome he thought fit, especially at the hall or refectory dore. Several heads of houses there and their wives. ⟨The⟩ deane being firm, windows were broken in the hall and ⟨in⟩ Canterbury Coll. The deane was laugh'd at for his paines and forwardness, being set on by the students.

Note that by the acting of that play at X<sup>t</sup> Ch., 8 day, the undergraduates, actors therof, arrived to strang degree and streyn of impudence, especially from the encoragement of the deane and cannons. The deane gave them a supper; Dr. ⟨Richard⟩ Allestree gave each of them a booke of 7s price. They give themselves upon this to drunkenness and wantonness, especially among themselves, etc. Dr. ⟨Jasper⟩ Mayne spoke before them a speech, commending them for their ingenuity and told them 'he liked well an acting student.'

Memorandum that the 9 day, S., I had Mr. ⟨Richard⟩ Lower, ⟨John⟩ Curteyne, ⟨Nathaniel⟩ Greenwood, ⟨Matthew⟩ Hutton, ⟨Ranulph⟩ Peyton, and ⟨John⟩ Hammond to supper—for whome I had 2 bullocks' cheeks baked which cost me . . .; for a tart to Blackman, 1s; for drinke to Mrs. Burnham, 4d; given to Mary for ordering the cheeks and baking, 6d.

24 Jan., Su., at 9 of the clock at night died one . . . Lyford a commoner of S. Edmund hall, nephew as I thinke to Dr. ⟨Henry⟩ Ailworth's wife the cancellor of the bishop of Oxon, and of the <T., 26 Jan. 166 $\frac{3}{4}$ , the Vice-chancellor, Walter Blandford, issued a paper forbidding tradesmen to allow undergraduates credit beyond five shillings. Wood has preserved a copy in Wood 276 A, no. 348.>

<Jan. 26, T.> Mr. R : B<sup>2</sup>: a chapleyn of X<sup>t</sup> Ch., one much given to the flesh and a great lover of Eliz. the wife of Funker and daughter of Woods of Bullock's lane, having mind one night in the month of Jan. about the 26, 166 $\frac{3}{4}$ , to vent or coole his passion, sent his servitor (a little boy) to Carfax where shee sold apples to come to his chamber and 12*d* in apples. The boy forgetting her name went to another huckster and told her that she (who it seems told him that she knew Mr. Berry) must come downe to his chamber and bring apples. Well, she comes at a little past 6 at night up to his chamber; who against her comming (supposing her to be Eliz. . . .) shut the shuttings of his windows and put out his candle. And when shee was come in, he said 'Oh Betty art come? I am glad with all my hart; I have not seene thee a great while': and kissed her and groped her and felt her brests. 'Come, what wilt have to supper? what joynt of meat wilt have?' and the like. 'Come, I have not layd with thee a great while,' and soe put his hands under her coates. But shee bid him 'forbear' and told him 'he was mistaken: if he would pay her for her apples, well and good; she would not play such vile actions with him.' 'Who' quoth he 'are you not Eliz. . . .' 'Noe, marry, am I not.' With that he thrust her downe staires and kikt her. After this she goeth up to Carfax; and their goes in full rage and open mouth to Elizab. . . . with whome she sorely fell out the day before; and twitted her in the teeth of it, and called 'whore' before all the street and brought up Mr. Berry's name in publick divers times. And after this scolding had lasted till 8 or 9 of the clock, it was then

Mr. <Edward> Farmer<sup>1</sup> and Mr. <Walter> Cave<sup>2</sup> also, chapleyns of the same college, lay<sup>3</sup> with the choiristers, viz. little . . . Robinson and . . . Read the red-hed boy: and what they doe with them you may suppose, for their voices breake.

In the month of Jan. 1663 <i. e.  $\frac{3}{4}$ > my freind Mr. R. L.<sup>4</sup> told me, as he was a cutting up a calf's head on a Sunday morning, about 8 of the clock in his study, his dore stood so much open as that he might thrust his fist throug: and hearing a russelling in his chamber, looked through that open space of his doore and saw<sup>5</sup> the appearance of a beautifull yong man with long flaxen haire to his middle and a silke studying gowne on: and going to his study doore and oping it aske<d> 'Who is there, Sir John?' (meaning Sir John Hales who was his opposite neighbour): and going out into his chamber and seeing noe body, looked in his other study and none there neither. Then he went to his chamber doore, and that was shut and lached<sup>6</sup> and could not be opened and shut without noise. And opeing the doore Sir J<ohn> H<ales> came out of his owne, who <i. e. R. L.> asked him whether he was in his chamber who <i. e. J. H.> answ<er>ed faithfully that he was not. Wherupon he took this to be an appearance.

This puts mee in mind of Mr. J. C.<sup>7</sup>, who when he lay awake in his chamber at L<incoln> C<ollege> and his violl standing in a corner, something played over his strings, etc.

Some ten years ago the custom continued in full force, but of late it has almost died out.

<sup>1</sup> Dr. Brodrick (Memorials of Merton, p. 108, note 2), following an early interpretation of this passage, says that for the imposition of this fine Wood 'chiefly blames Dr. Dickenson the bursar, Roger Brent, and Edmund Turner.' It is therefore necessary to point out that in neither draft of this note is there even a hint that Wood blamed Dickenson in the matter. The mention of his name is purely incidental, as the person who received the money; which of course the bursar was bound to do by College order, even though he himself may have voted for a lesser fine. Brent and Turner are the only persons to whom Wood attributes the heaviness of the fine. It is not necessary to seek any recondite reason for Wood's dislike of Dickenson; he believed that, by wrong treatment, Dr. Dickenson had tortured his mother to death; see under

<sup>5</sup> in John Smith's MS. life of Crew, p. 5, it is said 'in the close of his proctorship he delivered up the black book with this remark ne vel una macula nigrior.' The 'Liber niger procuratorum' is the register in which the proctors record the graver offences detected in their year of office and the punishments inflicted. The absence of entries in Crewe's year, Wood intimates elsewhere, was not due to undergraduate good morals but to proctorial neglect of discipline.

'de magnete,' yet he had magnets in his house, viz., a handsome daughter who was married to Mr. Sproston<sup>1</sup>. [This<sup>2</sup> fellow that ran with the times was afterwards preferred—because his father<sup>3</sup> had been a notorious rebell. Rebels and traytors preferred.]

Apr. 21, Th., my cozen Ralph Holt was married to Mrs. Susanna Dodsworth at Buckingham.

Mr. <William> Aliff, vicar of Amersden com. Bucks, sometimes schoolmaster of Thame, having married a wife of a good joynter of about 250*li* per annum, and therby living high and getting children on her, shee dyes and leaves him full of care. Therupon he grew discontent and freekish: and 28 Apr., Th., leaped out of his window at Amersden starke naked and killed himselfe. He was a means of turning out Edward Bagshaw<sup>4</sup>.—This was somewhat like one of lord of Lyndsey's<sup>5</sup> cheif men, who living high in eating and drinking etc. and could goe noe further, was possesst with the divell<sup>6</sup> and leaped out of a window 3 storys high at his master's house in London a Good Friday was twelvemonth.

*Apr. 28, Th., William Ayliff, LL. Bac., somtimes fellow of New Coll. and a founder's kinsman there, now vicar of Amersden neare to Bister in Oxfordshire, and lately schoolmaster of Thame school (but began to teach there after A. W. had left that school), leaped naked out of his window belonging to the vicaridge of Amersden, and broke several parts of his body, and died soon after. He had married a yong rich widdow, lived high, and had severall children by her; but shee dying in the prime of her yeares, and leving him and the children little or nothing of her estate, and her joynture going away with her life, he grew exceedingly discontented thereupon, and made away with himself.

*Apr. 29. From Friday Ap. 29 to Friday May 27 A. W. assisted Dr. John Wallis in digesting and ordering the evidences, writings and books belonging to the University, which are reposed in the muniment room in the School-Tower.

notes:—'when he saw to what ruin he and the presbyterians had brought the nation to, then he, forsooth, did endeavour, etc.' Of 'his son, Nathaniel, bishop of Durham' Wood says 'one who hath sided with the times; a formal starcht nothing; another Mr. Smirk' (referring to Andrew Marvell's satire).

In 2 hebdom. Aug. the Vicecancellor and Proctors agreed the matter thus. The Terrae filii (Mr. ⟨William⟩ Cave of Magd. and Mr. ⟨Richard⟩ Wood of S. John) were stopped their regency by the Vice-cancellor. The proctors concerned in it stop all congregations that were to be had in the space of 10 dayes after. Wherupon fals information being given to the Cancellor viz. that the Proctors abetted the Terrae filii their abusing language and the like, he sends his letter to the ⟨Vice⟩Cancellor that they either submitt within three dayes after the receipt of his letter to the ⟨Vice⟩cancellor or else come to the court to answer, for what they had done, to the King. But the proctors giving right information to the cancellor the buisness was taken up among themselves.

 its ruins taken
 by A. & W. an.
 1664
 the west side.

" Two corner towers one looking S.W. & of other N.E.

" Two demi-round towers jutting out from the wall supported by pillars, probably built in 14th cent., & partly standing without.

" The chief gate-house, where is a ruined staircase, & an old gothic window over it.

" A little wall built in 14th wall of a late standing.

At the west end of Bampton church, scarce a fathom distant, was the ruins of a castle, which been marked round (reported there to have been built by King John) & built quadrangular. It had a round tower at each corner, & was ascended to by stone-steps: And for further conveyance up to & said wall there were besides these 4 towers a long & high Gothic tower like (on the west & east side) some say 5 every side, of which the best represented way the west tower; & that the history of Chymney near Bampton hath a particular roll containing an inscription concerning the manor (if I may be allowed to Bampton, which is mention made of the building of this castle, & was by whom; a copie of it Dr Langbaine proveth of Qu. Coll. Oxon. Som-

Carved on the screen in Mr. <Thomas> Cook's hall:—

'1577, Henricus Dotyn, vicarius'

(he was A. Mr., sometimes fellow of Exeter Coll. and nephew perhaps to the former).

As you go also up into the chamber is engraven on stone:—

'Henricus Dotyn, vicarius, 1577.'

I remember I was there 2 or 3 dayes in September anno 1664 and then these and other inscriptions were standing, but since I presume puld downe and the <house> altered.]

[At<sup>1</sup> the west end of Bampton Church, scarce a stone's cast distant, are the ruines of a castle<sup>2</sup> that hath been moated round (reported there to have been built by King John) and built quadrangular. It had a round tower at each corner which was ascended by stone steps: and for speedier conveyances up to the said wall, there were, besides those 4 towers, a larg and high gatehouse tower-like on the west and east sides (some say on every side)—of which this<sup>3</sup> here represented was the west tower. Robert Veysey of Chymney neare Bampton hath a parchment roll containing an inquisition concerning the mannour (if I mistake not) of Bampton, wherin is mention made of the building of this castle when and by whome; a copie of which Dr <Gerard> Langbaine provost of Qu. Coll. Oxon. sometimes had, after whose death I saw it in the hands of Dr. Thomas Lamplugh now bishop of Exeter. I suppose the originall is in the tower of London—quaere.]

*Sept. 14, W., upon<sup>1</sup> the taking up of a thick marble stone lying in the middle of the choire of Beverley in Yorkshire, neare the entrance into the choire, was found under it a vault of squared free-stone, five foot in length, two foot in breadth at the head, and one foot and a half at the foot. In this vault was discovered a sheet of lead, four foot in length, containing the dust of St<sup>t</sup> John of Beverley, as also six beades, three of which were cornelian, the other crumbled to dust. There were also in it 3 great brass pins and 4 iron nayles. Upon this sheet of lead was fixed a plate of lead, whereon was this following inscription, a copie of which was sent to A. W.

Anno<sup>2</sup> ab incarnatione Domini MCLXXXVIII combusta fuit hec ecclesia in mense Sept. in sequenti nocte post Festum Sancti Matthaei Apostoli; et in anno MCXCVII. VI Id. Martii facta fuit Inquisitio Reliquiarum Beati Johannis in hoc loco, et inventa sunt hec ossa in orientali parte Sepulchri; et hic recondita, et pulvis cemento mixtus ibidem inventus & reconditus.

A box of lead about 7 inches in length, six inches broad and five in height, did lay athwart the plate of lead. In this box were divers pieces of bones mixt with dust, yeilding a sweet smell.<sup>3</sup> fellow of Lync. Coll., died; and was buried in All hallows church in the chancell.

†Ultimo Dec., S., John Hall elected (Master of Pembr.); bred in the interval; a presbyterian; clownish, covetuous, and quarrelsome among the fellowes; some good preachers bred under him.

*Dec. 31, S., A. W. and his mother, and his eldest brother and his wife went to the lodgings of Dr. Ralph Bathurst, president of Trinity college, to welcome him to Oxon, who had then very lately brought to Oxon his new married wife, Mary, the widdow of Dr. John Palmer late warden of Alls. Coll.; which Mary was of kin to the mother of A. W. They had before sent in sack, claret, cake and sugar to welcome the said married couple. Dr. Bathurst was then about 46 yeares of age, so there was need of a wife.

This year sudden deaths frequent in Oxon., viz. Mr. (John) Newton of Brasnos; . . . Clerk the butcher; and . . . Adames the smith in the month of Sept., and others before.

Dr. John Dolben, a fat round man, the chubb.

head was too little to have anything in it,” Allestry replied—“your predicesor Dr. Sanderson had a little head, yet he was no foole”.’

<sup>1</sup> the identity of this Philip French is explained in the course of the following note, from Wood MS. E 32, p. 10:—'Mr. Philippe Frenche of New Coll. Oxon comming into the kitchin there chose out of the skillet all the swymming eggs for his owne dinner, which eggs wee commonly account naught; but being demaunded why he did so, replied:—"I know these to be duck-eggs by their swimming and I love them best." The said Mr. Philip Frenche, when he had got an upper chamber in New Coll. (for which they attend long somtimes) became so fond and proud of it that when he fell out with his taylor shoemaker barber etc., swore that "he would kick them downe stairs, wheresoever he met them." This Mr. French was eldest son of Mr. Thomas French sometimes fellow of Merton Coll. afterwards Registryary of the University; and after he had left New Coll. became rector of Shipton-on-Charwell in Oxfordshire, and I think lived to the year 1674.' Another of the Wood jests is attributed to him in the earlier version of the Modius Salium now in Wood MS. F 31, fol. 103 sqq.:—"A scolar lockt out at gates, desired his freind within to get him the keys: his freind (Mr. French of New Coll.) answers—"Sir, you were better come inn and speake yourselfe, for I thinke I shall scarce procure them."' the Mr., he takes lodgings as neare it as possibly may be, to the end that he might be better acquainted. Now it must be knowne that the parents of this lady kept a chapl<sup>a</sup>in in their house, with whome the gent. thought noe better means then to be acquainted with to bring his designe to pass. Which accordingly he did and opning his minde to him, he acquainted the parents. Who after enquiry of him and his estate encoraged him to come; which he did, and became a very great suter to the lady, and <they> were deeply in love together. To be short, this gent. received a letter late at night from his country, that a relation of his was dead, and <he> must come away. Wherefore receiving the letter late and going the next morning betimes, could not well take his leave of his lady; but he wrote a letter and inclosed therein certaine jewells to the value of 2000<£> and gave it to the chaplain to have it delivered; but he, instead of doing soe, kepes it and runs away with them. The lady, knowing nothing what was done but thinking he had slighted her, falls sick and keeps her bed. He hearing therof, comes post-hast out of the country to see her: but when she saw him<sup>1</sup>, she turn'd away from <him> and told him he was a false man and the like, and within few days died. Which greiving him also, he falls mad upon <it> and is now either dead or else under the phisitian's hands. March.—In Yorkshire a gent. being a suter to a gentlewoman and receiving slight answers from her, goes to another and makes sute to her. The former hearing therof, goes to her, tells her that 'she had abused her and deprived her of her love, and would have satisfaction' etc. The other told—'what satisfaction? would her hood or her scarfe make it?' or the like. 'Noe,' saith she, 'if you are a gentlewoman you would answer me by the sword.' Which she promising to doe, they meet the next day and fought. April 6, Th., the new proctors, viz. Mr. (Phineas) Bury of Wadham and Mr. David Thomas of New Coll., were admitted<sup>1</sup>. Mr. (John) Herne of Exeter, the senior proctor for the last year, made a speech for his farewell wherin he flattered the undergraduates<sup>2</sup>, stiling them 'florentissimi juvenes,' 'men that are examples rather than to be made examples.' Soe Shepen<sup>3</sup> also flattered them which made them the ruder and debauched. Soe impudent they were at this time that (they) kicked a barrell or a kidderkin that lay in the street up Kat Street and to Wadham College gate even with the proctors<sup>4</sup>; while (Robert) Say<sup>5</sup>, (the) vicechancellor, walked on to Wadham, and turned not back to reprove them.

June 9, F., great rejoicing for the overthrow of the Dutch<sup>2</sup>. At Oxon bonfires, bells ringing, drinking; the next day also bells ringing.

The same day, June 9, F., Dr. (James) Hyde made his entrance speech as Regius Professor (of Medicine).

*June 11, Su., he began to peruse the evidences<sup>3</sup> of Linc. Coll. The rector and fellows put the keys of the tower<sup>4</sup> in his<sup>5</sup> hands, and perused them in the chamber of Mr. Henry Foulis, joyning to the said tower. . . . Clerke<sup>6</sup>, a fellow, conceited and impertinent, pretended to direct him and instruct him. So whispering Foulis in the yeare<sup>7</sup>, wee got him to be remov'd. A. W. continued there at least 4 dayes; and the rector and fellows had so good opinion of him, that they intrusted him with a long bag of money<sup>8</sup> in the said treasure or tower which A. W. saw there laying.

<sup>1</sup> in some few Colleges, such as New College among the older and Corpus Christi among the later foundations, a good record was kept of the admission of members elected on the foundation. In other Colleges, and especially among the older foundations, no record of this kind was kept. In such Colleges the only means of drawing up a list of fellows is from the account-books, in which the names of the fellows are usually entered with the allowances made to them. Thus at Lincoln College (founded in 1427), the record of admission of fellows begins 20 Feb. 1518<sup>3</sup>; but the names of fellows since 1436 can be recovered by means of the account-books (with gaps where these are missing).

⟨The Court in Oxford during the Great Plague.⟩

Sept. 8, being Friday, the chancellor of Cambridge aforesaid in the morning came with other noble persons accompanied with the vicechancellor and all the Drs. to the Convocation house <sup>4</sup>. Where being settled, the University oratour, Dr. ⟨Robert⟩ South spoke a speech to the said chancellor (vide Fasti). After which was done the said orator presented the said chancellor to the degree of Mr. of Art as he before was created at Cambridge; and retired <sup>5</sup> to his place againe, viz. the next seat on the right hand of the vicechancellor. After that was done, then his son Robert <sup>6</sup> Montague, lord Mandevill, was made Mr. of Art, who retired to his place againe, viz. the left hand of the vice-chancellor. After whome followed divers both noble and worshipfull: and at last Mr. Robert Boyle the great philosopher was made Dr. of phisicke, at whose presentation Dr. ⟨James⟩ Hide, regius professor, made a speech in praise of him, etc., and then presented him <sup>7</sup>. After which was done, the vice-chancellor <sup>8</sup> admitted all them that before were presented and then dissolved the convocation. The chancellor of Oxon was all this time in the principal's <sup>9</sup> lodgings of Brasenose [growling <sup>10</sup> and angry]—After which was done they went to see the library and there Dr. ⟨Thomas⟩ Lockey, the custos of it, spoke a speech before him, and when he was gone into the gallery the earl of Clarendon, cancellor of Oxon, came to him and

<sup>4</sup> Wood in MS. Bodl. 594 p. 48 supplies some additional details:—'He and the rest were conducted up into the Convocation by the bedells, and being set on the right hand of the chancellor, the orator speecht it. Which being ended the Orator taking the earl with his right hand presented him to the vice-chancellor and proctors and forthwith incorporated in a Master's gowne

and hood. Which done, he went to his place.'

<sup>5</sup> i.e. the said chancellor retired.

discoursed with him concerning the University.—After both the chancellours of the Universities had dined (which was at the deane's lodgings of Xt. Ch.) they went to Merton College, where being meet in the gate by the warden<sup>1</sup> and fellows, Mr. Nathaniel Sterry one of the fellows spoke a speech before them; then they went to the warden's lodgings and veiwed them that they might be preserved for the queen at her comming. After which was done they went to Magd. Coll. and there the fellows and president<sup>2</sup> meeting them at the gate Mr. (Alexander) Pudsey<sup>3</sup>, one of the fellows made a speech; and (they) then went to New Coll.; where the fellows meeting them, Mr. . . . spoke a speech.—Note that this curtesy was done to the cancellor of Cambridge by the Oxonians because the Cantabrigians had done the like before to the earl of Clarendon chancellour of Oxon who sometime before this had bin there.

Sept. 19, T., a convocation was held in the afternoone to appoint preachers<sup>4</sup> before the king and parliament, and supervisors or masters of the streets. In the proposall for the preachers there was some aequivocation which caused great wrangling between the Masters and Doctors: for when they had concluded about delegates to appoint the said preachers,—which were 9 Doctors and 3 Masters,—they proposed whether they should select preachers 'cum nuda relatione ad domum' without any further addition<sup>5</sup>, wheras it should be 'cum nuda relatione ad domum cum approbatione simul.' Mr. (Thomas) Frankland<sup>6</sup> and Mr. (Nathaniel) Grenwood of Brasenose and Mr. (John) Parys of C.C.C. were the cheif Masters that opposed it.

Sept. 25, M., the King and duke of Munmouth came from Salisbury to Oxon, and the duke of York from York about 4 in the afternone. The king and duke of York lodged themselves in Xt. Ch., where, at his entrance into the deane's lodgings, the deane himself spoke a speech; and the duke of Monmouth and his dutchess at C. Xti Coll. The next morning, T., between 9 and 10, the vicecancellor and Doctors and proctors in their formalities went to the king; and the University orator, Dr. (Robert) South, spoke a speech before them. After which was done and they had kissed his hand, then they went to the duke of York's lodgings, and there they speeched him also.

The same day the king came in, viz., M., Sept. the 25, the Spanish embassadour, count de Molena, came to New Coll., which was appointed for his lodging; and being meet by the warden <Michael Woodward> and fellows at the gate, Mr. <Stephen> Penton spoke a Latine speech to him; which done the Spanish embassadour answered him in Spanish, which was interpreted in English to them. Then they gave him a banquet: and after that was done, they saw his chapple appointed for him: then the Colledge chapple, which he liked very well. The same day also and two days before, the French imbassadors came to Oxon and lodged themselves at Magd. Coll., viz. the duke of Vernuill<sup>1</sup> (the king's great uncle of France), monsiur Cominges, and monsieur Courtin.

26 Sept., T., at a little before 5 at night, the queen came from Salisbury at the south port and went up the street with great acclamations following her, accompanied with 5 coaches or therabouts; then downe to St. Marie's; soe by Oriall Coll. to Merton, where the king going to the gate out of the Coll., took her out of the coach and led her in: and when they were in the warden's hall Mr. Robert Whitehall, fellow of the house, accompanied with the warden and some fellows, delivered 16 verses<sup>2</sup> on his knee in English. After which was done, she retired.

A speech<sup>3</sup> to the king, queene, and duke of York att her majestie's entrance into her Court Royall at Merton Coll. Oxon Sept. 26, 1665.

Dread soveraigne, gracious queene, great prince, we pay
 These rites as due to th' honour of this day
 Untill whose dawneing, since your<sup>4</sup> grace went hence
 And leaveing us lost health, all influence
 Has been estraing'd to this your England's eye
 That wept itselife for your distemper dry.

Your rayes and luster madam cleare its sight
 That what before was languid now is bright
 Soe th' sun eclips'd himselife more glorious makes
 And some advantage from his conflict takes.
 Our pious founder, knew he this daye's state,
 Would quitt his mansion to congratulate.

Vouchsafe one glance then on your Muses here
 That when you shall withdraw and disappare
 It may create a phantsie, to remaine
 Till soe propitious starrs are seene againe.

The next day Sept. 27, W., at 11 of the clock, the vicecancellor with the Doctors and proctors in their scarlet went to welcome her; and being at length admitted into the privy chamber, the orator, Dr. <Robert> South, delivered an English speech to her (the cancellor being then present); after which was done, and they had kissed her hand, she retired and they departed. There was some rudeness shewed to the Masters by a servant.—In the afternoone the mayor and aldermen came to Merton Coll. and there the recorder made 2 speeches, and gave the king 100 li.; see more in 'News' that came out at this time or a little after.

October the 5, being Thursday, the dutchess of York came from Warwick accompanied with about 30 coaches, the most part of which went to meet her from Oxon; and lodged herselfe with her husband at Xt. Ch. in Dr. <Richard> Allestree's lodgings.

October 9, being Munday, the parliament began to set at Oxon in the Scooles, viz., the House of Lords in the Geometry Scoole, from whence a free passage was through the Mathematick Library to the Astronomy Scoole which was imployed as a painted chamber; the Rhetorick Scoole was divided in 3 parts, one for a retiring place for the bishops, another for the lords, and another for committes; and the Greek Scoole, the Star Chamber and a retiring place for the king and duke of York. In the Convocation House sate the House of Commons, and the Divinity Scoole was imployed for committies, viz. partitions set up there next to the doore in the Convocation House, and the walk where scollers stand for their graces<sup>1</sup> (viz., south end) was imployed for a coffee hous for the parliament men, as also for ale.

The same day also (M., Oct. 9) the University term began and a Lattine sermon was preached by Dr. <Thomas> Lockey: after which a Congregation was held in St. Marie's chancell etc.—All Congregations (and Convocations, if any) were celebrated there during the parliament sittings.

October 10, T., the House of Lords and Commons went to meet the king in Xt. Ch. hall, about 9 of the clock in the morning and about 10 the king came out of the roome at the end therof, and being sate at the upper end in the middle with the queen and ladyes on his right hand, for whome (viz. the queen and duchess of York) a canopy was erected on the south side therof, he delivered an English speech. After which was done, the Lord Chancellor, who stood on his right hand, delivered another of half an houre at the least to them.

Which being ended, they all departed. To which speeches the scollars, by leave given them, had free admittance.—The same day, in the afternoone, at 4 of the clock, the vicecancellor and Doctors in their formalities went to the dutchess of York her lodgings; and there having had admittance, the University orator spook an English speech to her. After which was done, they all kissed her hand kneeling, and soe departed. Which was done against a great many wills.

T., October the last, being the eve of All Saints, the parliament broke up at Oxon, after they had passed divers acts, especially that which concerned the banishment of Non-conforming ministers 5 miles from their homes. It was mentioned<sup>1</sup> at their sitting to take off the payment of chimney money from the Colleges because they had bin so civill to receive them and to afford their Scooles for session<sup>2</sup> places: but our burgesses, Sir Hennage Finch and Laurence Hide (one of the sons of the cancellor) did not <at> all forward it or promote the University their exemption formerly from taxes, etc.: and soe it came to nought.

Nov. 7, T., there was a Convocation in the afternoone, where, after <the> vice-cancellor had told the reason why it was called, Laurence Hide and Sir Hennage Finch, the University burgesses in parliament, with others<sup>3</sup>, came up the Convocation with the bedells before them and some Doctors. Who after they were settled<sup>4</sup> and the vicecancellor had spoke to the said Laurence Hide, he plucked out a paper containing the thanks<sup>5</sup> of the parliament to the University for their 'reasons,' given 1647, 'of their present judgment<sup>6</sup> concerning the Solemne League and Covenant, the Negative Oath, and the Ordinances of Discipline and Worship'; and read<sup>7</sup> it before the house, together with the names of those that were appointed by the parliament, of whome Sir<sup>1</sup> Giles Strangwaies was one, to deliver the messuage<sup>2</sup>. After which was done, the vicecancellor spoke to the orator to proceed. Who making an elegant oration in thanks for the curtesye of the parliament, had, among other things, this, that 'the University wished that they had more Colledges to entertaine the parliament men, and more chambers, but by noe means noe more chymneys etc.' After which was done Sir Heneage Finch and Sir Giles Strangwaies went downe attended with the bedells and some Doctors to put on their scarlet to be created Drs of the LL., according as the vicecancellor had before proposed; and comming up againe, Dr. <Leoline> Jenkins, principall of Jesus Colledge, presented them to the Doctors' degrees, with a flattering speach after their presentation, giving Sir Heneage Finch those encomiums as if <he> had bin the greatest scolar, lawyer, etc., that the world ever produced 'oraculum legis, ἀκμὴ eloquentiae, etc.', and I know not what. But that which is to be observed that when the Vicecancellor admitted them, he only (upon a mistake<sup>3</sup>) admitted 'ad lectionem Institutionum Imperialium' soe that they are but Bac. of Law.

And Mr. Hide, Mr. sollicitor generall, collonell Strangwaies and Sir John Birkenhead are desired to give them the thanks of the house accordingly.'

Nov. 17, F., bishop <John> Earls died between 7 and 8 at night: see Gazett.

Nov. 18, S., the severall courts of Justice sate in the Scooles according to an adjournment made at Westminster to that purpose in pursuance of his majestie's proclamation, T., 26 Sept. last.

<Plan of the Schools.

The Schools are so frequently mentioned in these notes in connection both with the receptions of distinguished visitors and with the meetings of the Houses of Parliament in Oxford that a plan of their arrangement in Wood's time (founded on Gutch's Wood's Hist. Univ. Oxon. ii. 792 and on the picture in Loggan) seems necessary. By way of contrast I add a note of the modern application of the rooms.>

In the King's suffering the parliament and terme to be kept here, it was noe better then tempting God to bring upon us the sad judgment of the plague.

Nov. 17, F., 1665, John Earles, bishop of Sarum, dec(e)ased in University College between 7 and (8) of the clock at night. The 25 of the said mounth being Saturday his corps was carried to the Convocation house, where, at 3 of the clock in the afternoone, came from St. Marie's church the vicecancellor and all the Doctors in their formalities, with the duke of Monmouth, and Lord Chamberlaine (viz. lord Manchester), and other nobility and gentry; and being placed, and the vicecancellor telling the cause of their meeting together, Dr. (Robert) South, the University orator, made a speech. Which being finished, Lancaster herald at armes (named Mr. (William) Ryley) called out 8 Doctors that were heads of houses to beare up the cloth upon him: then 6 Mrs of Art to bear up his corps. Which being done, they went through the Scoole(s) and Cat street to St. Marie's church with the herald and Masters going before and severall degrees of gentry and Doctors after him. W(h)ere being come, Dr. (John) Dolben, deane of Westminster, made a funerall sermon on this text, 'being dead he yet speaketh.' After which was done, they went to Marton Coll. church, and there after (Richard Baylie) the deane of Salisbury had read prayers and the king's quire had sung an anthem, Mr. (Robert) Whitehall, fellow of Merton Coll., spoke a speech. Then the king's quire sung againe all the while he was laying in the grave: and soe the ceremony ceased.

19 Nov., Su., Mr. (? Samuel) Thomas, chaplain of Xt. Ch., preached at St. Marie's in the afternoone, where he insisted much 'de salute Gentilium,' being cheifly against it. Which the lord Roberts<sup>1</sup> (Lord Privy Seale), earl of Manchester (Lord Chamberlaine of the king's houshold), and Sir William Morris<sup>2</sup> (one of the Secretaryes) taking notice, did, especially the last, complaine therof to the vicecancellor, soe that Mr. Thomas was feign to recant what he had said. It was, it seems, against the old king's edict in archbishop Laud his time, and since this king came to his crowne revived againe.

Th., Nov. ult., or therabouts, the French ambassadors departed Oxon and Mr. Courtin gave to the president of Magd. Coll. and successors a peice of plate worth about 4*li*.

Dec. 3, Su., Walter Blandford, bishop elect of Oxon, was consecrated in New Coll. chapel by ⟨Humphrey Henchman⟩ the bishop of London (deputy to ⟨Gilbert Sheldon⟩ the archbishop), Dr. ⟨William⟩ Nicolson bishop of Gloucester, and Dr. ⟨Seth⟩ Ward bishop of Exeter, there being present diverse noble, honorable, and worshipful persons.

Dec. 10, Su., the dutchess of York set up a Sunday lecture at Merton College to be preached there on Sundays at 3 of the clock in the afternoone, which was then performed by Dr. Clark<sup>1</sup> one of her chaplains; but the next Sunday it was translated to Xt. Ch. (because Merton College was too cold for her). And this lecture she set up, because she could not come in the morning to the king's chapel because a breeding<sup>2</sup> and often ill: but rather to shew her selfe religious and please scolars, being her game now to play, that in case the king should die without issue she might sooner have the wishes of the people, etc.

Jan. 27, S., 166 $\frac{5}{8}$ , the king with his retinew went from Oxon to Hampton; in all whose time of abode at Oxon wee had not the least shew of the infection or plauge among us, noe not when 8 thousand died at London therof according to the bills (though ther, as 'twas supposed, 12 thousand and above died therof), notwithstanding we tempted God by causing the parliament to be kept here and afterwards 2 returnes of a terme, and the like.

Feb. 4, Su., the queen miscarried (ut fertur).

About the beginning of Feb. the Spanish ambassador departed Oxon. Before whose departure he sent for the warden of New Coll., where he lay, and told him that he was about to depart, and rendred him great thanks for their civil courtesy and for their speech which they spoke to him when he came there, with which he had acquainted <sup>2</sup> Charles, (created) duke of Kendall, her third son, was born 4 July 1666.

<sup>3</sup> the reference in ‘fluctu’ and ‘ducked’ is to the ducking-stool for scolds.

Lady Castlemayne's temper and tongue are alluded to by Pepys in his Diary under date 27 July 1667 (‘how imperious this woman is and hectors the king to whatever she will’) and again 7 Aug. 1667 (‘she hath nearly hectored him out of his wits’).

his colledge which he had founded at Salamanca<sup>1</sup> and had sent them the copy of it to be there kept 'in perpetuam rei memoriam.' He told him also he had bin there<sup>2</sup> a long while and that he looked upon himselfe as a fellow there, wherefore he desired the warden that he might have leave to depart. Which after his way was granted. When he told him that he was fellow, he said that as there was a fellow of this house that had founded Magd. Coll., soe now there was a fellow that had founded a College at Salamanca, meaning himself.

Feb. 16, F., the queene with all her court went away from Oxon. The day before which, the vicecancellor and Doctors took their leave in the name of the whole University, Mr. George Hooper of Xt. Ch. then making a speech in the place of <the Unviersity> Orator. The maior and citizens also did the like.

Feb. 19, M., the dutchess of York departed from Oxon to London.

The greater sort of the courtiers were high, proud, insolent, and looked upon scolars noe more then pedants, or pedagogicall persons: the lower sort also made noe more of them then the greater, not suffering them to see the king or queen at dinner or supper or scarce at cards or at masse, never regarding that they had parted with their c<h>ambers and conveniences.

The townesmen, who were gainers by the court, grew rich and proud, and cared not for scolars; but when the court was gon they sneaked to them againe.

To give a further character of the court, they, though they were neat and gay in their apparell, yet they were very nasty and beastly, leaving at their departure their excrements in every corner, in chimneys<sup>3</sup>, studies, colehouses, cellers. Rude, rough, whoremongers; vaine, empty, carelesse.

After the court was gone, Oxford being fre of the plague, the scolars returned; and hundreds more came, more then before, because that<sup>4</sup> and the yeare following viz. 1666 Cambridge was greivously troubled with the plauge.

<sup>1</sup> Salamanca was the Oxford of Spain. It had 25 Colleges, most of which were destroyed by the French in the invasion of 1812.

*Feb. 3, S., A. W. was with Dr. <Robert> Say the vicechancellour, to have his leave to go up into the galleries in Bodlie's library, where the MSS. are reposed, to the end that he might have a full perusal of them, without troubling the second keeper, or porter of the said library, to fetch every book that he wants: which was granted. A little before this grant, A. W. told Mr. Thomas Hyde, the chief keeper of the said library, what he intended to doe, and that he should goe with him to be a witness of the vicechancellour's leave. Whereupon the time being appointed to goe, which was in the afternoon of the same day, he (Mr. Hyde) did goe, in the morning before, to the vicechancellour, and desired him not to grant Mr. Wood leave, unless he would promise him to give him his helping hand to the making of a catalogue of the MSS. in Bodlie's library. So tho there was underhand-dealing in this matter, yet Mr. Wood did then partly promise to do it; yet Mr. Hyde seeing afterwards how he (Mr. Wood) was involv'd in a public work, he never urged him to it a second time.

<sup>2</sup> in MS. Tanner 102 fol. 100 Wood blames the vice-chancellor Dr. Robert Say for neglect of duty in allowing the Lent exercises to be omitted. ‘Coursing’ consisted in the candidates challenging each other in the disputations of the Schools: and in as much as the challenging went by Colleges great rivalry arose from it, which sometimes ended in scuffles and party-fights both in the Schools and in the streets. That the challenging went by Colleges is plain from what Wood says in Wood MS. E 32 fol. 18:—

‘Bread and cheese
For Christ Jesus sake —

saith the scholars of those colleges that use to course Christ Church and Jesus College, the former of which colleges are great bread-eaters and the other (all Welshmen) for cheese.’ The most minute description of the disturbances at coursing is given in Shaftesbury’s Autobiography cited in Christie’s Life of Shaftesbury and in Boase *Reg. Dr. Philip Bliss in 1848 added this note:—'The transcript was made by William Ball, one of the yeoman bedels, who demanded 800*l.* for his pains. The college resisted, and Ball sued in the chancellor's court for that sum, in 1657': but Wood says that this book was written in 1627, so that the point requires further elucidation.

Therby chimney money taxed<sup>1</sup>, contributions for some time lost. The country cries out because there is soe much plenty and no transportation. Many fermers broke; clapt up in prison because they cannot pay their rent<sup>2</sup>, corne being soe cheap. Wheras on the other side, Holland is soe poore for want of transportation that corne is there 20s a bushell.

The fire. Soe suddenly did it come and therby caused such distraction and severall forgat their names when they with their money or goods under their armes were examined by the watch that then immediatly was appointed. Others that had occasion to write letters a day or 2 after it ended, forgat<sup>3</sup> the day of the mounth and the mounth of the year. Others quite distracted for the generall loss they have received. Thousands utterly undone that had houses there. Those that had a house to-day were the next glad of the shelter of an hedge or a pigstie or stable. Those that were this day riding wantonly in coaches, were, the next, glad to ride in dung-carts to save their lives. Those that thought the ground too un orthy to be touched by their feet, did run up to the knees in dirt and water to save themselves from the fury of fire or the falling of houses. Those that faired deliciously this day and nothing curious enough to satiate their palatts, were within few days following glad of a browne crust. Those that delighted themselves in downe bedds and silken curteynes, are now glad of the shelter of a hedge.

Several traders<sup>4</sup> set up here in Oxon afterwards.

This fire did soe much affrighten the nation that all townes stood upon their owne defence day and night, and particularly Oxon, every one being soe suspicious<sup>5</sup> that noe sorry fellow or woman could pass but they examined him, noe gun or squib could goe off but they thought it the fatall blow. On the fast day, viz., Sept. 5, W., which was three dayes after the fire began, a butcher driving certaine oxen over Carfax cried to his beasts when he was under the window 'hiup! hiup!'—which some taking for 'fire!' run out of the church, and all the rest after, with the semblance of death in their faces, som saying

[<A copy of Richard Kederminster's 'Renovatio privilegiorum, etc monasterii . . . de Winchelcomba'> was<sup>4</sup> in the hands of Sir William Moreton of Kidlington in com. Oxon, knight, sarjeant at law, who (as he himself did tell me) got it out of a farmer's hands living near Winchcombe, who produced it in at a sessions or sizes in that county. But the said Sir William, being lord of the site of Winchcombe Abbey (quaere Mr. Thorn), got it by some device from him; and so, as in his hands and possession, is it quoted in 'Monasticon Anglicanum' vol. . . . But in the year 1666, in the month of Sept., when the said Sir William was in his juridicall circuit, this book he left in his lodging at Sarjeant's Inne London and both it and that inn were consumed with fire. This I had from his owne mouth; and further told me that he had some transcripts from it written by his clerk—

Apparently the first edition was stated on the title-page to be 1666; the second to be 1667. Mr. F. Madan has pointed out to me that in MS. Jones number 13 (O. C. 8920) Sir William Dugdale notes that 'there was but a very small part of the impression (<of Spelman's Concilia vol. ii>) disposed of unto the booksellers before the late wofull fire in London, which consumed the remayning part.' A difference between yong Huddleston and the Abbey of Winchcombe<sup>1</sup>.—— Old Huddleston, keeper of the castle of Sudely, was at London and soe was Richard Kedermister the abbat.

Yong Huddleston set upon<sup>2</sup> the Abbey with his retinew of the Castle, enters therin, kills a monk at the altar. Kedirmister, who was then the confessor to King Henry VII, begs the Castle of Sudely of the King: the King grants it: Huddleston turned out and the abbey are the keepers.—King Henry VII dying, Henry VIII at the instinct of the duke of Norfolke and other nobles, require(s) it of the abbey againe as being a possession of the crowne. They denie it; and cardinal Wolsey is a great freind to them to perswade the king from taking it. But the king was soe angry at this deniall that he swore “by the Mother of God” that “not only that abbey but all the abbeys in England should be his for this their deniall of Sudely Castle.” Which was, as they say, another reason why King Henry VIII desolved the abbeys.]

20 Oct., S., Dr. John Wall<sup>2</sup>, D.D. and canon of Xt Ch., departed this life and was buried by Dr. 〈William〉 Goodwin's grave on the north side of the choire. He left 2000 and 20*li.*<sup>3</sup> to the city of Oxon for the maintenance of 30 poore widdows, each to have 4*li.* per annum a peice. His money left to veterans, vide foul copie.

Dr. Wall<sup>4</sup>. He left the college nothing, though they and the University stood much in need of it at this time towards their buildings. But the reason was evident, because that Jasper Mayne, Dr. 〈Richard〉 Gardiner, and the deane also would be alwaies gibing him at meales when they meet togeather, especially after he had left the first 1000*li.* to the towne, 1664; for which also the students jeered him, and some of the officers of the Act (of whome one or two were of Xt Ch.), and this without controule from the deane or others. None of the college followed him to church; only the choire going before him, and the maior, baillive(s) and some of the house<sup>5</sup> after him. Whether they did it out of evill will I know not. The deane 〈John Fell〉 and Dr. 〈Richard〉 Allestree were at church, and followed his hearse from their stalls to his grave. 'Tis said that Dr. Richard Gardiner came to Dr. Wall's lodgings the day he died and offered his service to pray with him, but Dr. Wall refused it. Upon which old Gardiner being intraged said that he was 'a mudde wall, a tottered wall<sup>6</sup>, a toren wall, nay! a towne wall'; and broke his windows with his staff. If report might be beleived, his executors (Dr. Seb〈astian〉 Smith<sup>7</sup> and the fawning recorder 〈Richard〉 Crook) had soe much money left them that they weyged<sup>8</sup> it out, to save telling.

Many of the persons now resident in Oxford had had degrees conferred upon them by the University, under pressure from the Commonwealth: and to take these away would have caused much trouble and strife. The delegates therefore contented themselves by annulling the 'acts' of the tyranny-period without specifying which 'acts.' One unfortunate result of this difficulty was that the degree-lists<sup>1</sup> of the University, first published in 1689, did not venture to go further back than 1659: and this remained the terminus a quo with later books until the Oxford Historical Society's 'Register of the University of Oxford' printed (in 1884-9) the lists chronologically (with alphabetical indexes) from the earliest documents preserved: followed in 1891 by Mr. Joseph Foster's 'Alumni Oxonienses' (1500-1714) in which the names are arranged alphabetically.)

Dec. 12, W., Edmund Gayton, A.M., somtimes fellow of St John's, then squire bedle of phisic, died; and was buried in St Marie's Church—a great poet, verses<sup>5</sup> of his came out but the 7 day before. At the election of whose successor the vicecancellor made a speech to the M(aste)rs exhorting them to have a care who they should chuse: he dis(ir)ed them that they should not chuse a poet, neither those that 'libellos scribere'; and told them after other scurrilous way that Geyton was such an ill husband and soe improvident that he had but one farthing in his pocket when he died, though the vicecancellor had given 5*li.* for his buriall.

About the beginning of this mounth Mr. (Henry) Chamberlaine<sup>6</sup>, fellow of Oryall, died in the country.

of her age 65 and 2 months. She was buried March the 1, F., neare the grave of her husband in Merton College church. She had bin troubled with a paine in her right hip about 4 months before, which at length rising to a head Dr. <Edmund> Dickenson applied a broad plaister of cantharides, as thick as a pan-kake and broader than both a man's hands, to raise a blister. This was one the Monday, Feb. 25; but before midnight it put her to such extreame paine and heated and distempered her blood soe much that all that morning from about 4 to 11 she was greivously troubled with the heat of the urine which continually came from her, supposed all the while of her sickness by the doctor and those about her to be the stone<sup>1</sup>. And then she went to bed and slept till about 6 at night, T., Feb. 26. But when shee walked she found the pains which that unlucky plaister had occasioned to have fled up to her head, where increasing more and more—which was 'the weakest part about her,' as she alwaies in her life time complained—killed her, Th., the 28 day, as before <is said>.—This is to be noted that the doctor did extreamly erre in managing the cure, and did, as 'twere, kill her downe-right; for if he had fixed the plaister or cantharides, that is, put it into a bag, and a plaister and some cloath between that and the flesh, she had lived. But laying such a thick prodigious plaster on, put her within few houres after in such extreme pain by avoiding hot urine, that rubbing it off by tumbling and tossing in her bed, brought off with it the cutis cuticula and pinguedo even to the membrana carnososa, besides the sticking and eating of some of the cantharides in the flesh. From which place ran such abundance of water (about five pints) that left her blood void of serum, and consequently her body of a pulse, as indeed it was even to the hour of her death, and her body of heat and moisture. And this was the doctor she loved and doted on soe much as so great, learned, and well-deserving phisitian! wheras noe unskilful quack or huswife would have ventured soe much as he did.]

Memorandum<sup>1</sup> that June the 14, F., I went up to London, tarried there till the 28, F., and was at home againe the 29, S.; in which time I spent (reckning the charges of my journey up and downe), 3*li.* 4*s* 4*d.* I layd at Mr. Crouchfeild's commonly called Weever's over against Gloucester hall in Holborne, where I gave 4*s* a weeke for my lodging. Mr. Obadiah Walker then went in the coach and so <I> came to be acquainted with him. I had letters of commendation from Dr. <Thomas> Barlow to Mr. <William> Dugdale.

*June 13, Th., he received letters of commendation from Dr. Thomas Barlow, provost of Queen's coll. to William Dugdale, esq., Norroy King of armes, to introduce him into the acquaintance of the said person, and consequently into the library of Sir John Cotton at Westminster.

*June 14, F., he went to London in the stage-coach. His companions were all scholars; among whom was Obadiah Walker, the senior fellow of University Coll. They all lodg'd that night at Beconsfield, and then A. W. became acquainted with the said Mr. Walker, and so continu'd his acquaintance til death parted them.

*June 16, early in the morn. being Sunday, A. W. went to the Middle Temple, and found out Mr. Dugdale in the apartment belonging to Elias Ashmole. He gave him Dr. Barlow's letters, and after he had read them, which were to introduce him into the Cottonian library, he expressed great civility to him. He then appointed him to call on him the next morning, and he should have letters from him to Sir John Cotton.

*June 17, M., accordingly he went, and found him in the said apartment (where he lodged) and discoursed with him concerning various matters of antiquity. He then gave him his letter to Sir John Cotton, wherein was inclosed that of Dr. Thomas Barlow; so posting forthwith to Westminster, he found Sir John Cotton in his house, joyning almost to Westminster hall. He was then practicing on his lute with his instructor, and when he had done, he came out to him in the hall, and receiv'd him kindly, invited him to dinner, and directed him to Mr. Richard Pearson who kept the key of his library. Here was another trouble; for the said Mr. Pearson being a lodger in the house of Robert Scot, a bookseller living in Little Britaine, he was forced to walke thither, and much adoe there was to find him, but find him at last he did, and by his appointment he met him the next day at Sir John Cotton's house, where he lent him two MSS. ; which being run over and perused in half a day, yet before he could get two more (for no more were to be at a time lent out) it would be a whole day (perhaps two) before A. W. could find out the said Mr. Pearson to let him have more. This was very troublesome ; and how to help it he could not tell. At length an antient gentleman named Mr. Withrington, who was an old servant, and house-keeper when Sir John and his family went into the country, seeing to what trouble A. W. was put to, advis'd him for the future to take his opportunities to come in the long vacation to study, for then Sir John being absent for 3 or more months together, he did usually leave the key of his library in his hands. Afterwards he took his advice, and went to London in the long vacations, and then Mr. Withrington being constantly in the house, he would conduct A. W. into the very next roome joyning to the library, where he would bring to him what books he pleased, which he pointed at in the catalogue. So that spending there 9 houres in a day constantly for a fortnight or more together, he at length did effect his business.

*June 18, 19, 20, 21, etc., 1667, divers MSS. in Sir John Cotton's library at Westminster were then perused by me.

A. Woode. June 22, etc., divers MSS. in the king's library at St. Jeames were perused by me, A. W. June 24, 25, 26, etc., divers patent rolls in the tower of London were also then perused.'

*June 21, F., this Mr. Pearson<sup>1</sup> (who was a learned man, and younger brother to Dr. <John> Pearson, bp. of Chester) being seldome to be found, A. W. went with letters of commendation from Dr. Robert Say, provost of Oriell Coll.<sup>2</sup> (which he brought with him from Oxon.) to the lodgings of Mr. William Prinn in Lincoln's Inne, chief keeper of the records in the Tower of London, to the end that he would introduce him among the records there for the carrying on of a publick work. Mr. Prynne received him with old fashion complements, such as were used in the raigne of K. Jam. I. and told him he should see what he desir'd, and seemed to be glad that 'such a yong man as he (A. W.) was' (for so he cal'd him) 'should have inclinations towards venerable antiquity,' &c. He told him then that if he would call upon him the next morning at 8 of the clock, he would conduct him to the Tower, for he had business then to do there, being about to print another book.

*June 22, S., A. W. went precisely at the time appointed, and found Mr. Prynne in his black taffaty-cloak, edg'd with black lace at the bottom. They went to the Tower directly thro the city, then lying in ruins<sup>1</sup> (occasion'd by the grand conflagration that hapned in 1666); but by his meeting with several citizens and prating with them, it was about 10 of the clock before they could come to the same place. He there shew'd A. W. a place where he should sit and write, shew'd him 'the<sup>2</sup> Repertorium,' and spoke to Jennings the reacher of the records, that he should let him have any record that he should point at in the said Repertorium. After that, he conducted A. W. into the White Tower, where he was strangely surprized, to see such vast number of charters and rolls that were there reposed &c. He found Mr. Dugdale in the office where he was to sit, who was running over a course of rolls in order to the drawing up and finishing either his 3<sup>d</sup>. vol. of Monasticum Anglicanum or his Baronage: and so long as A. W. stayd in London, which were but a few dayes<sup>3</sup>, he spent them there in his company, and at 12 of the clock every day they dined together at a cook's house within the Tower, and sometimes had Jennings (a boon blade) among them.

*The same day at night, A. W. sent letters by the post to Dr. Thomas Barlow, to let him know what he had done at London, and to give him thanks for the fatherly favours he did unto him.

*June 29, S., he returned to Oxon. It was the first time that A. W. was at London; and the truth is, his time being short, he only took measures what to doe at his next going to that place.

[June<sup>4</sup> 22, S., the Act adjourned. Dr. Fell endeavoured that no Act should be celebrated till the Theater was finisht. The Chancellor's letters to have it adjourned was dated from Clarendon house, W., 19 June, the first of all his letters dated thence. The former, of Dec. 6, 1666, was dated from Berkshire house.]

was work enough for a curious and critical antiquary that would hold him tugg for a whole yeare. There are a great many evidences which belonged to St. Frideswyde's Priory, but no rent-rolls of their lands and tenements. There are many evidences and rent-rolls that belonged to Osney Abbey, and innumerable broken writings and rolls which belonged to the priories and nunneries that were dissolv'd by the meanes of Cardinal Wolsey towards the erection of his college in Oxon. But this the reader must know that the said college being not settled by law when the cardinal fell, all the lands which were appointed for the said Coll. came into the king's hands. So that between the cardinal's fall and the settlement of the college by the king, which was 3 years at least, most of the lands of the said dissolv'd priories and nunneries, being sold to, or beg'd of the king by, hungry courtiers, who had only the king's grant for them, without the antient evidences belonging to them; those evidences remained still in Cardinal, now Ch. Ch., Coll. And because the members thereof have not the lands which those evidences concern, they take no care of the evidences, but lay them in a by-place expos'd to weather, and thereby are much perish'd, and become not legible. From these evidences did A. W. furnish Sir Will. Dugdale with many things, which he inserted in his third <sup>1</sup> vol. of Monasticon Anglicanum, viz. with those four evidences in p. 11 concerning Wallingford: with eleven others in p. 13, 14, 15 concerning Littlemore Nunnery within the precincts of Sandford in Oxfordshire, which by a mistake Sir William hath added to Sandford in Berks: with 4 copies in p. 30, 31 concerning Horkesley, a cell to the Abbey of Tefford: with a copie in p. 77 b concerning Ottenham Priory: with the charter concerning the Hospital of Ginges in Essex, otherwise called Gynge-Montegney, and with many others, which he thought not fit to be published.

*John Willis, yonger brother to Dr. Thomas Willis the famous physitian, was then chapter-clerk of Ch. Church; and he then designing to make a repertorie of records belonging to the said church, made choice of that time to do it, to the end that he might have the assistance of A. W.; which he freely imparted, and demonstrated to him from several evidences what encroachments that church had suffered in many places in Oxon on their lands and tenements, which formerly belonged to St. Frideswyde and Osney.

⟨From some one at Christ Church, out of Christ Church Treasury, but at what date is not known <sup>2</sup>, Wood got a quantity of deeds belonging to Littlemore Priory,

Wood also secured a parchment book of rentals of Osney, containing either the 'Rentale Osney' or the 'Computus Collectoris Osney,' and in most years both, for the years 1445, 1453, 1456, 1459-1464, 1466-1470, 1478, 1479, 1481; this is now Wood MS. F 10 (O. C. 8472). Also a very large rental for the year 1498; now Wood MS. F 15 (O. C. 8477).)

[Here<sup>1</sup> may be mentioned the great spoyl of writings in this (Ch. Ch.) Treasury, thus:—viz. that when cardinall Wolsey caused many religious places to be dissolved for the building and endowing his college at Oxon, all the writings belonging to them were brought thither and put in the Treasury. But when the cardinall fell and his college and all the revenews that he had setled and was about to setle theron was come into the king's hands, (they) were by him retained from 1529 to 1533. In which time many of the said lands were sold, or begd away by hungry courtiers. So that the writings not passing with them but remaining here still, were (after the College was setled by King Henry VIII) much neglected and throwne aside, because the canons had few or none of the lands that belonged to the writings.]

[Note<sup>2</sup> that the writings belonging to the said 22 religious places<sup>3</sup> were by the cardinall transferred to Oxon, and there layd till his fall. After which, divers of the said lands coming into the hands of the king and (being) by him granted to laicks, those writings that belonged to those places lay in a careless manner subject to wet and the mercy of rats; and none of them except those that concerned lands and churches that were confirmed on King Henry VIII's college were carefully preserved. Soe that the rest, viz. the charters of gifts, leases, accompts, terriers, rent-rolls, etc., being cramp'd altogether in a little study or by-roume in the said Treasury, as also in an old worme eaten chest, have layd so much neglected to the mercy of wet and rats that most of them or the cheifest part of them are consumed to dirt and noe peice of them bigger then a shilling is remaining.]

About the same time<sup>1</sup> died Mr. Thomas Hobbs the mathematician. He was servitor, as I have heard, to the earl of Devon<sup>2</sup> at Magd. hall, where liking him, took him in his travells and then retained him in his house, allowing him an annuity of 100*li.* for his life. He corrupted much of yong gentry with atheisme: ask Mr. <Peter> Nicolls. *Aug. 31, S., John Aubrey of Easton-Piers in the parish of Kington S. Michael in Wiltsh. was in Oxon. with Edward Forest, a book-seller living against Alls. Coll., to buy books. He then saw lying on the stall Noñña<sup>4</sup> Academiae Oxoniensis; and asking who the author of that book was, he answer'd the report was that one Mr. Anthony Wood of Merton Coll. was the author, but was not. Whereupon Mr. Aubrey, a pretender to antiquities, having been contemporary to A. Wood's elder brother in Trin. Coll. and well acquainted with him, he thought that he might be as well acquainted with A. W. himself. Whereupon repairing to his lodgings, and telling him who he was, he got into his acquaintance, talk'd to him about his studies, and offer'd him what assistance he could make, in order to the completion of the work that he was in hand with<sup>5</sup>. Mr. Aubrey was then in a sparkish

He was a shiftless person, roving and magotie-headed, and somtimes little better than crased. And being exceedingly credulous, would stuff his many letters<sup>2</sup> sent to A. He also told them that one Daniel Prince, one of the city sergeants did arrest a scholar of Exeter College named Humphrey Harrys A. Bac., by virtue of a breve or warrant from the mayor's court of the city of Oxon, and carried him to prison and detained him there, against the priviledges of the University. Also that the said Daniel Prince did arrest Solodell Lichfield and H. Apr. 1, W., Convocation <decided> the controversie about the proctorship between Benjamin Woodroff and Richard White.

The master and fellows of Ball. Coll. had petitioned the king, shewing that, according to the course given to Balliol College by the statutes for electing of proctors in the University of Oxon, the aforesaid college did in due time elect Benjamin Woodroff, a true member of the college and qualified by statute, to serve as proctor for the ensuing year; notwithstanding, the Halls (out of whom in case of an absolute lapse in the college the Master of the College is to elect whome he pleases) put in their exceptions upon pretence of a lapse, and upon their claime a determination was given contrary to the statute, there being no lapse of this right from Ball. Coll. nor any legall defect in the person by them elected, nor any power to determine the doubt (if any such there had been) without the presence of the Master of Ball. Coll. who was not there nor summoned to be there. The king in answer to the petition sent a message, dated at Whitehall March 28, that—

'His majestie is pleased to leave it to the vicechancellour and Convocation of the Univ. of Oxon to proceed in this whole matter according to the statutes of the University.'

The vicechancellor <after these documents were read in Convocation>, commanded the Carolin statutes concerning the election of the proctors to be read; which were done accordingly.

Then certaine acts done in Dr. Paul Hood's lodging in Lync. Coll. on Friday 14 Feb. were read, wherby it appeared that B. Woodroff did goe there to meet the vicechancellor to acquaint him that he, as commoner and Logick reader of Ball. Coll., was by that societie chose proctor for the ensuing yeare, and therefore desired justice, in the presence of Joseph Crowther, D.D., principal of St. Marie hall, Richard White M.A. and commoner of that hall, and John Hammond M.A. and commoner of Edmund hall. But then the statutes called the Carolin being read as also the statutes of Balliol, in the presence of John Wallis keeper of the archives and Henry Deane LL.D. the vicechancellor's assessor, the said vice-chancellor and Dr. Hood (senior theologian then present) did pronounce the said election void. But Nicholas Crouch M.A. and vicegerent of Ball. did dissent and say 'twas lawfull.

Which done the vice-chancellor gave leave to both parties to say what they could for themselves. Wherupon Dr. Henry Savage, Mr. of Ball., did breifly shew Ball. Coll. right therto, seconded by a larg and long speech by Woodroff. He having done, White answered him verie short and then Dr. Crowther seconded him. Which being done, the proctors went to a scrutinie to take votes, and White carrying it by many, was pronounced.

it came to the lower region it vanished in sparkles. Mr. Sanders of Hadnam whom I met at Notley on Monday following told me that with them it vanished with a report. Great raine and inundations followed.

*May 16, S., Matthew Hutton<sup>1</sup>, M.A. fellow of Brasn. Coll., and A. W. went to Borstall near Brill in Bucks, the habitation of the lady Penelope Dinham, being quite altered since A. W. was there in 1646. For whereas then it was a garrison, with high bulworks about it, deep trenches and pallosadoes; now it had pleasant gardens about it and several sets of trees well growne. The errand of A. W. there was to see the leiger of the family, first for the satisfying of himself as to matters to be extracted thence for his book<sup>2</sup> about to be published, and secondly to extract thence what he could find for the 3d. vol of Monast. Anglicanum; which were the copies of some charters that are printed in the said 3d. vol. p. 18, containing the hermitage of Muswell in the parish of Piddington neare Borstall. This leiger-book, written in parchement, containes the evidences and other matters concerning the lands pertaining to the lords of Borstall, lying at Borstall, and in Bucks, and Oxfordshire, and was made and written by the care of Edmund Rede, esq. lord of the mannor of Borstall, tempore Henrici 6. In the beginning of this book is represented in colours the manour house of Borstall, with a moat round it, and the lord of the manour (Johannes filius Nigelli) issuing out of his house to meet a certain king and his retinew. And at some distance from the house, the lord kneels downe to the king, and presents him with a boare's head on the top of a sword or speare. This, as the tradition of the family goeth, is an allusion to the custome<sup>3</sup> of the manour (Borstall) to present the king with a boare's head, because the said manour was in antient time, when 'twas wooddy, a stall or den for wild boares.

place so light for a time, that a man might see to read. It seemed to A. W. to be as long as Allsaints steeple in Oxon, being long and narrow: and when it came to the lower region, it vanished into sparkles, and, as some say, gave a report. Great raines and inundations followed &c.

*May 18, M., M. Hutton and A. W. walked from Borstall to see some churches<sup>1</sup>, and what of matter of antiquity wee could find in them, and about 12 of the clock they arrived at Notley, in the parish of Long-Crendon in Bucks, to see the ruins of the abbey there, originally built for Black Canons. Mr. Norris Lenton, the owner of it (from the family of the lord Norris) was an antient bachelaur, and had formerly been a great traveller, and being a person of good breeding and a scholar, he receiv'd them with great curtesie. They met there capt. Sanders of Hadnam, and after dinner they viewed the ruins<sup>2</sup> which shew'd that it had been a stately place, and therefore the spectacle was more sad &c. In one of the windows of a lower roome were the armes of Stafford duke of Bucks. When A. W. went to school at Thame, he usually retired to this place to gather nuts, having been then great plenty, and more in antient time, which caused it to be called Nutley, that is, the place of nuts.

[Borstall<sup>3</sup> com. Buks., T., May 19, 1668. This house (the mannor house, I meane) was garrisoned for the king 1643, Sir William Campion governor; and then it was that all the trees, gardens, and other places of pleasure were cut downe and demolished. The chappell also which stands eastward from the house was plucked downe, and the monuments defaced, which chappell was not rebuilt till 1663, by the care and cost of the lady Penelope Dynham. The monument(s) also that are defaced are yet remaining. One raised middle-high, on the south side of the chancell, was (I suppose) for Edmund Rede, lord of Borstall, tempore Henr. *May 21, Th., received from Dr. <Henry> Savage, master of Balliol Coll., his book<sup>1</sup> lately printed, entit. 'Balliofergus' &c., in requitall for what A. W had done<sup>2</sup> in order to its composition. In the said book, p. 28, he calls A. W. 'his friend.'

*May 30, S., he went to the house of Sir George Croke<sup>3</sup>, lord of Waterstoke near to Thame in Oxfordshire, where he found a great diversion in perusing and taking the armes and monuments in the church, and in the mannour house belonging to the said Sir George. A. W. lodged, by the appointment of the said Sir George, in an ancient rome called 'the King's rome,' because K. Henry 6 had lodged therein, and 'twas as he remembers at the end of the dining-rome. The mannour of Waterstoke Sir George Croke a judg had purchased of the [Caves<sup>4</sup> or Danvers], and having an only son, who was a sot or fool, or both, would not leave Water-stoke to him<sup>5</sup>, but to the son of his brother (a clergy man) named Sir Georg Croke, before mention'd, somtimes fellow of Alls. coll. and afterwards high sherriff<sup>6</sup> of Oxfordshire; but after the death of his wife<sup>7</sup> (who was an Onslow of Surrey) he ran into debt, retired to London, followed women, and ruin'd himself. <sup>2</sup> Wood notes in the margin:—'see before under the yeare 1660,' i. e. vol. i, p. 315.

<sup>3</sup> this Sir George Croke was son of Henry Croke D.D., Rector of Waterstock, who died 1642 and was buried in the chancel of Waterstock church. His uncle Sir George Croke the judge bequeathed 100*li.* towards his maintenance and education.

<sup>4</sup> the three words in square brackets are in pencil only; the third all but illegible. Sir Alexander Croke in his History of the Croke Family says:—'Before the year 1615 sir George Croke purchased of sir William Cave the estate at Waterstock. It had come into the Cave family by the marriage of sir Thomas Cave, brother to sir George Croke's grandmother, Prudence Cave, with Elizabeth Danvers, daughter and heiress of sir John Danvers of Waterstock.'

<sup>5</sup> Sir Alexander Croke, l.c., says that Sir George Croke the judge left his estate to his son Thomas Croke and to his heirs by any other wife Anne (from which it is probable that he had married badly); but that this Thomas dying before or shortly after his father, the estate went to the judge's nephew George, the son of Henry.

<sup>1</sup> Delafield's History of Great Milton, among the Gough MSS. in the Bodleian, gives this account of the Ashhurst family. 'The original of the family in Oxfordshire was Henry Ashurst, esq. a woollen draper by trade, and a citizen and alderman of London. He was born at Ashurst in Lancashire, being the son of a gentleman there seated, by Cassandra, daughter of John Bradshaw, of Bradshaw in that county. He had it seems an elder brother, - - Ashurst, esq. who was grandfather to Thomas Henry Ashurst, esq. successor to sir Henry Ashurst the younger at Waterstock. Henry Ashurst, the alderman, married Judith the dau. of one Mr. Risby, and had with her about 1500*l.* fortune, a very considerable portion as money then went. By her he had four sons<sup>a</sup>. The first a member of the long parl. went a commissioner into Scotland, had the clerke of the peace's place for Lancashire bestowed on him, and 1000*l.* in money given him by the leaders of that party. The second son was a colonel, but on which of the contending sides, I find not. The third was sir Henry, the senior, of Waterstoke, and the fourth sir Will. Ashurst, who in 1691 was sheriff of London and Middlesex, and in 1693 lord mayor, and at length colonel of the white regiment of the city trained bands, and chief commissioner in the excise. He dyed in 1720, having been one of the representatives of the city in the parliament dissolved 1710. * * * Alderman Henry Ashurst purchased Emington of the family of Hamden, which had before belonged to the Scope's, and dying left it to his son Henry, who was first knighted, and afterwards raised to the degree of baronet<sup>b</sup>. He procured the manour of Waterstoke by sale of the Croke's, and married Diana the 5 daughter of William lord Paget, by his lady Frances, one of the daughters of Henry Rich, earl of Holland, beheaded soon after the murder of king Charles I. by the same violent hands that cut off his royal master. By this lady sir Henry had two children, viz. a daughter Frances, so named from her noble grandmother, married to sir Richard Allen, bart. seated at Somerby house in Suffolk, to whom she bore several sons and a daughter married to Thomas Henry Ashurst, esq. of Lancashire, whom we shall find heir of Waterstock. The third son was sir Henry Ashurst, junior, who married Elizabeth, daughter of sir Tho. Draper of Sunninghill near Windsor. * * There was no surviving issue by this marriage, so that the estates at Emington, Waterstoke, &c. upon the death of sir Henry came by entail to Tho. Henry Ashurst, esq. who had married the niece of sir Henry and daughter of sir Richard Allen as aforesaid.'—W. H. Ashhurst, esq., of Waterstock, is this year (1891), High Sheriff of Oxfordshire.

*March 18, 19, Th., F., Sir Edward Bysshe, Clarenceaux King of Armes, was at the Crowne Inn neare Carfax in Oxon, in order to visit part of the county of Oxon, being part of the province belonging to Clarenceux. A. W. was with him several times, eate and drank with him, and had several discourses with him concerning armes and armory, which he understood well, but he found him nice and supercilious. Few gentlemen appeared, because at that time there was a horse-race at Brackley. Such that came to him, he entred if they pleased. If they did not enter, he was indifferent, so the visitation was a trite thing. Many look'd on this matter, as a trick to get money. A little before his departure he gave A. W. a dash of his office, viz. he entred 3 or more descents of his family<sup>4</sup>, a copy of which he hath lying by him. Afterwards Sir Edward having a coach and four horses with him, he went to Banbury. There were only with him old . . . Wither a herald painter of London and his clerk (Gregorie) the former of which trick'd the coates, the other entred them in the book of visitation. He the said Sir Edward Bysshe was in Oxon. againe in 1675 to make an end of his visitation, but A. W. was then absent.

Munday, May 3, 1669, the prince of Tuscany being expected to come from Northampton about 4 of the clock afternoone, the vicechancellor had in the morning ordered that noe scholars should be seen out of their colleges about that time<sup>2</sup>.—Afternoon at 1 of the clock, in the meeting of the heads of houses, it was resolved that a Convocation should be had on the morrow for the reception of the prince, and a speech be there made by the University oratour. And each head of a house was desired earnestly to entreat the Mrs. of A. and others the members of Convocation that every one would keep his seat and not tumultuously huddle together (as was used to be done) when the speech should be made<sup>3</sup>, etc. And it was further resolved that a severe order should be given to the Bachelors and undergraduates of every house that when they came to the Schools they should demeane themselves orderly without humming or tumult.—This afternoon a chaire of state was set at the right hand of the vicechancellor's seat, with cushions and cloaths of crimson velvet and a carpet under foot<sup>4</sup>.

The prince came not till 12 of the clock this night, his lodging being taken for him at the Angell, for he had refused the vicechancellor's offer of his lodgings at Chr. Ch.

Tuesday, May 4; about 10 of the clock the vicechancellor, Doctors, and Proctors met at St. Mary's after the ringing of the great bell; and thence they went in their scarlet gownes to complement the prince at his lodging.—About half an hour after, the Mayor and 13 of his brethren went in their scarlet to performe the like ceremonies, squire White<sup>5</sup> welcoming the prince 'to this their ancient citty' with a speech, for the recorder was absent.—Having received these short visits, his highness takes coach to see some of the colleges, the vice-chancellor and some Doctors (particularly Dr. <Richard> Trevor and Dr. <Charles> Willoughby<sup>1</sup>) waiting upon him in other coaches and in their scarlet (which they wore all that day). At Magd. Coll. they were received with a short extemporary speech by Mr. Bayly<sup>2</sup> junior: and so having lookt into the chappell and cloysters they turned back to All-Souls and New College. Thence they went to St. John's where a speech was made by a gentleman-commoner. After a view taken of the library etc, they went up the street by Carfax to Chr. Ch. There the prince was entertained with speeches and verses, in the middle of the hall, at the bottom of the staires, and at his going forth. And so he withdrew to his lodging to dinner, taking a view of Oriell in the way.—At 2 of the clock the Convocation met and expected till near 4: at which time the vicechancellor having all the beedles and verger before him, with Sir Theodore du Veau<sup>3</sup> in his Doctor's scarlet and the rest of the Doctors in theirs, went and attended the prince from his inne (being all on foot) to the Schools, the scholars standing all along on each side the way. At his entry into the Convocation house the noblemen and Masters who sate there expecting (to the number of about 300) stood up, but kept their places, as they did to the end. Then the vicechancellor in brief declared the cause of the Convocation to be the reception of his highness, etc.; and so spoke to Dr. <Robert> South to performe his office of orator. The panegyrick being ended with applause, Seignior <John Baptist Gornia> a Bononian Dr., the prince's physician, was presented ad eundem as he had been the Saturday before at Cambridge. Then 2 or 3 dispensations were proposed for some St. John's men (which used to be granted in Congregation<sup>4</sup>) toward their bachelor of A. degree. This being done the Convocation ended.—Hence the prince was brought into the Theatre and was presented by <William> Bird, the stone-carver to the Theatre, with a piece of marble colourd through by his art [for<sup>5</sup> which he received 2 guineys]: likewise D<avid> Logan, the University sculptor, presented him with the king's picture in white satten of his owne draught and with the sight of his cuts of the Colleges [for<sup>1</sup> which he was rewarded with 5 guinnys.]—From the Theatre he went to the library; where Mr. <Thomas> Hide the chiefe Library-keeper made him a short speech, and then shewed him the curiositys of the Library, the archives<sup>2</sup>, gallery<sup>3</sup>, coines, etc.—In his returne downe staires he found Dr. <James> Hide reading a Physick lecture in the Anatomy School<sup>4</sup>. After that he was attended to the Geometry School, where Dr. <John> Wallis read a lecture of Architecture, demonstrating the way of laying a flat roof of short pieces over any building of any breadth: with which discourse his highnesse was very much satisfyed. Thence they turned into the Schola Linguarum where two bachelors of Arts of Ch. Ch. disputed on this question:—‘An motus projectorum fiat a vi impressa? Aff.’ From this School they went downe and crost over to the Natural Philosophy School where Mr. <George> Hooper of Ch. Ch., deputy professor for Dr. <Thomas> Willis, read a lecture in his faculty. That ended, two bachelors of Queen’s Coll., Sr. <Henry> Smith and Sr. <John> Milne, began a dispute upon these questions:—‘An stellae Medicaeae sunt lunae Jovis? Aff.’ ‘An detur vacuum? Neg.’ This disputation lasted half an hour, and though the vicechancellor offerd once or twice to goe, the prince seemed to be so well pleased with that exercise that he stayed till ’twas ended. The last School they went into was the Musick where they had a consort of the organ and a set of viols, and a Latin song. The rest of the professors were attending in their several Schools, if they had pleased to have stayed longer, or the time had permitted, for now it was about 7 of the clock.—From the Schools the prince went down to the Physick Garden; and so returned to his lodging.

In the morning, the 5th of May, W., the vicechancellor with Dr. <Robert> South and Dr. <Richard> Trevor, etc., waited on him againe and in the name of the University presented him with the workes<sup>5</sup> of King Charles I in folio, richly bound; which he received with great expressions of thanks, promising the University the free use of any MSS. in his library at Florence, etc. . *June 26, S., A. W. was dismiss from his usual and constant diet, which for many yeares he had taken in the house where he was borne, and then lived, by the rudeness and barbarity of a brutish woman, of which she afterwards repented, when too late. A. W. was put to his shifts, a great deale of trouble, and knew not what to doe, because his dismiss was suddaine, whereas there should have been a month's warning at least. He was asham'd to go to a publick house, because he was a senior master, and because his relations lived in Oxon: and to go to Merton Coll. (which he had left, as to his diet, for several yeares before) he was much resolv'd in himself against it. He had a name in the buttery-book there, and took bread and beere, when he could go no where else for meat. By his much fasting, and drinking more than usually, the whole course of his body was chang'd. Weaknesses came into several of his joynts, especially in the leggs, and great noises in his eares: and in the next yeare he found a deafness, first in his right, and afterwards in his left, eare, which continued more or less till death. This disaster A. W. look'd upon as the first and greatest misery of his life. It made him exceeding melancholy and more retir'd; was also at great charge in taking physick and slops, to drive the noises out of his ears, and Dr. John Lamphire took a great deal of paines about them, but in vaine. You will heare more hereafter<sup>1</sup>, what trouble and charge A. W. was put to, to obtaine his hearing.

July.—The first week of this month the gentleman-commoners took upon them with the vice-chancellor's leave to weare silken round caps [to distinguish them from servitors. Weary of them, see afterward<sup>3</sup>.]

*July 6, T., Elias Ashmole esq. came to Oxon to spend some time there, and to see the solemnity of the great Act approaching. He lodged in the Greyhound Inn without the East-Gate of Oxon, and then he very kindly sent of<sup>4</sup> A. W. to come to him, purposely to deliver commendations to him from his father in law Will. Dugdale, Norroy K. of Armes. He continued in Oxon 7 or 8 dayes and A. W. attended him every day in seeing many curiosities, as the painting<sup>5</sup> in Alls. coll. chappel, the paynting in Magd. coll. chappell, and the paynting in the Theater<sup>6</sup>. They were often in the Physick Garden with Jacob Bobart the keeper (an old acquaintance of Mr. Ashmole), who shewd them many choice plants, herbs, grafts, and 'other curiosities<sup>7</sup> to Mr. Ashmole's great content.

<sup>1</sup> this shews that the 'Secretum Antonii' was carried or at least intended to be carried much further than it is. Nothing more is said in it about Wood's deafness and his endeavours for a cure. But after it stops in 1672, the almanacs supply several notes on this point.

August.—[Aug.<sup>6</sup> 4, W., Gilbert Sheldon, archbishop of Canterbury, by his letters dated, S., July 31 from Lambeth house, resigned his office of chancellor, commending to them the most noble duke of Ormond (James Butler), Lord Steward of his majestie's household, 'a fit person and will be acceptable to the king; a person whom I cannot mention but with all characters of honour, who, besides the eminency of his birth and dignities, hath made himself more illustrious by his virtues and merits, by that constant integrity he hath in all fortunes borne to the king and church, and (what concerns them more particularly) by his love of letters and learned men.' (The duke of Ormond was then elected chancellor.)]

Aug. 14, S., Mr. ⟨William⟩ Roane<sup>1</sup>, of New Coll., fellow, died: buried in the north cloyster about the middle neare the dore in the gar⟨den⟩.

Aug. 24, T., I went to London and tarried there till Sept. 7, T., which cost me 4*li.* of which money 40*s* was allowed me by the University.

25 Aug., Wednesday, ⟨the⟩ Vicechancellor, proctors, body of the Masters appointed by the Universitie (of which I was one), with divers Drs, Bachelors of Divinity, other Masters<sup>2</sup>, as also severall bishops and persons of qualitie dined with archbishop Sheldon at Lambeth. When wee came he was at the privee councill, but at one he came in. And, wee being all in the Gallery, he with Dr. Fell came in together: and I being next to the dore, Dr. Fell told “If it please your Grace, here is a Master of Arts” (pointing to me) “that you must take notice of: he hath done the University a great deal of honor by a book that he hath wrot.” Wherupon I kneeled downe and he blessed me; and, laying his hand upon my shoulder, spoke kindly to me and told me that “he was glad that there was such a person in the University as I,” bid me “goe on and I should be encouraged and want nothing that was equall to my deserts.” At dinner Sir Ieoline Jenkins sate me at the high table above my betters (some knights and particularly Cook<sup>3</sup>, under-secreatarie). The next day was the installation.

*Aug. 24, T., A. W. went to London in the flying-coach, having before been nominated by the proctors one of the 12 Masters of Arts to attend the solemnity of the installation of James ⟨Butler⟩ duke of Ormonde to the chancellourship of the Universitie of Oxon.

*Aug. 25, W., A. W. went about 8 of the clock in the morning by Whitehall towards Sir John Cotton's house<sup>4</sup> neare Westminster hall, to borrow some MSS. from his library to carry on the grand work of the ‘History and Antiquities of the Univ. of Oxon.’ He met neare Whitehall gate with Dr. John Fell, Dr. Richard Allestrie, Dr. Thomas Yate, &c. comming from prayers, as it seems, at Whitehall, who told him, that at 12 of the clock of the said day, he was to meet the Oxford scholars then in London, to dine with his grace the archb. of Canterbury (Sheldon) at Lambeth. They told him then that if he met by chance with any Oxford doctors or masters, between that time and 12 of the clock, he should tell them of it, which he did. Afterwards he borrowed certaine MSS.; and at 12 of the clock he passed over the water to Lambeth with Dr. Yate, proctor Alsop and others. When they came there, the archb. was at the councill table at Whitehall with the king, and did not returne till one of the clock. In the meane time the doctors and masters entertaind themselves with pictures and other rarities in the gallery and had divers discourses. At length the archb. came among them with Dr. Fell, and at their first entrie into the gallery, A. W. being next to the dore, Dr. Fell said to the archbishop: 'If it please your grace, there is a master of arts' (pointing to A. W.) 'that you must take notice of. He hath done the Universitie a great deal of honour by a book that he hath written.' Whereupon the archb. comming towards him, A. W. kneeled downe, and he bless'd him, and laying his hand upon his shoulder when he was risen, spoke very kindly to him, and told him, that 'he was glad that there was such a person in the universitie, that had a generous mind to do such a work.' He bid him to proceed in his studies, that 'he should be encourag'd and want nothing that was equal to his deserts.'

*Afterwards the(y) all went downe into the common hall, where were divers bishops and persons of qualitie, and others that thrust in, besides the Oxford scholars that dined there. There was a high table went cross the upper end of the hall, and tables on each side, as in College halls. Sir Leolin Jenkins being then there, he laid his hands on A. W. and made him sit at the high table (wheras he should have sat<sup>1</sup> at one of the side tables with his contemporaries) between him and John Cook an under secretarie to the lord Arlington one of the chief secretaries of state. He was then exceedingly caress'd by all learned and good men, &c.

30 Sept., Thursday, Dr. John Parys, M.D., fellow of C.C.C., died and was buried in the choire at the head of Mr. <John> Claymond's monument<sup>3</sup>.

Beginning of Sept., Mr. John Nourse his wife died in Halywell ; buried at Wod-eaton.

About the beginning of this month, a certain person came from the East Indies aged 27 or thereabouts. He was borne in a certaine parish in London, a bastard ; and left, as they say, upon a stall. At 7 years of age he was had away to the East Indies, where in 20 years' time gaining a fair estate, came to see his native contry : and veiwing divers places in London, went at length to Bedlam and entring a hutch, a certaine woman had bin their 20 years. She, upon the sight of him, said 'he was her son upon the same token that he had a spot on his shoulder and left buttock.' Which upon examination being fond out that he was her son, she recovered her senses and he maintaines her. She was distracted upon the loss of him.

October.—†Oct. 1, F., <Henry> King, bishop of Chichester, dies ; vide Sander's Almanac 1671, character there. A proper handsome man ; made a great noise in his times in the University ; and <was> cried up for a celebrated preacher — yet died as an ordinary.

The verses in folio that came out about the beginning of this month, made by the University<sup>4</sup> on the death of the Queen mother<sup>5</sup>, was the first book that was printed in the Theatre, the first that was compleatly finished.

Oct. 7, Th., . . . Bishop, commoner of Wadham, son of collonel Bishop, sometimes of the King's party, died ; and was buried in the outer chapel. There was John Bishop son of Humphrey Bishop of *Oct. 22, F., the Delegacy for printing of books met between 8 and 9 in the morn. in <Anthony> Hall’s <sup>6</sup> house behind and northward of the schooles, at which were present Dr. Peter Mews the vicechancelour, Dr. John Fell, Dr. Thomas Yate, Dr. Thomas Barlow, Obadiah Walker, <Nathaniel> Alsop proctor &c. They sent for A. the city of Oxford granted to Thomas Wood chirurgeon a forty years’ lease of a tenement [heretofore called Tom Pun’s house, now <17—> the little printing house near the Theatre and behind the Schools] by the name of ‘their tower in the Town Wall.’ On 13 Sept. 1667, T. Wood conveyed the lease to Anthony Hall vintner; who on 23 Dec. 1667 conveyed it to the University. The house was one of those swept away at the erection of the Clarendon Building (1712).

he cites in his book, as also verba ipsa, 'the words themselves' of old MS. authors &c to be put in Italic character and thereby add to the authority of<sup>1</sup> the book. These proposalls, tho they were suddain to the author, yet he granted them their desires. They, it seems, had before been informed of the worth of the book by Mr. Obadiah Walker and Mr. William Stone the principal of New Inn, who some time before had been at the lodging of A. W. to see and peruse the book.

Mr. John Trappe, the eminent divine, of Warwickshire, died. He was of X<sup>t</sup> Ch. Aged 68.

<sup>9</sup> Wood cites his 'Catalogue of Barlow's MSS.' once or twice: I have not been able to identify it among his papers.

<sup>10</sup> the singular history of one of the Barlow MSS., as narrated by Wood in Wood MS. E 4, deserves to be put on record. The MS. is Roberti Grosstest 'Epistolae' beginning on p. 126 of 'bibl. Bodl. G. 8. 8. Th.' (press-mark cited by Wood), O.C. 6375 nunc MS. Barlow 49. Wood says:—'The said epistles were once in Cotton's library, but Dr. ⟨John⟩ Prideaux borrowing them from Sir Thomas Cotton, never restored them. So that after his ⟨Prideaux's⟩ death they came into the hands of Dr. ⟨Thomas⟩ Barlow of Queen's College (see my 'Catalogue of Dr. Barlow's MSS.' num. 9 p. 3) who bought them at Worcester, bound up with his ⟨Grosstest's⟩ Constitutions and with the leiger-book of Trinity College in Pontfract.'

Barlow had also some of Brian Twyne's notes. Wood in Wood MS. E 4 says:—'Mr. Twyne hath added a great deal to Sylvester Gyraldus' (Cambrensis) life in bishop ⟨Francis⟩ Godwin's "His-

'Ἀπόγραφον hoc ex MS. originali transcriptum est mense Jul. 1661: ipsum autem ἀντίγραφον conditum erat circa annum 1170.'

This transcript is written by severall hands and many mistakes are therein by the inadvertency of yong scribes. 'Tis continued by severall persons even till Thomas Bentham's time who became bishop there 1559. There is an imperfect succession of deanes also; the last deane there mentioned is John Ramridge. There is mention of the year 1575 and in the beginning he quotes John Rous and Baleus: soe that this author lived in Queen Elizabeth's time and composed this history from the antient history of Lichfield and its continuators. In the 1 page he quotes and seems to draw his historie from a book intituled 'de episcopis Merciensis ecclesiae, in archivis ecclesiae Lychfeldensis.']

All the inside of them was clearly consumed, and about 3 chambers on the south side of the bachelours quadrangle on the west side of the said lodgings consumed also. The lodgings also which Dr. <Sebastian> Smith lay in, joyning on the north side, were burnt and blowne up to prevent the<sup>4</sup> fier from going towards the quadrangle. That part of Dr. Smyth's lodgings took up the east side almost of the

me once; and I collected various matters thence which I entred into my Godwin 'de praesulibus' in margine. This is now in bibl. Bodl.' See MS. Bodl. 204; Macray's Annals of the Bodleian, p. 137.

30 Nov., T., at 5 in the morning, great store of thunder.

This month '*Oxford Jest*s' came out in 8<vo> (the<sup>4</sup> second time printed as I think) by one Capt. Will. Hicks, a native of Oxford. [It<sup>5</sup> was printed the 1<st> time about 1640]. He was born in St. Thomas parish. His mother was a whore, and her husband ran away from her. This Captain Hicks was tapster to old Williams at the Star Inne, afterwards a servant to . . . Lucas at Colchester. He lives now at Deptford and is a clark to a woodman. He got the name of 'Capt.' because he trained yong men there, when the king was restored.

This book occasioned divers others<sup>6</sup> of the like nature to come out: see Clavell's 'Cat(ologue) of Books' that I have.

Dec. 24, F., Christmas Eve, Henry Foulis, B.D. sub-rector of Lync. Coll. died inter horas 4 et 5 post prandium: buried . . . . He was the son of Sir Henry Foulis, B<sup>t</sup>, of Ingleby mannor in Yorkshire, brother to Sir David Foulis of the same place. He bore to his armes <sup>3</sup> 'azure, 3 bay leaves <erect> vert.'

Wood 579 (N. Besongne's 'L'estat de France,' Paris 1661; which Foulis had bought on 24 Oct. 1660); Wood 598 (Verstegan's 'Restitution of decayed English Antiquities,' Antwerp 1605; in which Foulis has written these verses (?) with the date 16 July 1651—

'Henricus si addis Foulis sit possessor honestus Hujus codiculi: nam mihi Βύρσα dedit.')

Wood 691 ('Cause of the greatness of cities'; from the Italian of Botero, Lond. 1635); Wood 732 ('Memorable Conceits of diverse noble and famous personages,' Lond. 1602); Wood 743 (W. Vaughan's 'Golden Grove,' Lond. 1600); Wood 276 A no. 292 ('Encouragement to builders and planters of Little Yarmouth,' Lond. 1668; which is endorsed 'Ffor Mr. Henry Foulis at Lincolne Colledge in Oxon'); Wood 416 no. 117, a broadsheet 'News from the Stage,' Lond. 1668, with the same endorsement.

From Foulis' library Wood obtained also two MSS. (a) O.C. 8479 ("Wood MS. F 21") 'Account of Sermons preached before the Long Parliament 1640-1648,' written by Foulis himself; (b) O.C. 8545 ("Wood MS. D 13"), a collection of papers chiefly referring to Winchester College, in which Wood notes that they were 'found in the library of Mr. Henry Foulis of Lincoln College, anno 1669,' and that he, on '7 Apr. 1681, gave to Roger Bartlet of Oxon for binding of this book, 6d.'

From Foulis' library Wood obtained also some smaller pieces in MS.; e.g. Thomas Cooper's 'Vindiciae templi Scti Pauli,' now in Wood MS. D 19 (2) with the note 'Antonii à Wood e musaeo Mri Henrici Foulis 1669.'

Dec. 27, M., 1669, Mr. Samuel Clark, squire bedell of Law and architypog<raphus> (the 1st archit<ypographus>) of the University, died in the morning; buried in Halywell chapel<sup>1</sup>. See his encomium in Dr. <Bryan> Walton's preface to his <Biblia> Polyglotta<sup>2</sup>. After Mr. Clerk's death Mr. <Francis> White<sup>3</sup> and Norton Bold stood for his place. Also Mr. <Thomas> Bennet<sup>4</sup> of X<sup>t</sup> Ch., the new corrector of the press, went gently about to ask votes—put on by Dr. <John> Fell. But Bold, who had bin put by when <Edmund> Gayton died, was elected<sup>5</sup> by the bibbing partie without any consideration had to one fit for the correction of <the> press, such as Mr. Clerk was. <Thomas> Bennett had 47 votes; Mr. <Francis> White of St. John's, 74; and <Norton> Bold, 89. This bedell's place is annexed by statute to the Architypographer's place. See more in Sam. Clark <in Ath.>

<Wood 533 (9) 'A treatise concerning the broken succession of the crown of England,' Lond. 1655, was bought by Wood in this year, having the note 'Antonii à Wood Oxon 1669.'>

<Wood, perhaps about this time, acquired several Roman Catholic tracts. Wood 279 A no. 121 is 'Formula indulgentiarum cum quibus S. D. N. Clemens Papa IX . . . benedicit . . .' on occasion of the canonization of SS. Peter de Alcantara and Mary Magdalene de Pazzis, 1669. Ibid., no. 120, is Pope Clement IX's condemnation of 'Rituel Romein du Pape Paul V,' a book in French printed at Paris, 1668.>

<In Wood MS. B 14 is a diary by Ralph Sheldon of his travels in France and Italy 1668, 1669: headed:—'For my owne memory I have here set downe what I observed most of note in my journey 1668.' Some few of the notes made at Rome may be put down here as showing how little the Papal court would listen to independent Catholic advice about English affairs and how there might be a Jesuit policy or plot kept secret from the general body of English Catholics.

'1669, Roma. Our queene Catherine<sup>4</sup> of England writt to Alexander the 7th a letter of submission, and he never answered that letter, being hindered by cardinal Pallavacin a Jesuite who sayd in his opinion the marriage was invalide: but when Mr. Pendricke mentioned that particular to this Pope Clement 9th hee answered "non habbia paura di questo."

that all the great Catholic families are under them and that no other priest is of any esteeme in England but they.

The Patres told an Italian gentleman who related it afterwards to Mr. Holt that "it would bee a daungerous thing for the Catholicks of England if religion should bee tolerated in that country." The same question, viz. whether it would not bee daungerous for the Catholick religion to have liberty of conscience in England, was asked Mr. Holt by the rectour of the English Colledge at Rome. It is evident that they have and will do all they can to hinder it in England because of their owne gaines and estates which they have already in England.

One Gerard an Irish priest is a servant to Cardinall Albizi and comes often to consult with the rectour of the English Colledge. A saying of an Irish priest that hee would obey the commaunds of Rome even to the crimen laesae majestatis.

"Better they should not be converted at all then not bee converted by one of ours," brother Gregory to Mr. Mason who had a mind to visit an Englishman in towne and the Colledge would not permitt him.

Remember to make Cressy take notice of Bartolus<sup>1</sup> his history where in every story that doth not relate to the Jesuites he conceales the names of priests and others, and magnifies the Patres to make people beleeve that all is done in England by them.

Mr. <Philip> Howard, Lord Almoner to the queene, endeavours in the Propaganda Fide to bee made bishop in England; Mr. Lesly is his agent.

The lady D. D. borrowed 200 crownes of one . . . , an Irish priest, at Bologna; and rather then repay that summe shee procured the archbyshopprick of Armach for <Oliver> Plunket by meanes of Cardinall Rospigliosi who would not bee at the Congregation that day but made Cardinall Chigi advance it; who when Barberin opposed that nomination told Cardinall Barbarin "it must be so." > *Jan. Upon the desire of Dr. Bathurst, president of Trinity college, A. W. did communicate to him part of the 'Hist. and Antiquities of the Universitie of Oxon'; but he being a most false person, did shew several parts of it to other persons, particularly to Anthony Etterick, somtimes a commoner of Trin. Coll., who accidentally came to give him a visit, who finding a passage therein, which reflected, as he thought, on the credit of Dr. John Bidgood, a physitian of the city of Exeter, he did forthwith acquaint him by letters.—Et hinc lachrymae, &c. Severall complaining letters he sent to Dr. Bathurst to have that passage expurg'd, wherein the author was very slightly mentiond, &c. See 'Ath. et Fasti Oxon.' vol. 2 p. 806. He the said Dr. Bathurst did also shew to Dr. John Wallis the memoire of his election to the custodie of the archives under the yeare 1657, as Dr. Wallis did afterwards intimate to the author; but when the Hist. or Annalls of the said University were printed, that memoire was omitted, because the Annalls reached no farther than the latter end of 1648. When the author also communicated to the said Dr. Bathurst his second book of the said historie, he dashed out many things relating to Trin. Coll.<sup>1</sup> and somthing of the epitaph of Dr. Robert Harris there: which epitaph Dr. Bathurst had made, but afterwards was asham'd of it.

*Now was A. W. put to a great deal of trouble to unravel his Histori, and make it fit for a Latin translation.

(1) He was to take several journeys to London and elsewhere to recover the copies of charters, bulls, and other matters, from the Tower and Sir John Cotton's library.

(2) He was to runn all over his English copie, to direct the translator where, and what space to leave for the said charters, &c. and whatsoever was to be represented in Italick character; which done, he was to enter them into the translation, with his owne hand.

(3) He was also to put all the quotations and marginal notes with his owne hands.

(4) He was to correct every sheet as it came from the press, and if the translator did omit any, he was to supply it.

*He was also, according to the desire of the delegacy, to write, while the translation was in doing, the lives of all the writers that he could obtaine, to be put in the respective colleges and halls, wherein the(y) had been bred; which accordingly he did, before the Historie and Annalls were work'd off. But this was not all; for, for the completion of this work, he was forced to send very many letters abroad, to his great charge<sup>1</sup>, for a Notitia of some of them. He also did, before the Annals (beginning <at> William the Conquerour) went to the press, write the history of the Black, Grey, Austin, White, Trinitarian, Crouched and Penitentiarian, fryers, amounting to about 10 sheets when printed, which were not in the English copie when it was sold to the Universitie. And this he did, because he knew full well, that the enumeration and characters of those many learned fryers, mention'd in the history of those orders, would make very much for the honour of the University of Oxon in forreign parts. His life, day and night, was in a continual agitation.

And A. W. being willing to see it, it was sent to him; so that he taking some pains about it, he soon after return'd the book to Mr. Hamer, with a loose paper containing some corrections and additions.

The author brought it, and Dr. Fell putting it into Peers's hands, he did then begin to translate. But so it was that he being to seek for a version that would please the Doctor, it was a long time before he could hit it, and the Doctor took much paines to instruct him, and would correct what he had done so much, that the translator would be forced to write his copie over twice, before it could go to the press. At length having obtained the knack of a right version to please the Doctor, he went forward with the work; yet all the proofs that came from the press went thro the Doctor's hands, which he would correct, alter, or dash out<sup>5</sup> or put in<sup>6</sup> what he pleased, which created

Wood says:—'Dr. Fell hath left out a great deal that I took thence concerning John Erigena, because he said oracles were ceased in his time.' Similarly, in describing there a MS. of Boetius 'de disciplina scholarium' (O.C. 1791 nunc MS. Digb. 190) Wood says:—'some say that Boetius is not the author of the

The prince of Aurange having been entertained by the University of Cambridg about the 24th of Nov. (vide Gazet), it was generally rumoured that he would shortly after see that of Oxon.

Dec. 6, Tuesday; the vicechancellor<sup>5</sup> having some dayes before received intelligence from London, that the prince would be at Oxon the 8th of the said month, a Convocation was held at eight of the clock in the morning to appoint delegates to make orders for his reception.

delegates were stuck up in the refectory of each Coll. and Hall in the morning to the end that the students of each degree might know what they were to doe at his comming.—At night about 4 of the clock, the prince was accordingly expected from Windsore, but came not; the reason for it is not unknowne.

Dec. 18, Sunday, came news to the vicechanc. that the prince would be in Oxon the next day at night, he being then, as 'tis said, at Windsore; whereupon the delegates meet in the Apodyterion<sup>1</sup> after sermon in the afternoon for the ordering of his reception.

Dec. 19, Monday, between three and four of the clock in the afternoon, St Marie's great bell rung out, according as the said orders directed. Whereupon all the degrees of the Universitie met there in their formallities. That being done, the vicechancellor and 'procuratores<sup>2</sup> deputati' (mentioned in the said orders) drew them thence up the street to Carfax and thence to Ch. Ch. great gate, placing them one by one on each side of the way.—That done, the Masters followed in their formallities and made up the passage from St Marie's dore to the Bachelours who began their standing somewhat below Allhallowes church. That done, a lighted torch between every six or eight of the scholars on each side of the way was placed, it being by the time almost dark. Afterwards the vicechanc. with the Doctors came out of St Marie's in their scarlet and stood at the dore to expect the prince's comming. A little before this, the mayor of the citie with his brethren in their scarlet gownes had placed themselves just within the East Gate on each side of the way, together with the present ballives in their scarlet and those that had boren that office in their black fur'd gownes.

At a little past four of the clock, the prince and his retinew (drawne in three coaches with six horses apiece, saving one) with one of the king's trumpeters before them, approaching the East Gate, the recorder of the citie, with the maior on his right hand, stept forth and spake a short English speech to him: which being done, they presented him with a rich pair of fring-gloves and a dozen of white-kid. From thence comming up the street, not without applause or hummings after him by the vulgar of the towne, made a stop at St. Marie's church dore, where the vicechancellor delivering a short oration to him, passed thence with divers hums after him through the scholars to Carfax and thence to Ch. Ch. ; where alighting out of his coach, another speech was spoken to him by the deane <sup>1</sup>. Which being done, was conducted into the deane's lodgings, where he and his retinew supped and lodged that night.

The next morn (Tuesday, Dec. 20) about ten of the clock, the prince, his retinew, the vicechancellor and bedles, went in sevrall coaches (borrowed of some of the Heads of Houses, for their owne were all dirty with travelling the day before) to visit these places following, viz.,

1. Corp. C. Coll., the gates of which though open, yet none of (that) house appeared to receive him.

2. Merton Coll., where the fellowes receiving him at the common gate, one of them named Mr. John Bateman spake a very eloquent oration before him.

3. The physick garden, where (Jacob) Bobart the gardiner also received him with a Dutch complement.

4. Magdalen Coll., where the president and fellows being all in their formalities in the chappel, the said president <sup>2</sup> at his entrance therein harangued it before him ; which being done, the organs played so long as he was veiwing the chappel ; and then saw the great quad-rangle.

6. Universitie Coll., where Mr. (William) Pindar speecht it.

7. Allsoules, where Mr. Alan Carre did the like.

8. Brasenose, where Mr. Richard Duckworth, the vice-principall, did the like ; the societies of which places with their Heads being there present.

9. to Oriel Coll., where Mr. (John) Wilcox, one of the fellowes, speecht it.

All which being done, he went to Ch. Ch. about eleven of the clock to prayers, being there placed in the Bishop's chaire, with Dr. (Henry) Compton by him in his scarlet to direct him in the service.

When the said prayers were about half done, the bell rung out to Convocation, which was to begin at twelve of the clock. Where-upon the scholars meeting at St. Marie's church were marshalled by the 'procuratores deputati' on both sides of the way leading from Ch. Ch. gate by Oriel to St. Marie's and from thence to Cat Street by All Soules corner and thence to the great gate of the Schooles. In the meane time the Doctors meeting at St. Marie's also, and putting on their scarlet, went to the Cathedrall where the prince was at prayers; and after service was finished, they conducted him and his retinew to the Schooles through the passage that the scholars had made, and thence through the quadrangle (where the Masters had made a passage also) to the library, where being arrived Mr. (Thomas) Hyde the library keeper spoke a speech to him.

The vicechancellor leaving him there with certaine of the Doctors, went with his bedells to the Theater, and settled every degree in its proper place, being assisted therein by the 'procuratores deputati.'

That being done, the vicechancellor settled himself in his chaire, with a desk before him, set a little beneath that of the prince, somewhat on the right, having the said desk covered with black velvet, with a cushion thereon of the same, and on the said cushion King Charles I his works in two vol. finely bound and gilt, with blew strings to them, lac't with gold at the ends. Behind the vicechancellor was a chaire of state set for the prince, having a desk and cusheon thereon of blew velvet lac't, before him.

When the vicechancellor was settled in his chaire, he rose up and told the company the reason<sup>1</sup> of that Convocation. Which being done, the proctors of the University, who sate by him in their chaires, as in congregation and convocation, read a letter or two from the chancellor<sup>2</sup> and then proposed certaine dispensations for the prince and his retinew<sup>3</sup> to be created Doctors (which were granted) and for others<sup>4</sup> somtimes of this University to be created Doctors and Masters also, which was with great murmurings granted. After that the questions to be disputed foreign titles, is found in MS. Bodl. 594, pp. 59–62. It was signed 'G., Prince d'Orange' and docketed 'By his highness' command, Charls Cottrell.' The lists are given with sufficient fulness in Wood's Fasti sub anno 1670.

Which done, the Prince of Orange who was putting on his scarlet in the Apodyterium entered the Convocation in the Theater.'

on, with verses on them which were printed<sup>1</sup> were scattered by the vicechancellor and others among the masters and others present.

This being done and all things made ripe for the prince's reception, the bedells and certaine doctors went out of the Theater to fetch in the prince, who had been for some time in the Divinity Schoole putting on his scarlet robes. At length comming in at the great dore, the University musicians standing at one end of the musick gallery, plaid one<sup>2</sup> the wind musick till he came to the bottome of the ascent going up to his chaire. And making a stop, and the musick ceasing, Dr. <Thomas> Bouchier of All Soules, deputy professor of the Civill Law, took him by the left hand (he being bare, but the prince covered with his plush cap) and presented him with an eloquent oration to the Convocation. Which being done, the vicechancellour standing bare, made another whereby he was created Dr of the Civill or Imperiall Lawes, and then took him by the arme and led him up to his chaire of state, wherin, so long as the assembly continued, he sate.

All this being done, his retinew were created Doctors, some of Civill Law, some of Physick; and after them some that had been of the University. When these had taken their places, the vicechancellour bid the Orator doe his office.

After that was ended, which lasted a quarter of an hour, the vicechancellor made a speech to the prince and then presented to him in the name of the University King Charles the First his works in two vol. richly bound and gilt.

That being concluded, there were disputations performed by three Masters, the respondent was Mr. <Richard> Old of Ch. Ch. and the two opponents Mr <William> Porter of Trinity and Mr. . . . Russell of Magd. Coll., junior<sup>3</sup>; the moderators, Mr. <Daniel> Harford of Magd. Coll. and Mr. Trimbull<sup>4</sup> of Ch. Ch., being then pro-proctors.

After disputations, the vicechancellor made a concluding speech, and so dissolved the Convocation. Then the prince walking forth, while the musitians played againe on their wind-musick, went to the Divinity School and disrobed himself. Thence going to his coach standing at the great gate of the Schooles, was expected by Dr. <Benjamin> Rogers and his company in the Musick Schoole; but the vicechancellour putting him not in mind of it, went forthwith to St. John's to dinner, where the vicechancellour at his owne charges gave him and his retinew a noble dinner. Before dinner (or after), he saw the College and their library; and upon his looking on King Charles' statue<sup>1</sup> in the inner quadrangle, one . . . Marsh, a little gentleman commoner, spake a speech to him.

After dinner, about five of the clock, he went out the back way from St. John's on foot to Wadham Coll., where the warden and fellowes receiving him at the gate, Mr. William Thornton, one of that society, speecht it before him. Thence he went in his coach to New Coll., where the fellowes receiving him at the gate in their surplices, Mr Seth Ward of that society speecht it. Which being done he heard evening service there, being the eve of St<sup>t</sup> Thomas the Apostle; and after that went out the back way, thinking to call at Queen's Coll.: but the fellowes being at supper and the gates shut, he went to his lodging at Ch. Ch., being then about six of the clock.

*Feb. 21, T., a conference or delegacy held in the lodgings of Dr. John Lamphire, principal of Hart hall; where were present Dr. John Fell; Dr. John Lamphire, and Sir Sampson White, justices of the peace; Georg Napier, gent., chief tenant to Merton Coll., in Halywell; Robert Whitehall, subwarden of Mert. Coll., and Anthony Wood of the said Coll., masters of arts. This conference was in order for a course to be taken, that the towne ditch, on the east side of New Coll. wall, be drayn'd, that buildings may be erected on it, and that the owners of the said buildings repaire the way lying before their doores, viz. that way between the said ditch and Magd. ground towards the east runs the towne ditch, which now is overrun with mud and filth and is an occasion of stench and noysomness to the place : it is proposed that the said wast ground be built upon with houses<sup>1</sup> four stories in height of stone work and that the inhabitants of the said houses be obliged to preserve the said ditch clean from filth and the present<sup>2</sup> nuisance, as also to keep the whole high way before their houses in good repair ; provided that the said ditch be removed to the opposite ditch toward Magd. Coll. wall and thence carried downe to the river and wall'd on both sides and covered and set in sufficient repair without the charg and expence of the possessors of the said wast ground above mentioned or inhabitants of the houses to be built. To the supporting of the charg of the removall of the said ditch and the covering of it from the river to the utmost extent of the wast ground aforesaid, it is offered that Holliwell parish and Merton College be pleased to contribute in proportion to the ease and advantage they will receive by this alteration, and it is further offered that the gentlemen and others who are well-wishers to the publick in the University and city be moved to contribute to the said work. June.—June 1, Holythursday, St. Peter's (in the East) parishioners came a processioning and took in<sup>4</sup> half Alban hall. Mr. (Robert) Whitehall (the subwarden) and I therefore went to forbid them, telling them that the cross should be made by the principall's dore. Whereupon old Paine and severall antient men said that they time out of mind made it there: whereas, anno 1660, 61 and 62, they made it on Dr. (Thomas) Lamplughe's<sup>5</sup> dore; and so they did in the broken times—which I will take my oath of.

*Whereas the parishioners of S. [In the yeare<sup>1</sup> 1671 on Holy Thursday, being then the 1st of June Mr. Robert Whitehall (the subwarden of Merton College), my selfe, and another fellow, went into Alban hall at what time the parishioners of St Peter in the East were making and renewing their cross and their wee did publickly denye them and prohibit them for so doing, averring that in the yeares 1660, 61, and 62, they made their cross on the east side of the principall's lodgings. Also that by the tradition of one person then living, namely Thomas Burnham, who lived in this parish (S. John Bapt.) from 1625 to 1670 but then lived in St. Aldate's parish, they did make their cross at the said place before-mentioned annis 1640 and 1641, at what time they omitted processioning. But the company being numerous wee could have nothing but clamouring answers. However we desired the company to take notice that wee had then prohibited them for the future—Ant. à Wood.—But notwithstanding our prohibition, they (the parishioners of S. Peter in the East) came yearely to make their cross in the place before mentioned<sup>2</sup>.]

fight anno 1651, and Thomas Vincent alias Vincent Sadler, another Benedictin monk, were in Oxon, to see, as it seems, the solemnity of the Act. Their lodging was in Allsaints parish, in the back-side housing called Amsterdam. Mr. Timothy Nourse of Univ. Coll. being acquainted with them, he conducted A. W. to their company: where he heard Mr. Huddleston (who in 1651 had been chaplayn to a Rom. Cath. gent. called Mr. Thomas Whitgrave, living at Moseley in Staffordshire) tell all the particulars, that passed between his majestie and him during his stay there, with very great delight. A. W. desir'd him then, for posterity sake, that he would committ to writing what he knew of that affaire; which he promised me he would. This is the same Mr. Huddleston, who gave the extreame unction to King Charles 2, when he lay on his death bed.—You may see many things of this Mr. Huddleston in a book entit. 'Boscobel.'

Soone after Mr. Shel(don) came to Oxon (July 20, Th.); and the next day in the morn(ing) went to Roger Sheldon's chamber at Ch. Ch. to desire him to goe with him to find me out. They therfore came to my lodgings about 10 in the morn(ing) (21 Jul., F.) and enquired for me. But being not at home (for I was <at> the publick library) they went to Merton Coll. and enquired there. Afterwards they came to my lodgings againe and Mr. Sh(eldon) left word that when I came in that they should tell me that such a person was to look after him, that he had a mind to be acquainted with him, and that I should find him at the Miter. Wherefore<sup>2</sup> preparing my self in as good order as I could, I went to him at the Miter, where I found Sir Littlel(on) Osbaldeston<sup>3</sup> and Sir Tho(mas) Peniston with him. He came out to me, saluted me very kindly, and told me he had been lately with Mr. Cressy who remembered him to me and had sent me a book but that book was put up in his portmantue but he would send it next week. He then told me that he had a great love for antiquity<sup>4</sup> and that if I had occasion for any cut in my book he would give me one. This was the beginning of our acquaintance. And seeing the person sought after and desired my acquaintance, I could not in conscience and civilitie draw back. See his letters. Church, and desir'd him to go with him to find out A. W. They therefore came to his lodging about 10 in the morn. of that day, and enquir'd for him; but being not at home (for he was at the public library) they went to Merton Coll. and enquired there, but non est inventus. About a quarter of an hour after they came againe, and left worde that when A. W. came home, they (the servants) should tell him that one Mr. Sheldon was to enquire after him, that he had a mind to be acquainted with him, and that he should find him at the Miter Inn &c. About XI of the clock A. W. returnd home and receiving the errand from the servants, he put himself in order and went to him at the Miter, where he found with him Sir Littleton Osbaldeston and Sir Thomas Penyston with him. Upon notice given that A. W. was there, he came out of his chamber, talk'd kindly with him at the stair-head, told him he had been lately at London with Mr. Cressey, who remembered his service to him, and had sent to him a book, but it being put up into his cloak-bagg he could not let him have it at that time till he came home, and then he would send it by the carrier, which he did. Mr. Sheldon then told A. W. that he had a great love for the study of antiquity, and that if he had any occasion for a cut, or cuts, to put into his book, he would freely give him one or more.— This was the beginning of the acquaintance between Mr. Sheldon and A. W. And seeing that he sought after him and desired his acquaintance, he could not in civilitie denie him, &c. Now Mr. Sheldon being a zealous Papist, and A. W. afterwards being often in his company, must be esteem'd a Papist also, as he was by many sniveling saints, who make it a most horrible thing to<sup>1</sup> be seen in the company of any one of them.

To this end Dr. John Fell, Thomas Yate, and other heads, perceiving that Timothy Wilkins squire bedell of Divinity was not long lived, procured the king's letters dated Su. 17 Sept. this yeare 1671 'to translate Norton Bold therunto, and to choose a knowing person well experienced in the mechanick part of printing and well knowing in the tongues.' to have it printed there, and to be by him corrected. In the ninth page of it are these words—

“Note likewise that the foundations of the Colleges of the Universities, especially of Oxford, are for the most part mistaken, either in point of time or names of the founders, which I attempted not alwaies to rectify, both in that it exceeded my skill, and chiefly because the Historie of that Universitie, as I am inform'd, is now in the press, which will cleare those mistakes, with much certainty and satisfaction, being performed by the hand of that faithfull and most industrious searcher of antiquities, Mr. Anthony Wood of Merton Coll., &c.”

There was more that followed of A. W. but A. W. scor'd it out—January <167½>: the said ‘Animadversions’ were called in and silenc'd in the beginning of Jan. by Dr. Mews, the vicechancellor, because therein, p. 30, 'tis said, that the word ‘conventicle’ was first taken up in the time of Wickliff.

<sup>3</sup> this Thomas Gilbert was one of the persons from whom Wood collected his jests, the two following, in Wood MS. E 32 fol. 28 b, being marked as from 'Th. Gilb. SS. T. baccal.'—'A Bachelor of Art of Lync. Coll., who was a suter to one Mrs Hanksy (Hancksey) a faire virgin of Oxon, would needs course in the Schools Sr (since Dr.) <Daniel> Featlie of C. C. Coll. ; but the bachelor seing that he was like to be worsted, flung away and cried (Dr. Featly's father was cook of Magd. Coll. and after of C. C. C.) :—"Tu es coquus, tu es coquus." Featly returned :—"Tu es procus : et in hoc differt coquus a proco quod coquus accedit ad ignem huncce, procus vero ad ignem hancce."—'Mr. <John> Prichet of Edmund Hall was much in love with Cate Hill, daughter to the cook of Qu. Coll., but upon what account I know not he brok off and fell in love with one Mrs Silly, wherupon the wits made this vers (spoken by Mr. Cleaver, a blind preacher of Edmund Hall) :—

"Incidit in Scillam qui vult vitare Catehillam."

However at length he married Cate Hill and was at length bishop of Gloucester ; in which office he died 1680, aet. 76.' Wood adds :—'Mrs Silly was a widdow, and I remember her when I was a boy, but better her daughter "Fidelia the fair," wife of Gamaliel Clarkson, sometimes scholar of C. C. Perhaps it comes from the eating of fruit not kindly ripe. Some say it is infectious but I beleive not. Some of Xt. Ch. (about 5 or 6) died: none in Merton: some in Oriel. Yong scholars glad of it that they might have excuses to goe home. John Pit <and> Dr. <John> Beeby died (quaere <of this disease>) mense Octob.

Of <sup>5</sup> this desease, 3 of Ch. Ch. died, 1 of Magd., never an one in St. John's, Merton, Brasnose, Allsoules, Universitie; 1 in New Coll.; 1 in C. C. C., 1 in Oriel.

†Mar. 13, Th., proclamation against Papists: Gazet vol. 3, 1672, num. 764.

M., Mar.<sup>1</sup> 17, 167 $\frac{2}{3}$ : Dr. <John> Fell, deane of Xt Ch. sent for me. I could not come but I wrot a note to this effect:—

'Sir, I desire if you please to meet me at Dr. Yates at any time this day, or if you please I shall come with Dr. Yates to your lodging. I forsee stormes a coming, and 'tis fit I should prevent them,' &c.

After this he sent for me to dine with him, I told the man that I was to go to Magd. Coll. to the president, but I would meet him at Dr. Yates' lodging at one of the clock. At one I came, and there he was. He set upon me after a verie foule rate; all which I scarce remember, but the most part was this:—'How [came<sup>2</sup> it] that he sent for me so many times, and I did not come.' I told him 'I was busy at Magd. Coll.' He told me 'I was a verie uncivill fellow'; and then plucked out of his pocket the aforesaid note, 'that "I should meet him" forsooth, and I not come to his lodgings.' I told him 'I did not care, and would not come or run the chapter through uncivill people' (I meant, grinning in Peckwater's Inn, which he understood well enough). <He said> that 'I was also uncivill and did not come when he sent for me.' I asked 'what he had to do to send for me'; he said nothing. I told him 'if the vicechancellor sent for me I would come, or if the head of my college sent for me I would come, but I was not bound to come at his command: my cheif desire was at that time, that I might have security given that I writ a preface wherin I might apologize aud excuse myself for what the translator hath <done<sup>3</sup>>.' Further also, that 'I wrot the book that it might be a way to faciliat<sup>4</sup> preferment for me; but now forseeing that it might be a ruine, I might have liberty to write a preface.'

All this he denied, and said 'I should; but then the translator should another'; so that if I write truth that rogue must contradict me.

He commanded my copie to be delivered; I denied it unless they would satisfie me for what I had done: and then <he> told me that 'they would have it of me, or else turne me out of towne.' I told them 'they should not: I was a native and borne there to an estate and I would not,' etc.

<He said> that 'I kept drunken company and they had infused matters into my head against them.' I s(c)orned his words and told him 'twas false. He meant Greenwood<sup>1</sup>.

+March 17, M., Dr. <John> Fell's mangling<sup>2</sup> 'Hist. et Antiq. Oxon'; something of it to be brought in here.

<The note which Wood desired to be introduced here can be supplied by the inspection of Wood's copy of the 'Hist. et Antiq. Univ. Oxon,' Wood 430<sup>3</sup>. (i) Insertions. Hundreds of lines and paragraphs, especially in the earlier sheets and in the years of the Civil War, are marked as inserted by Dr. Fell. Notes abound to such effect as:—'This doth not follow my English copie,' 'no such thing in my English copie,' 'Dr. F., no such thing in my English copie,' 'I have no such matter in my English copie and whosoever put it in did very ignorantly.' In particular Wood notes on 'the map concerning the fortifications of Oxon' (lib. I, p. 362) that 'the names of the streets, lanes, and other places are false and I had no hand in it or knew anything of it till 'twas done.' (ii) Omissions. Notes of this sort abound:—'here<sup>4</sup> is a great deal omitted by the meanes of Dr. Fell,' 'here<sup>5</sup> is a great deal left out by the meanes of Dr. Fell because he said oracles were ceased,' 'something omitted by Dr. Fell and this put in its place,' 'a great deal blotted out here by Dr. Fell,' 'something scored out by Dr. Fell.' (iii) Alterations. A few alterations are noted with wrath. E. g. in an inscription<sup>6</sup> in lib. II, p. 53 Wood wished to follow the stone, but 'Dr. Fell altered this from the originall because as he said that was false—which note.'

The translator also, Richard Peers, comes in for blame, Wood noting:—'Peers his doing,' 'this also is omitted by the translator,' 'all this to be put in Roman but because I put it in was therefore forsooth by the meanes of Mr. Peers to the deane of Ch. Ch. put in Italic,' 'here and in 500 places more you may see what mischief the translator hath done,' 'to that effect did I correct that sheet when it came to my hands but when I returned it, the translator made it as 'twas before wherby fell out a great mistake.'

Two heads of houses had also interfered with the book. Wood had expressed marginal notes in it, many of which have been mutilated by the binder.

himself more freely about the forged (Lewis de Chapyrnay) charter of University College than the Master of Univ. (Obadiah Walker) appreciated, and Wood notes 'much here of the English omitted by the business of Mr. Walker.' And in lib. II, p. 301 when Wood wished to print Robert Harris' epitaph as it stood ('per decennium hujus collegi praeses eternum celebrandus') the words 'eternum celebrandus' were struck out, Wood noting 'these words were put out by Dr. <Ralph> Bathurst because he made it.'

The compositor also has his conduct noted: e. g. in lib. I, p. 104 col. 1 at the end—'This to be put in Italic but Mr. Gallot would not do it.'

[167 $\frac{2}{3}$ , 21 March<sup>1</sup>, F., Owen Loyd de com. Merioneth, Bac. of Arts of Oriel College died; buried the next day, not in Oriel College chapel but in S. Marie's church as I am informed. So the register of that church.]

I was not then there, and therfor cannot give the particulars: all that I heard of was—that 'there was nothing so<sup>6</sup> antique, nothing so undervalued among the generality of people, but I made use of it for the honor of my mother the University of Oxon.' I desired by a freind to have a copie of as much as concerned me, but was denied.

The chancellor desires that he may be B.A., performing his exercise, to compute his time from his matriculation in Cambridge. The chancellor desires, ‘When so many run away from the church that you would think fit to encourage one who addresseth himself a free and thorough convert.’

There was some clamouring against this, as I remember; and Mr. Ralph Rawson of Brasenose much opposed it, insomuch <that> he got the ill will of Dr. John Fell, and Dr. Ralph Bathurst. Fanaticks to be encouraged and loyallists rust.

July.—[T., 8 July<sup>3</sup> 1673, Mr. Henry Heylyn of Minster Lovell, his son, lent me the MS. of Dr. Peter Heylyn's life written by himself to Apr. 8, 1645.]

July<sup>4</sup> 14, M., Mr. <John> Shirley, the Terrae filius, of Trinity College, appeared and spoke a speech full of obscenity and prophaneness. Among the rest that he reflected upon, was me<sup>5</sup> and my book: that I made it my employment to peere upon old walls, alters, tombes &c.; that I threated to geld the translator for gelding my booke; that I should say that he had altered my book so much that I did not know whether it was French or Latin; that I perused all privy houses to furnish me with matter to write my book (i. e., meaning from the shitten papers); and when all was done, my book was but fit to returne there againe, etc. But so obscure and dull it was, that few could understand who he meant or what, and therefore had no applause: all looked upon Dr. Wallis, but none upon me who sate within two places (?) of him (one of Peers' low drunken company). But this was my comfort, that what he had uttered to my great disgrace, the vicechancellor in his concluding speech recruited all againe for upon speaking of the eminent men that have sprung from the University, he said that he would leave it (being too long to recite) to a book that would lately come forth<sup>6</sup>.

'Ulterius in luna itineranti occurrebat mihi (nescio quo fato) vir quidam hujus senescentis mundi, quem ex obsoletâ facie et tritis vestibibus putavi fuisse antiquarium. At quid negotii antiquario in novilunio? Certe nihil potuit illic observare, nisi quod luna (sicut ille studet) aliquando retro movetur; sed cum librum editurus sit die 27 Septembris, stylo veteri, de omnibus antiquitatibus, credo illum in cœlum conscendisse pro antiq̄uis lunis. Hic priscus vir habitat in prisco cubiculo grandævi collegii Mertonensis, qui adeo gaudet murorum fragmentis et ruinis ut vereatur collegium ne totum diruat ædificium, ut ille inter ruinas versetur et monumenta: sed cum adeo senectutem adoret, et venerandam canitiem, miror ego quid ille sicarios homines tam sæpe aggreditur, et corporum fabricas demoliri studet? nam dicam vobis, cum doctissimus ejus libri translator<sup>a</sup> superfluas frivolasque quasdam partes exsecuit et librum fecerit eunuchum, profecto ille statim stricto cultro frivolas illius partes amputaret, et ipsum castraret castratorem, imò parum abfuit quin illum jugulaverit; quum viderit librum suum (ut vocat) ex Anglico sermone in alienam linguam traductum, ille juravit typographos Gallos<sup>b</sup> non tantum librum impressisse, sed etiam Gallicâ Linguâ donasse; et sane cum dicunt præ-Adamitæ illum fuisse optimè doctum plusquam quatuor mille abhinc annis, non mirum est illum Latinitatis oblivisci, et modernas linguas nescire; sed potissima causa rixandi cum typographis fuit libri impressio, nam dixit se nolle ut excudetur, quia topographia est moderna inventio. Audivi hunc virum merdarum sentinas frequentare, et chartas ibidem sparsas consulere, sed nescio ob quem finem, nisi ut exinde materiam libri colligeret. Et profecto ut tam putidum ortum habuit, sic spero et exitum, utpote solummodo dignus qui ad abstergendum podicem damnetur. Hunc antiquarium maxime abominantur vetulæ, quia timent, ne illarum picturas libro præfigat; sed quidni suam propriam imaginem? nam cum sit adeo ruinosa et exæsa ut ferè naso careat et auriculis, certe antiquitatem satis redolet et præ se fert. <sup>1</sup> the words in square brackets are a later addition. Dr. Bliss cites the following letter to Dr. Thomas Turner, president of C. C. C., as evidence that Wood was not exaggerating the passionate temper of Dr. Levinz:—

'Reverend sir,

I thought it would not be unacceptable to you, to have an account of what has happened here since you left this place; we are told that the business of All Souls has had two hearings before my lord of Canterbury, where Mr. Proast persists in denying the warden having any right to that place: there is nothing yet determined. On Wednesday night Magd. coll. chapel was robbed of a great part of their communion plate, by some that must needs know the college well: 'tis supposed they lodged themselves in the chappel at nine o'clock prayers, and came out at the great doors which are only bolted on the inside; they did not meddle with the great plate that stood on the altar table, but took what was in a chest in the vestry to the value of about thirty pounds. There is no discovery made yet. The same night some maliciously destroyed all the young plantation in St. John's grove, notice of which being given to Mr. president yesterday morning, he called the fellows together to consider of ways to find out the offenders, when he raised himself in some heat in passionately talking, and suddenly fell back in his chair stone dead. One of the fellows had a lancet, and endeavoured, but could not, make him bleed; messengers were immediately sent to Dr. Delaune and Mr. Lowth. Mr. Torriano is upon the place, and 'tis thought, if the two former do not accommodate the matter between themselves, the latter will bid fair for the place, he having a great interest among the junior fellows. Mr. Hudson is gone to London to appear for the lecture. Mr. Creech it is thought will do so too. I do not hear of any other yet. You may expect further trouble if any thing happens worth your notice. From, Sir, Your most obedient servant Will. Sherwin. March 4th, 1697-8.'

Coll., but Dr. Fell would by force have him here': see also in the Athenae sub nomine Robert Hues. A still greater grievance in Wood's eyes was that Fell insisted on inserting a list of bishops of Oxford (lib. ii. p. 291) for the honour of Ch. Ch., Wood object-ing probably because he had planned such a list in his City volume (Clark's Wood's City of Oxford, ii. p. 8). Wood says:—'When all Ch. Ch. was composed, a humor took Dr. Fell to have the bishops in. I told him 'twas not a proper place, and I could not do it. He said he would have them, and if I would not draw up a discourse of them he would do it himself. Therefore in an houre's time or therabouts I did it.'

Su., Dec.<sup>4</sup> 21, St. Thomas day; Mr. Richard Reeves, schoolmaster of Magd., who had been a long time suspected a Papist, did, upon the president's warning, leave his place. It arose from a letter sent 6 weeks before from Dr. Lloyd of Reading to Dr. Fell: the sense of which was that he had perverted Sr ⟨Walter⟩ Harris<sup>5</sup> of New Coll.; that he had defended in a letter sent to Mr. Harris his brother (chaplain to Sir. . . Rich of Sunning) St. Austen the monk his not consenting or knowing of the death of the monks of Bangor mentioned in Bede's History, but that St. Austen was dead before that time. This was also in vindication of Mr. Cressy in his History, who saith the like. The report afterwards ran about that he had a pension allowed him to gaine proselytes; that he had converted all his acquaintance 60 in number. He had received the sacrament according to the Rom. way, at Mr. Napier's, 1667.

Dec. 22, M., upon Mr. Reeves his turning out, which was ⟨F., Dec.⟩ 19, Mr. ⟨Richard⟩ Browne, of New College, this morning came to me and told me from others that Mr. Reeves not only perverted Mr. Walter Harris, but had a stipend from the Catholicks yearly to pervert or reconcile others.

Within two houres after, about 1 of the clock in the afternoon, my brother Kit came and told me the report that I was generally taken for a Papist, but told me noe body that would impeach me.

Citation stuck up this Xtmass (on the Eve<sup>4</sup>, I think) to call Mr. <Timothy> Nurse home, and if he doth not come at the appointed time, he is to be denounced<sup>5</sup> 'non-socius.' [Mr.<sup>6</sup> Nourse, a vain-glorious man, conceited of his worth; ambitious of Dr. <Robert> South's acquaintance, had it therupon; acted <h>im in his speech and action in the pulpit, taken notice of all, and South (himself a false fellow) reported to be his sordid imitator<sup>7</sup>.]

Mr. Timothy Nurse also this Xtmass was denounced 'non-socius' of University Coll. Vide Almanac 1677, in Oct.

All this arised from the tirannicall Act of Parliament lately made, viz. that any one that hath any office of trust military or civill, should subscribe and take the sacrament—which they<sup>9</sup> refused.

Much about Xtmass this year died Dr. Thomas Browne prebendary of Windsore. They say he hath some History or Chronicle coming out.

This year the parliament proceeded very high, as the<sup>10</sup> heads of those Acts they treated of shew; much like the proceedings of the parliament 1641. Much against the Papists, as by those Acts of subscribing and receiving, the<sup>11</sup> omission of either of which makes them incapable of enjoying any military or civill employment.

[At<sup>5</sup> the end of the Congregation book that begins XI Oct. 1669 this is entred concerning examinations:—

Wheras of late many of the examiners are used to make triall of their candidates' abilities by putting them to render an English proverb by a Latine one: which, though themselves may have thought on before hand, yet it is not obvious for every candidate to do extempore, and whether they hit or miss the Master seems ofttimes more satisfied with his owne question than carefull of the scholar's answer;

<sup>5</sup> note in MS. Bodl. 594, p. 67: Bathurst became vice-chancellor in Oct. 1673, and these instructions were probably issued soon after. See supra p. 271.

It is therefore desired for the future that the examiners doe (as the custome was, and the statute more especially recommends) 'porrigere dialogum seu colloquium familiari lingua vernacula conscriptum' or else propose either in writing or by distinct and leisurely pronunciation some sentence or other peice of plaine and familier English which the candidates are to express in Latine as elegantly or at least grammatically as they can.

Also it is desired that the Greek which they propose to be construed into Latine may be reached forth to the candidats in a book, or else in a paper legibly written, that so they <may> more distinctly read and comprehend it.

Also that the examiners do not wholly insist upon questions by quid and quotuplex but try their candidates a little out of the common road, by making some objection or otherwise proposing something to them which they cannot ordinarily forsee.

Ra. Bathurst, vice-chancellor.]

Somerset, ever fruitfull in good wits, and happy in many worthy schoolmasters, among which Thomas Farnabie (anagram 'Bainrafe') was one, who had his beginning here but at that time went under the disguised name of Thomas Bainrafe for a reason not meet to be mentioned here. In the year 1646 when Mr. Charls Darby was called to teach the grammer schoole at Martock, he found many of his scholars, ingenious men and good grammarians, even in their grey haire. It is a report there that when Mr. Bainrafe landed in Cornwall, his distress made him stoop so low as to be an A. b. c. darian and severall were taught their hornbook by him. In some of the first works of the man Thomas Bainrafe hath been subscribed. And report saith that in the late warrs his son being a colonell in the king's armie assumed that name also. Thomas Farnabie having gotten some feathers at Mertock took his flight to London and there in little time threw of his visor and appeared like himself.—Thus in a letter from Charls Darby, master of Martock schoole, T., 21 Apr. 1674.—It is to be observed that according to report from some in our College, that Thomas Farnabie, being Mr. Frenches (Thomas French, soc. coll. Mert.) postmaster and servitor, ran away at about 2 or 3 years standing and was a soldier in the Low Countries; and being weary of that employment, came againe into England verie poore and bare, and so perhaps may arrive into some seaport towne in the west.]

<sup>2</sup> Wood's 'Historia et Antiquitates Univ. Oxon.' being now through the press, he had leisure to stroll in the country and loll about in the fields.

<sup>3</sup> But Wood, on the strength of it, from this time forward began to call himself 'historiographer of the University of Oxford.' And when the prospectus of his Athenae (found in Wood 651 no. 814) came out in 1690, it ran:—'Proposals for printing Athenae Oxonienses and Fasti Oxonienses, both written by the famous Antiquary and Historiographer Anthony à Wood, M.A., author of the History and Antiquities of the University of Oxford.' Wood's dissatisfaction with the Latin version of his History of the University is, however, plainly shown by the fact that soon after its publication he began to re-write the whole in English: this version is the 'English Copy' or 'English History' frequently cited by Wood in his Diary notes. It appears to have existed in three forms:—(a) the first draft, referred to by Wood as his 'foulest copy.' This is, no doubt, now destroyed, though fragments of it may hereafter be identified in the Rawlinson and Tanner Collections. In Wood MS. F 2 at fol. 127 is a fragment inserted, probably from this draft, whose history is given there in a note by Dr. Bliss:— 'This fragment in Anthony à Wood's own hand I purchased in 1842 of Mr. Rod. It is a small portion of Wood's English history of the University, and must have formed part of an earlier draft of this work than the MS. History now in the Bodleian Library <Wood MS. F 1 and F 2> from which it differs: Philip Bliss.' (b) the second draft, cited by Wood as his 'foul copy' (e. g. in his 'City of Oxford,' edit. Clark, i. 340, ii. 390, 'foul copy of my history' ibid. ii. 323 'foul English copie'). Wood MS. F 38 is probably this second draft. This MS. was long in private possession, and was bought by Mr. Barré C. Roberts 'at a sale of books at Burford co. Oxon, 1797 or '8.' The following letter is attached to it, addressed to Edward Roberts, Esq., Ealing, Middlesex:—'Sir, I perfectly well remember the sale of Ant. à Wood's History to Mr. B. Roberts and I remember that it was purchased at a sale of books at Burford in this county but I cannot now recollect the name of the person at whose sale it was bought. It was in the year 1797 or 8. The MSS. were shewn to Mr. Price, Bodleian librarian, and by him compared with the handwriting of Ant. à Wood and pronounced to be genuine. These circumstances were related to Mr.

[‘Anno 1669, Cosmo, prince (since Great Duke) of Tuscany, came into England, and having heard much of his fame, went more then once to visit this great philosopher, in whose company he seemed much to delight. And because he would retaine the memory of such a noted person and express his veneration for him, did carry with him (besides what his retinue did) most of his works and picture: all which are at this time reserved as rarities<sup>2</sup> in the library and closet of the said duke, than which none in the Christian world (’tis thought) goes beyond’ :—this was put in the History of Oxon by the author in Mr. (Thomas) Hobs’ life, but dashed out by the publisher.—‘Dr. Samuel Sorbieri also, his great acquaintance, mentions him with venerable respect in the “Relation” (edit.<sup>3</sup> Paris Gallicè anno 1664 p. 65, etc.) “of his Voyage into England,” and tells us also that his picture (which was drawne by the hand of Mr. Samuel Cooper, the prince of limners of this age) hangs in his majestie’s<sup>4</sup> closet at Whitehall. His picture also is in great esteeme in France, insomuch that the virtuosi therof have come in pilgrimage to the house of the said Sorbieri to see it’ :—this also was blotted out by the publisher.—‘Outlandish gentlemen also when they come to London did make it one of their prime businesses to visit him’ :—this also was blotted out.—‘King Charles II loved him and his facetious company and after his restauration allowed him 100*l*. per annum out of the exc(h)ecquer. To sum up all, he is excellently well skilled in the Latin and Greek, a great critick and poet, and above all a philosopher and mathematician’ :—this also was blotted out by the publisher.]

Roberts at the time: but I fear it will be difficult to trace the MSS. from the time of the author. I am, Sir, your obedt servt, Jos<sup>h</sup> Parker. Oxford, July 4, 1827.’ The first portion of the MS. is wanting, and is supplied by a modern transcript from Wood MS. F 1. (c) the final form of this English copy is two large folio volumes (Wood MS. F 1 and F 2, O. C. 8463, 8464) which were printed by Gutch as Wood’s ‘History of the University of Oxford’ and Wood’s ‘Colleges and Halls.’ Wood refers to this (‘City of Oxford’ edit. Among which he wrot a breif of the life of Mr. Hobs<sup>2</sup>, though then living; and this he did because he looked upon him as a prime ornament therof. This book being by him written in English, it pleased the pri<sup>3</sup>(me<sup>3</sup> person)ages of that Universitie (not without his consent) to have it put into Latine to the end that the fame of the said Universitie might be better knowne and understood beyond the seas; but the translators being more fit for declamatory than for historicall versions<sup>4</sup>, were severall errours committed before any could perceive them. The deane of Ch. Ch.<sup>5</sup> being zealous for the forwarding of this work, did not onlie discharg<sup>6</sup> the translators but most of the impression at his owne expence, and having the absolute power of the press—<sup>7</sup>there, perused every sheet before 'twas to be sent to the presse, and after; and maugre the author, and to his great grieffe, expunged and inserted what he pleased. Among other authors<sup>8</sup>, he made divers alterations in Mr. Wood's copie in the account he gives of Mr. Thomas Hobbs of Malmesbury's Life in pag. 376, 377 lib. II:—'vir sane de quo (inter tot prosperae et adversae fama qui de eo sparguntur hominum sermones) hoc verissime pronuntiare fas est, animum ipsi obtigisse uti omnis scientiae capacissimum et infertum, ita divitiarum, saeculi, et invidiae negligentissimum; erga cognatos et alios pium et beneficum; inter eos quibuscum vixit hilarem et apertum et sermone libero; apud exteros in summa semper veneratione habitum, etc.' This and much more was quite dashed out of the author's copie by the sayd deane. These additions and expunctions being made by the said deane of Christ Church, without the advice of, and quite contrary to the mind of, the author, he told him, 'it was fitt Mr. Hobbes should know what he<sup>9</sup> had done, because that his<sup>10</sup> name being set to the booke and all people knowing it to be his, he should be liable to an answer, and so consequently be in perpetuall controversie.' To this the deane replied:—'Yea, in God's name; and great reason it was that he<sup>11</sup> should know what he<sup>12</sup> had done, and what he had donne he would answer for,' etc.

Hereupon, in the beginning of 1674, the author acquaints I. A.<sup>13</sup>, Mr. Hobbes' correspondent, with all that had passed<sup>14</sup>: I. A. acquaints Mr. Hobbes. Mr.

<sup>14</sup> it is apparent from Hobbes' epistle, mentioned presently, that the information sent as to what Fell had inserted and struck out was sufficiently minute.

Hobbes taking it ill, was resolved to vindicate himselfe in an epistle to the author. Accordingly an Epistle dat. Apr. 20, 1674, was sent to the author in MS. with an intention to publish it when the History of Oxford was to be published. Upon the receipt of Mr. Hobbes' epistle by Anthony à Wood, he forthwith repaired very honestly and without any guile to the deane of Christ Church to communicate it to him [and<sup>1</sup> to let him see that he would do nothing underhand against him]. The deane read it over carelessly, and not without scorne, and when he had done bid Mr. Wood 'tell Mr. Hobbes that he was an old man, had one foote in the grave, that he should mind his latter end and not trouble the world any more with his papers, etc.'—or to that effect.

In the meane time Mr. Hobbes meetes with the king in the Pall-mall in St. James's parke; tells him how he had been served<sup>2</sup> by the deane of Christchurch in a booke then in the presse, sc. the History aforesayd, intituled the History and Antiquities of the Universitie of Oxon; and withall desires his majestie to be pleased to give him leave to vindicate himselfe. The king seeming to be troubled at the dealing of the deane, gave Mr Hobbes leave, conditionally that he should touch nobody but him who had abused him neither that he should reflect upon the Universitie.

Mr. Hobbes understanding that this History would be published at the common Act at Oxon about 11 July the sayd yeare 1674, prints his epistle (that he had sent to Mr Wood) at London<sup>3</sup>, and sends downe divers copies to Oxon which being dispersed at Coffee houses and stationers' shops, a copie forthwith came to the deane's hands, who upon the reading of it fretted and fumed, sent for<sup>4</sup> the author of the History and chid him, telling withall that 'he had corresponded with his enemie' (Hobbes). The author replied that 'surely he had forgot what he had donne; for he had communicated to him before what Mr. Hobbes had sayd and written.' Wherupon the deane recollecting himselfe told him that 'Hobbes should suddenly heare more of him' [and<sup>5</sup> that 'he would have the printer called to account for printing such a notorious libell.'] So that the last sheet of paper being then in the presse, and one leafe thereof being left vacant, the deane supplied it with his answer<sup>6</sup>. Both the epistle and answer I here exhibite<sup>7</sup>. The old gent<sup>8</sup> never made any reply to this angry<sup>9</sup> answer; but 'tis supposed that it might be the cause why Mr. Hobbes was not afterwards so indulgent, or spared

<sup>2</sup> Wood had written that Hobbes' 'Leviathan' was 'liber vicinis gentibus notissimus,' and Fell inserted (before 'notissimus') 'publico damno'; again, Wood had written 'scripsit librum,' and Fell inserted 'monstrosissimum.' Fell had also modified Wood's encomiums of Hobbes' mathematics, a point on which Hobbes was very touchy.

<sup>4</sup> Wood has struck out 'sent for,' and made the text run:—'fumed at it as a most famous libell; and soon after meeting with the author of the History, chid him.'

Macray (Annals of the Bodleian, edit. 1891, p. 143) says it is in fact a portrait of Thomas Cromwell. The gift called forth a somewhat ribald poem of fourteen verses by Robert Whitehall of Merton 'to the no less vertuous than ingenious Mrs Mary More upon her sending Sir T. More's picture of her owne drawing to the publique Scholes in Oxon,' dated 16 Dec. 1674, a copy of which is in Wood 423 (46). ⟨The following are Wood's Excerpts<sup>1</sup> from Mr. Richard Shann's book, referred to on p. 295.

Anno 1588, there was taken at Crowley in Lincolnshire in the winter time 5 strange fowles of divers colours, having about their necks as it were great monstrous ruffs, and had underneath those ruffs certaine quills to beare up the same, in such a manner as our gallant dames have now of wiew to beare up their ruffs (which they call supporters). About their heads they had feathers so curiously set together and frised, altogether like unto our nice gentlewomen who do curle and frise their haire about their heads. Three of these strang fowles was brought into Sir Henrie Leese, and they would walk up and doune the hall as if they were great states, and somtimes they would stand still and lay their heads together as if they were in a secret counsell. It made the beholders to wonder therat. They cast them corne to eat, but they refused to tast of any meat and so at length died. Mr. Richard Shann, of Wodrow in Medley, Yorks., drew a picture of one of them which he placed in his herball. Two men that had set lime twigs to catch birds withall did find them taken therein. The like never seen or heard of before.

Anno 1601, Thursday, Christmas Eve, in Yorkshire a great flood. The same day about 5 of the clock at night there was such a monstrous great wind that came out of the southwest that many persons were at their wits' end for fear of blowing ⟨down⟩ their houses, and continued so till 8 of the clock. The same day was a most fearful earthquake; also lightning and thunder, with some raine.

Anno 1613, a running spring neare to Sherbourne in Yorkshire found by a man that had a sore legge. He washed the same sore sundry times in that water and found ease and remedie. Afterwards that man making report of it, the spring by little and little got such a name that multitudes of people came unto it from all parts of the countrie for the curing of all sorts of deseases, especially great sores, and those that were lame did wash themselves in it. There was such a resort made unto it both of rich and poore that it was wonderfull to see. So that some of Sherbourne did keep the said spring and got much money by it and they made a well or two upon the spring and a house over the wells. Some people thought the water did them much good and that it did heale their sores by often washing them in the water. Others thought that they got no ease by it at all.

Anno 1613 (i.e.  $\frac{3}{4}$ ), Jan. 1, about 12 of the clock when people were at their dinners there arose out of the northwest a thick dark cloud which made all about so dark that it seemed like night. Out of the same cloud proceeded a great crack of thunder and lightning and verie much raine.

The same year not far from Mr. Wentworth's dwelling at Emsol neare Methley Yorks was a yong maide marvellously taken. Who for a certaine time lay speechless and her tongue would ling out of her mouth. Sometimes shee would speak and then shee did complaine of some witch or other that had done her hurt and would name them by their names. Soon after, her speech would be taken from her againe, and then shee would lye three or four dayes before shee would speak againe. And before shee would speak any word she was verie greivously holden in her breast, as though some quick thing was in her stomake, letting her tongue fall out of her mouth. And then anon she would come to her self againe and begin to decrie some one or other that had bewitched her; and some shee did name that shee did never know before. In this sort she continued a long time. Many persons both man and woman were apprehended, whome she had named to be witches; and were examined before justice Wentworth: some were found guiltie and sent to the jayle, and some died for it. The first beginning of this, as the mayd reported, was thus:—she said that a woman of Brokenhill did offer to give her a bird which would needs have gone into her mouth; which many thought was some spirit, for the wife of Brokenhill was thought a long time to be an evill disposed woman and was suspected to deale in witch-craft.

Anno 1618, Feb. 5, being Sunday, it freesed extreamely and so Munday Tuesday and Wednesday. On these dayes aforesaid there was a lad that was a prentice to a painter: he lodged in a barne of one Robert Lakes in Woodrowe in Medley com. Yorks one or two of those dayes; but his feet were so frozen that they were utterly benum'd and as it were quite dead. The people brought him to the fire to see if he could feel any heat; but no warmeness he could feele, but in the end his feet were so burned that his toes did rot off and the joynts fall asunder; and so within a while after he died.

—This antient monument was found in the earth at a place called Thornborough in the north countrie by a man digging for stones anno 1620, which by chance found a thorough-stone whereupon was engraven these capitall letters which you see here, and being seen by the learned were translated into Latine and English. Within the tombe were found the bones of a verie tall man, which did appeare by the greatness of them. Mr. Richard Shanne of Woodrow in Medley had a peice or two of the rib-bones given him by one Mr. Naler. The bones were thicker than the bones of an oxe.)

January.—Dr. <Thomas> Tullie, principal of S. Edmund hall, became deane of Rippon, about 10 Jan., Su., in the place of <John> Neale deceased: and he in the place of Dr. <John> Wilkins<sup>2</sup> (bishop of Chester) who became deane at the restauration of Charles II.

Jan. 19, T., 1674 <i. e.  $\frac{4}{5}$ > my cozen John Taverner, of Soundess in the parish of Nettlebed, died; aet. 85 or therabouts; buried at Nettlebed by his father and brother.

[Nettlebed.<sup>3</sup> On a plaine white stone lying in the middle of the chancell was an inscription which told us that under it

'was deposited the body of Edmund Taverner of Soundess, esq., fourth son of Richard Taverner of Wood-eaton, counsellour at law and justice of the peace; which Edmund, when he had lived a long time with the greatest praise, died most happily the 27 of Aprill anno 1615 of his age the 65 etc.: E. T. [i. e. Edmund Taverner] his sad son put the said epitaph on the stone.'

But this epitaph being woren out by fire continually made on the said stone for severall yeares by the soldiers in the rebellious times, and afterwards the stone itselfe broken in severall peices when it was taken up to bury John Taverner, his son, a new stone was laid in its place, and this following<sup>4</sup> engraven theron, under the armes<sup>5</sup> of Taverner and Hales impaled:—

'P. M. S. of Edmund Taverner of Soundess, esq., the fourth son of Richard

<sup>4</sup> in Wood MS. E 1 fol. 194 Wood gives the epitaph which he had designed for this stone 'before that I knew anything of the former epitaph.'

'Here lyeth the body of Edmund Taverner, esq., lately justice of the peace for the county of Oxon, third son [marginal note:—'so 'tis in the pedegree belonging to this family'] of Richard Taverner of Woodeaton in the said county esq. somtimes clerk of the signet to King Henry VIII and Edward VI; which Edmund dying at Soundess in this parish, was here interred the 4 May [marginal note:—'so in the parish register'] anno 1615. With him also resteth the body of his beloved wife Lucy, daughter of Christopher Hales of Warwickshire esq.; who dying at Soundess, was buried neare this stone 30 Aug. 1638.' Wood adds:—'This of Edmund Taverner I drew up for the stone cutter anno 1675 to be put on a gravestone; but his grand daughter Mary Harris did make some alterations as to dates, viz. for "3d son," 4 son; for "interred 4 May," died 27 Apr.—quaere the stonecutter.'

Taverner of Wood-eaton, esq., counsellour at law and justice of the peace, of singular pietie, who when he had lived a long time with the greatest praise, died most happily the 27 Apr. in the year of our Lord 1615, of his age the 65; and together with his daughter and neice Mary, lies here intombed. His sad son E. T. put this epitaph on the stone.—Also by him lyes the body of his third son John Taverner, whose monument is on the wall adjoining.’

On the south side of the east window of the chancell is this engraven on an alabaster monument :—

‘Neare to this place rest the bodies of John Taverner of Soundess esq., somtimes High Sherriff of this countie and Judeth his wife, one of the daughters and co-heires of John Smithes of Wrington in Somersetshire esq. ; by whome he had issue :—Edmond, buried June 25 an. 1648 in the great church at the Hague in Holland in the 19 yeare of his age ; John, of Greys Inne, who dying 1657, aged 25 yeares, was buried in S. Andrew’s church in Holborne, Lond. ; Richard, buried, May 9, 1642, neare this place, aged one yeare and  $\frac{1}{2}$  ; Lucy, buried, June 26, 1648, neare this place, aged 17 yeares ; and Mary, who being married to John Harrys of Silkstede in Hampshire esq, became at length heir to her father’s lands. The said John died Jan. 19, 1674 (i. e.  $\frac{4}{5}$ ), aged 84 yeares ; and his wife followed him May 17, 1676, in the 68 yeare of her age.’

Dr. William Fuller, bishop of Lincoln, died at Kensington<sup>1</sup>, 22 Apr., Th. The same day about 3 or 4 (o'clock Dr. (Thomas) Barlow, provost of Queen's and archdeacon of Oxon, kist the King's hand for the place. Dr. Barlow, by the favour and means of the 2 secretaries Henry Coventry and (Joseph) Williamson (both somtimes of Queen's College), got the bishoprick of Lincoln. One that had flattered and run with the times. False, and a man of no sincerity: let him be marked with ~~gcs~~. Had old St Robert with the great head<sup>2</sup> but risen out of his grave and seen what had been done in his absence, he would have repented that ever he had occupied the seat of Lincoln. Dr. Barlow not that scholar as people take him to be. He gave me Fisher's poems<sup>3</sup> and broke my head<sup>4</sup>.

The King then<sup>5</sup> said that he had heard that<sup>6</sup> he was a man readie to serve all times and had bad<sup>7</sup> enough of him. And had not (the) d(uke of) Lauderdale come in accidentilly and said that by his lot<sup>8</sup> he had hear(d) that he was a brave man and learned man, he would hardly have got it.—He hath not been at Bugden or Lyncoln (not as yet, July 1678). 7 Nov., Su., I sent a letter to Mrs Umfravill about . . . .

[Nov. 10<sup>5</sup>, W., chancellor's letters read (dated, S., 24 July) in behalf of Andrew Sall.

'The bearer Dr. Sall is a native of Ireland and bred abroad for many yeares in the Romish persuasion where he had good and beneficiall preferments; but having about 2 yeares since embraced the doctrine of the church of England, has resided since for some time in the University neare Dublin. He is acknowledged by the clergy of Ireland to be a person of very great parts and learning; and therefore I doe the more readily recommend him to you, and doubt not but such respect will be shewed him as is due to a person of his merit.'

It seems Andrew Sall was here in the latter end of July 1675, but the vicechancellor<sup>6</sup> being at Wells this letter was not read till his returne in November. Which being read, the vicechancellor told the auditory that it playnely appeared that he was a learned man not

The earl of Arlington (Henry Bennet) urged this also to the vicechancellor at the instance of the Prince of Orange with whom the said divines are in great respect.]

[In<sup>3</sup> the same Convocation (Nov. 10, W.,) the vicechancellor layd open the matter concerning the barbers of the Universitie of making them a new corporation.

Part of his speech<sup>4</sup> runs thus:—'A multis jam annis observatum est, tonsorum nostrorum vulgus adeo in immensum excrescere ut sine lege, sine ordine ferantur omnia, non solum in ipsius communitatis praejudicium, verum etiam Academiae nostrae (cujus ditioni subjecti sunt) aliquali dehonestamento. Nam (ut caetera praeteream) nihil apud illos usitatus est quam ut servi, post unius aut alterius anni tyrocinium in arte sua positum, praemature emancipati, protenus in patresfamilias evadent. Idem mox, lucelli causa, alios sibi mancipio adsciscunt, quos cum alendi non sunt manumittunt illico, hominum mendicabula et artis suae opprobrium. Adeo frequentes sunt hujusmodi superfoetationes ut quot capita tot fere tonsores numerentur. Constipant officinas, diffuunt in vicus, obambulant collegia: tonsorum plena sunt omnia. Obtrudunt se proficiscentibus, invadunt redeuntes: obvio cuique barbara tela, forfices et novaculas, intentant.

Neque hic sistat malum. Habemus enim tonsores, qui (ut cum Martiale loquor) non tondunt sed radunt: et cum ars sua ad vitam tolerandum haud sufficiat, ad aliena, etiam turpissima, divertunt. Maleferiatorum gratiam omnibus lenociniis demereri satagunt. Ipsique otio abundantes, aliorum nequitiis et voluptatibus dexterrime subministrant. Pisces, aves, lepores sectantur: immo (quod animal est prae caeteris omnibus opportunum) etiam novitios scholares in laqueos suos pelliciunt. Imberbium ora, si non smagmate, at certe fucis oblinunt; et quibus genas nondum possunt, marsupia saltem expilant. Quo melius his aliisque incommodis obviam eatur, consultum est ut turba haec artificum exlex et incomposita in societatem statutis regulisque idoneis ordinatam' . . .

my English copie. <Arms:—> 'checquy vert and or a bend ermine with a labell of 3 points gules.']

About the latter end of this month (Nov.) died <John> Waterworth A.M. of Trin. Coll. of the small pox: buried in Trin. Coll. chapel, quaere (Magd. parish church).

Note that about the time of the prorogation of the parliament about the latter end of this month there came out a pamphlet intituled 'A letter to a freind in the country,' written, as 'tis said, by lord Ashley Cooper, altogether against the Test, and there makes <Seth> Ward, bishop of Sarum, a verie rogue. There came out also a Dialogue between the horse with King Charles II on the back of it in Stocks Market and that at Charing Cross with Charles I on it: therin the Charles II is much lashed. Also that one morn betimes was a pillion fastned on that horse<'s> back behind King Charles II, with this written on the hors:—

'Hast, post-hast, for a midwife.'

A dutchess that goes by the name of the dutchess Masarine<sup>1</sup> came to London in this month. Shee is the wife of . . . a French duke: and she retains the name of her uncle. <She> left her husband for recreation sake: tarried here till beginning of William III. Flock'd<sup>2</sup> to our K<ing>.

Three years before this, Carwell<sup>3</sup> came to court: her parents of a meane condition. They came in a waggon to London.

In the latter end of Nov. a pillion set behind the statue of King Charles II on horsback at Stoks Market and one<sup>4</sup> the horse<'s> brest writ on a paper:—

'Hast, post-hast, for a midwife.'

About that time a libellous Dialogue came out, between the said statue on horseback and that of King Charles I at Charring Cross.

About the prorogation of the parliament came out a pamphlet intituled 'A letter from one of the city to his freind in the country,' written as 'tis said by lord Ashley Cooper, cheifly against the test, and therin makes the bishop of Sarum (Seth Ward) a very rogue.

The bells of Mert. Coll. antient. Some belonged to the parish church before 'twas collegiat, especially the second. The tenor, the best bell in England, was given, or else set up, in the time of (Henry) Abendon, warden<sup>1</sup>, as his name upon it shews. These five bells were made into 8 (in) 1656, Dr. (Thomas) Jones then subwarden. They first rang May . . . . My mother and my two brothers gave<sup>2</sup> towards the casting, as College tenants. They being so cast, severall were found to be ugly dead bells; for the truth is (that) . . . Darby who cast them stole a great deal of mettle from them ((Thomas) Jones they say complice<sup>3</sup> with him); and wheras the old tenor was the best bell in England, this now is the worst. At the same (time) a loft was set up about 3 yards below the top of the arches of the tower. I persuaded<sup>4</sup> the society to set it above the arches, but I was not then heard. But that loft, being of green timber, bowed and became weak. At length this year 1675 (Sept. and Aug.) it was taken downe and most of it was given to Halywell to make a scaffold at the west end of the church there: and this now standing above the arches was then set up.

Since the king was restored it was looked upon as a peice of pedantry to produce a Latin sentence in discours (and some years after, to put it in titles of books, especially those printed at Oxford in the Theatre), to dispute theologically at the table at meales, to be earnest or zealous in any one thing. But all, forsooth, must be gentile<sup>5</sup> and neat—no paines taken. Bantring<sup>6</sup>.

⟨At the end of this Almanac are some notes which may be brought together here:—⟩

John Jenkyns (see in the beginning of my Almanac 1657) lived much in the families of l'estrange and Deerham (Deerham in Norfolk), in Ed⟨ward⟩ Bend⟨l⟩owes. Most famous; for his compositions enter into the hands of all men. Vide ⟨John⟩ Wilson, born at Faversham in Kent.

Wadh.<sup>1</sup> Coll., Charls Sedley, baronet, son of Sir John Sedley of Aylesford in Kent, B⟨aronet⟩, by his wife Elizabeth, onlie daughter and heire of Sir Henry Savile somtimes warden of Merton College, was borne . . .; became fellow-commoner of this house in Lent terme anno 1658<sup>8</sup> aged 17 or therabouts; but taking no degree, retired for a time into his owne country and neither went to the Inns of Court or to travell. Afterwards about the restauration he went to London and led a most debauched life: a remarkable instance of which, beyond (I think) any former practice, was his being so drunk in a cook's house at the signe of the Cocke in Bow Street neare Covent Garden in June 1663 that he, with Charles ⟨Sackville⟩ lord Buckhurst, Sir T⟨homas⟩ O⟨gle⟩ etc. his companions, went out of their roome into the balcony adjoyning, put downe their breeches, and excrementiz'd in the street. Which being done, they all (I am sure, Sedley) did put off their clothes, and Sedley preached blasphemy stark naked to the people<sup>2</sup>. Wherupon a riot being rais'd, the rout would have forced the dore open, but being hindred, the preachers were pelted into their roome, and their windowes were sufficiently broken.

1663<sup>3</sup>: concerning the balcony business mentioned in one of my almanacs<sup>4</sup>. Lord Buckhurst<sup>5</sup>, Sir Charls Sidley of Kent, baronet, Sir Thomas Ogle, etc., being at a cook's house at the signe of the Cock in Bow-street neare Covent Garden, and drunk, went into the balcony looking into the street, put downe their breeches, and shit into the street; stripped themselves naked (they say). Sir Charles Sidley, being the most eager, preached blasphemy to the people. And therupon a riot raised; people would have forced the dore open, broke the windowes, etc. Wherupon being endited of a riot, appeared before ⟨Robert⟩ Hide, Lord Chief Justice, who fin'd Sidley 500*li.* to be paid to the King (the other two being not able to pay such a sum). Sidley therefore answered that he thought he was the first man that paid for shiting. The day for payment being assigned, Sidley appointed and desired Henry Killegrew and . . . to get it of⟨f⟩ from the King. But instead of that, they beg'd it of the King and would not spare or abate one 4*d* of Sir Charles Sidley.—Hide asked him 'whether he ever read the "Compleat<sup>6</sup> Gentleman"?' He answered 'Set aside your Lordship, he had read more bookes than himselfe.' This is to be put in 1663. This was much talked off by the phanaticks who took

‘I shall not here insist on the custome he hath got of lying upon all occasions, seing wee know the man well enough, nor on a great many other things which the paper itself would not be able to endure without blushing. . . . I treated him rather like an apostate than a martyr. Many persons hereupon, whether by ignorance or by a false zeale, have so much concerned themselves as to blame me for what I did. The troublesome bawlings of these sort of people constrained me to preach the following sermon.’

This Hippolite du Chastlet de Luzancy went afterwards to Ch. Ch. Oxford, where borrowing 10*li*. of Mr. Peter Birch went away in his debt; and with much adoe (Mr. Birch) got it. Mild weather all this month: in the beginning some raine.

March.—Beginning of this month the arch<sup>1</sup> leading from the warden's lodging (New Coll.) to his stables finisht—the townsmen would have the college pay for it as a languable<sup>2</sup>.

[Mar. 11, S., Chancellor's letters<sup>3</sup> were read in Convocation in behalf of Edmund Sermon of St. Mary's hall who tooke the degree of B.A. above 10 years since, but being detain'd in the country upon a necessary attendance on the education of youth of noble extraction and officiating his cure, he could not regularly take his degrees of M. of A. and B. of D.<sup>4</sup> which he begs a dispensation for, paying the fees for both and performing all exercise except that of examination for master.]

Mar. 13, M., the chapel joyning on the north side <S.> John's chapel, consecrated privatly. Built by Dr <Richard> Bayly: his son following buried there.

15 Mar., Wednesday, Richard Baylie (merchant, of London, son of Dr. Richard Baylie sometimes president of St. John's and deane of Sarum) his body being brought from London entred Oxon with great state and attendance, and was buried in a vault under a little chapel<sup>5</sup> joyning on the north side of St. John's College formerly built by his

The same day the wife of Sir Georg Croke of Waterstoke, daughter of Sir Richard Onslow of Surry a coll.<sup>1</sup> in the parliam⟨entary⟩ army, was brought to Waterstock to be buried.

Mar. 22, Wednesday, Ann<sup>2</sup> ⟨dowager⟩ countess of Pembroke and Dorset, died: buried in Appleby church under a monument which shee severall years before had provided for herself<sup>3</sup>. A great lover of learning and cherisher of it, of the poor, and of great hospitality. Vide Dugdale 'Baronagium' 1st part in Clifford.

22 Mar.<sup>4</sup>, Wednesday, John Abrahall, commoner and undergraduate of Ball. Coll., hang'd himself in his chamber in Caesar's Lodgings<sup>5</sup> ther. The next day his doore was broke open, ⟨he was⟩ found hanging on his beame: and the jewry<sup>6</sup> sate. He was buried in the north churchyard of Magd. par. under the west wall near the north dore. He was the son of the parson of Foy in Herefordshire. No reason or supposition to be given why he hung himself. A temperat, sober, ingenious man. 'John Abrahall, aet. 16, filius Georgii Abrahall<sup>7</sup> de Foy in com. Hereford., ministri filius,'—so the Matriculation ⟨book⟩ 13 Mar. 1672 ⟨i. e.  $\frac{2}{3}$ ⟩.

<sup>1</sup> notes in Wood 419, the volume received from Sheldon. The book contains several MS. notes by Wood, but many have been mutilated by the binder cutting the edges. The price of the volume is marked as 13s 6d. Many of Wood's notes are satirical reflections on the peers and peeresses of Charles II's creation: thus p. 484 Dugdale says that Barbara Villiers was made duchess of Cleveland 'by reason of her father's death in his majestie's army, as also for her own personal virtues', on which Wood notes, 'for making her husband (Roger earl of Castlemain) a cuckold'; on p. 486 Dugdale speaks of 'Lovisa dutchess of Portsmouth' as 'of such honourable women whom his majesty hath deservedly raised to high titles of honour,' Wood underlines honourable and deservedly and notes 'quaere what was in her that deserved this honour': on p. 486 Dugdale says of Lee, earl of Litchfield, that 'some (without service)' have been 'advanced to eminent titles . . . as an encouragement to them in all virtuous endeavours,' Wood notes 'made an earle because he had newly married a daughter of Barbara, duchess of Cleveland, by . . .'

[An abstract<sup>3</sup> of the monumentall inscriptions in S. Peter's church in the cittie of Bathe, taken in July 1676. . . . There be severall other flat stones (in the chancell) but the inscriptions of some are worn out and others have seats built over them. The great east window was given by one Mr. Thomas Bellot, who, in fancie to his name, caused the quarrells of the glass to be partie coloured and laid billot- or bellot-ways one over and cross the other. In the north isle joyning to the chancell . . . are severall . . . flat stones, but the inscriptions which are on those stones, inlaid with black pitch or other stuff, are worn out, or covered with dirt so much that they are not legible. In the south isle joyning to the chancell are many flat freestones laying on graves, of a late date, but their inscriptions by the often passing of people over them to the bowling green and walkes at the east end of the church are worn out. On the south wall of the said isle is a statelie monument of freestone of two stories high on pillars and an altar monument of freestone curiouslie wrought within the lower story of pillars, but no inscription on the monument onlie these armes (. . . two bendlets humette . . .) on the top: note that within the said altar monument are two bodies embalmed, one for Thomas Lychfeild (lutinist, as they say, to Queen Elizabeth), and the other for his wife Margaret Lychfeild. In the lower south window of this south isle over the librarie dore are the taylors' armes and underneath written:—

'This window was repaired and continually kept by the taylors, 1641.'

Dec. 2, S., it froze againe and continued so till Dec. 21, Th.; returned againe, Dec. 24, Su.; gave, Dec. 26, T.; but froze every night. See in the Almanac in January following. Dec. 8, F., a bitter cold day. Dec. 9, 11 (S., M.) a great deal of snow<sup>4</sup> fell. Dec. 12, 13, 14 (T., W., Th.) and so after, bitter cold, rimy, and misty. The frost broke<sup>5</sup> on St. Thomas day, Dec. 21, Th.; the frost returned 24 Dec., Su.; and continued till 3 Jan., W.—The rivers all frozen up and people pass over them. The river Thames at London frozen over and huts are made of snow, and brandy wine sold in them.—Note that the Thames at London was so much frozen, that huts were built on them to sell brandy. Carts and coaches went over. This was from the Hors Ferry to Lambeth and so upward towards Chelsey. They went on foot and<sup>6</sup> crost the Thames with torches and a common road from Westminster to W⟨hi⟩tehall<sup>7</sup>. Coaches<sup>8</sup> went over at Chelsey.—By this frost abundance of fish and fowl perished.

performing this, but never until this winter has there been a frost sufficient to encourage the belief that his hopes would be gratified. On Monday the 19th January several borings were made and the ice was found to be 8 inches thick in any part, and in some places much more. The coach without the horses was first drawn on to the ice by way of The Islet, a lane leading out of the Iffley Road, and with nearly a score of persons in and upon it, and some fifty drawing it with ropes, it was moved about from place to place. Finding that the ice was capable of withstanding this strain, four horses were attached to the coach, their shoes being fitted with specially made wedge-headed nails to prevent slipping. The start took place from abreast the University barge at half-past eleven o'clock. The horses went at a trot as far as the Long Bridges, beyond which it was not deemed prudent to go as the ice was of somewhat less strength. It was estimated that the weight of the whole turn-out was close upon seven tons. To those watching the progress of the coach it was evident that the strain was very severe, as the ice bent beneath the weight, and water shot up to a height of nearly 4 feet whenever a hole was passed. The water in some of the places passed is 16 feet deep. The last and only time on record on which a coach and four appeared on the ice in this manner was in the winter of 1854-55.'

Glouc.>. The ancestor of these Winchcombs was a rich clothier living in the raignes of Henry VII and VIII in the mercat towne of Newbury in Berks. His name was John Smalewood alias Winchcombe; but being noted in all those parts for a generous and public spirited man, as also for his riches, was commonly called 'Jack of Newbury.' In the Prerogative Office in the deane of Paul's court neare Paul's churchyard London, I once saw in the register called 'Ayloff, Qu. 27,' the will of John Smalewood the elder (alias John Wynchcombe) of the parish of St. Nicholas in Newbury Berks, made 4 Jan. 1519 <i.e.  $\frac{1519}{20}$ >, proved 24 March following, wherein is mention made of Joan his wife and John his son, and of his great riches that he then bequeathed. In a north isle neare to the chancell of the church in Newbury is this inscription under the figures of a man and woman engraven on a brass plate:—

'Of your charatie pray for the sowle of John Smalwood alias Winchcombe, and Alice his wife, which John died xv day of February an. Dom. MDXIX,' etc.

This Alice I think was his first wife. I have a book by me containing the life and ghests of Jack of Newbury<sup>2</sup>, printed in a black character. I bought it of a pedler in Warwickshire, and 'tis verie pleasant to read, and see the innocence of those times.]

They beare a confused coat of armes:—viz., azure on a chevron ingrailed or 3 cinquefoiles of the 1, between 3 close eagles of the 2, a cheif or charged with a fleur de lize between 2 lozenges azure.' A similar volume, containing chapbooks in praise of shoemakers (e.g. 'The gentle craft,' Lond. 1652) is Wood C 31: at the beginning of it Wood has this note—'In the beach neare Lydde in Kent is to be seen a heape of great stones which the neighbour inhabitants call St. Crispin's and Crispianus or Crispian's tombe: whome they reported to have been cast upon this shore (by Lydd) by shipwrack and from hence called into the glorious company of

<sup>4</sup> this is a good instance of the confusion which is created by not writing the date in full (1677<sup>8</sup>). Courthope's Sir H. Nicolas's Historic Peerage of England says that this peer 'obiit 1676':

Collections, vol. cvi. Huddesford gave some notes of the Perrott family from an MS. then (1772) in the possession of Rev. John Price, Bodley’s Librarian; afterwards (1848) in those of his successor, Bulkeley Bandinell; but where now deposited I cannot find. These notes are as follows:—

‘This MS. contains many particulars relative to the parish and church of North Leigh, and to the Perrot family, among which are the following articles:—

1. Extract of the Will of the above mentioned Charles Perrot. “Also (I give and bequeath) to the poor of the parish of North Leigh &c. the sum of fifty pounds to be laid out in the purchase of lands or otherwise settled so it may be and remain for ever to and for the use of the said poor imploying the yearly profits thereof in binding forth apprentices into other parishes children of the poorest people of the same parish of North Leigh &c.”

2. An Oration spoken in the Hall of Oriel college Oxon. the xxvth of April, A.D. 1677 by Mr. Hazlewood then Dean of the same College at the Funeral of Mr. Charles Perrot one of the Fellows of that College before all that Society and others present, his Corps being then placed before them. In detached parts of which oration his character is thus drawn:—

“Ista generis claritas qua alios præstabat ei tantum persuasit animumque dedit ad egregia facinora suscipienda.—

Apud omnes, quibus notus erat, fidem adeo inviolatam servavit, quasi non sibi sed amicis se natum putârat.—Gravitate suam tam innocua festivitate temperavit, ut neminem unquam, ante mortem suam, tristem effecit: etenim, dum in vivis ille fuit, non minus difficile erat vultum moestitia contractum, quam jam, cum mortuus sit, hilaritate expectatum intueri.—Eadem pietate ille vixit qua alii sancti moriuntur, pietate adeo incredibili, sua tamen, ut illam non minus ægre credent posterum quam nos possumus imitari. Cum ei mortuo tantum similes esse possimus, minime mirandum censeo, si nos ad illius exemplar jam conformemus, si cum illum mors et dolor nos mutos reddat.”

3. Extract of the Will of Mr. Edward Perrot a Portugal Merchant (he died at Porto the 16th of Octob., according to our stile, anno 1667), in which he leaves the sum of Forty Pounds to the Parish of North Leigh; to which Will Mr. Robert Perrot and Mr. Charles Perrot are nominated Executors.

4. The Account of Mr. Robert Perrot of the said Legacy and increase thereof made to the Churchwardens &c. 1678. Among the articles here set downe are the following:—

1684, May 20, he paid towards the placing Martha Jones one of the daughters of Humphry Jones clerk, deceased, late vicar of this church, apprentice to Richard Harris of Wootten, 4*li* 3*s* 10*d*.

1685, July 28, he paid part of the vii*li* toward the placing of Nicholas Jones son of the said Humphrey Jones apprentice to Mr. Charles Dawson, dancing master, who married the mother of the said Nicholas and for the indenture and bonds, oli. 10*s.* 0*d*.

Raph Austen died in Apr. or May, vide supra in second last leaf<sup>6</sup>.

lating to the family of Perrott, there is an entry of the birth of Charles Perrott, which seems to contradict the account given of him above: viz.

"Charles Parrott borne at Abington in the county of Berks on Monday the tenth of December 1627 about seven of clocke at night and was christned the 19the of the same monthe beinge Wensday at St. Elen's churche his godfathers were Charles Wiseman of Steventon esqr. and Cornelius Fairmedoe of London esqr. his godmother Mrs. Elizabeth Stonhouse. 3<sup>o</sup> Caroli regis."

From a marginal note also in the MS. quoted above it appears that Charles Perrott died in the 50th year of his age.

<sup>4</sup> Wood 276 A no. CCCCVII is a (privately printed, I suppose) souvenir of the Encaenia 6–9 July 1677. It consists of a dedication by M. E. Rotherus, Dantiscanus, to Paul Brand (physician to Ernest Gunther duke of Schleswig), dated 12 Aug. 1677; the engraving of the Sheldonian, which was put on the title-pages of folio books from the Oxford press; and some Latin verses.

In the beginning of this month (July) against the Act time the archbishop<sup>1</sup> of Samos in Greece came to Oxon; act. 40 or therabouts. See a letter of Mr. <Thomas> Blount's to me about Easter 1677 (number 99). Quaere whether he did not come in relation of having a college erected for them in Oxon, at Gloucester Hall. He came to get money towards the finishing of the Greeck church at London<sup>2</sup>. At that time there was a great talk of converting Gloucester Hall into a College for the educating 20 or 30 Greeks<sup>3</sup> in Academical learning and to send them home, but these only wanted pelf.

Saturday, 4 Aug. 1677, the duke of Ormund chancellor of the Universitie being in Oxon with a great retinew, Mr. proctor (Nathaniel) Wyght of Merton College and I agreed to walk the streets that night to prevent any injury that might possible be offered to our strangers by dissolute night-walkers. In order wherunto wee divided our company. I, with mine, and the proctor's man (Robert Church), having walked the greatest part of the towne, and it being between the houres of 11 and 12 at night (so late that all the shambles<sup>1</sup> were removed), comming from Quatervois downe the high street, on the right side of the street hard by the gutter, I took Dodwell and two fellowes more, who (as wee thought) were crossing over the street. The man to my knowledge I never saw before; but Dodwell behaving himself the most disrespectfully towards me, I made bold to ask him who he was? He scornfully returned the question upon me 'Who are you?' I told him: and my man (notorious enough to all inhabitants in the towne) having been breed among them and been frequentlie proctor's man before, told him as distinctlie as any man could speak that I was Mr. Barbour of Oriell Coll. proproctor to Mr. Wyght. Which he dispising, I frequently required him to tell his name and asked him why he refused? or so much as to tell why he was abroad; having never before received the least uncivill language from any townsman. I resolved to know the reason of this: my man told me his name was Dodwell. I immediatly recollected his notorious insolence towards Mr. proctor Levins<sup>2</sup> and his forcible entry into Mr. Wilcocks house the barber, and how by the countenance of the best in the towne, he escaped exemplarie punishment for disorders of so high a nature. And looking upon him as a person abetted by the city in affronting the government of the Universitie, and having heard that his practice was to stand therabouts and abuse the proctors as they went by, I resolved to press him to give me some tolerable account of himself, and take it, rather than engage in a quarrell with so vexatious a fellow. Wherupon I spake to him in these words:—'Mr. Dodwell, I know your name, and require an accompt of your business abroad at this unseasonable time of night?' His answer to this question, though often repeated, was onlie 'what was that to me? What had I to doe with him?' Upon this I told him then I would take him to prison, and went to lay hold on him: but another (a fourth fellow) comming from the other side of the street (as I guesse), put in between Dodwell and me and kept me off till Dodwell had unlockt a dore and was got into an house. As I was seizing this fellow, the proctor himself hearing a disturbance was come unto us. Which Dodwell hearing proferd to come out of the shop and said 'he knew the proctor; if he was there, he would give an account of himself.' The proctor told him I was his deputie, and what he had done he could not stay to enquire but left it to answer it to me. Wherupon I went to lay hold on the yonger Dodwell; the elder pulled him off from me and thrust him into a shop and shut the lower part of the dore against me. I said to him 'Well then, Mr. Dodwell, I perceive I must have no account of you.' He replied 'Noe—he had suffered enough by proctors alreadie': and cried out after me—'it was a strang thing a constable<sup>3</sup> could not be out after nine for us.' The other two fellowes not misbehaving themselves, I was less inquisitive after: but meeting them againe about the conduit, I asked their business, which they readily told me, and I bad them a good night.

The next Munday<sup>4</sup> I passed by Dodwell's dore by myself: there were many expressions of derision (as 'That's he,' 'There he goes') and drumming upon a bulk after me, which I verilie beleive was done by Dodwell or his meanes, and question not but that I can bring townsmen themselves who observed it then and at other times who will sweare they were ashamed of it. Not long after, passing by with Mr. <Richard> Dyer<sup>1</sup> (a fellow of our College), and observing his scornfull behaviour, before Mr. Dyer, I demanded 40 shillings of him for being out without giving a good account of himselfe on the aforesaid Saturday night; but he (instead of excusing himself, which I declare I would have taken, had he offered it with the least civilitie) askt me my name: which I told him, and that I was the proctor who took him that night. He askt me my Xtian name: I therupon told him: but he replied with the most scornfull gestures he could use—'Then, Georg Barbour, I owe you no money, and none I shall pay,' and calling over . . . Brickland, a discommuned cobbler (if I mistake not), he told him 'Mr. Brickland, here's one would have me pay him 40 sh.; I ow no such man any money, nor shall I pay any.' The proctor and Mr. . . . Kimberley<sup>2</sup> and severall others of my acquaintance have often heard me resolve, for all this, to accept any conditions rather than engage the two bodies<sup>3</sup> in a quarrell, and meerlie upon this consideration that I was unwilling to lye under the curse of soe many townspeople as must necessarilie be sufferers while this quarrell depended.

Afterward having business with the present mayor elect, Mr. <William> Morrell, after wee had dispatcht it, I told the mayor how I had been used by the fellow; and before Mr. <Thomas> Akworth<sup>4</sup> of Ch. Church I told the mayor 'it was apparent to me, and I beleived 'twas to him that the towne had been long contriving to fall out with the Universitie about the watch; and I fancyed they back'd the fellow and were resolved' (for severall reasons I suggested to him) 'to fasten the quarrell upon him in his mayorality.' I represented to him how severall wayes it would be prejudiciall both to him and me: which, he professed, 'he took verie kindlie and beleived I spake truth, but assured me he would never be drawn into a quarrell with us.' He cried shame of Dodwell, and ask'd me whether I would have him to speak to him; he 'scorned to maintaine such a fellow.' I gave this answer that if the fellow came to me any time before the next terme and did but say he did not know me and was sorry for it, I would not put him into the court<sup>5</sup>; otherwise I would.

From this time till I put him into the court and all the time it depended there, I heard nothing from Dodwell (but that he threatned to sue me when out of my office), till about the time the business drew neare the sentence and Dodwell had denyed the jurisdiction of the court, when Mr. <Thomas> Tisdale and Mr. <William> Cornish came to me from the towne to desire me 'to take a submission in my chamber; that if I would accept of it, their aldermen had been with the vice-chancellour and Dr. <Thomas> Bouchier<sup>6</sup> and they were willing to it.' I answered—'I would not accept of it; I had no privat quarrell, and would take no privat submission.' Then Mr. Tisdall was pleased to tell me 'it was the sense of the towne, wee had nothing to do with them after nine at night.' How insidiouslie these two honest men dealt with me, and how abominablie they abused Dr. Bouchier and the vicechancellor in what they told me, how false their pretence is they never knew the fellow abused me, how maliciouslie they raise and report stories, and how in all their proposalls they decline to own our lawfull power over them, by what base arts they insinuate into strangers an opinion of their peacableness of their inclinations, are things I leave to publish who wonder at them. Any one who pleases to consider the matter of fact (as I have here attested it), the oath I take to the University and the present constitution of the Universitie, may quicklie discern whether I am the authour of the present quarrell; onlie this I add, that whereas they have often said they would scorne to maintaine the fellow if it appeared he affronted me, I do attest I proferrd Sir Sampson Whyte to make it appeare to him, alderman <William> Baylie, and alderman <William> Wryght, or any two of them, at any time and place they pleased to send for me, by voluntarie oaths of men of unquestionable reputation: which Sir Sampson Whyte told me he would go and acquaint his brethren with, but alderman Baylie and alderman Wright denied before the vicechancellour that ever <he> told them a word of it and said that, had it been, they had come to an agreement before that time.

As to their outcryes against me that no submission would satisfie me, they never offerd me one in privat till Dodwell in open court had denied the jurisdiction of it. After which, as to my not concurring with them in my request to the vicechancellour that all might be put up for a submission they proferrd in court to me, I answer:—

1, it was none of my business;

2, they refused to withdraw their answer;

3, I walk by the authoritie of the vicechancellour; and, when they had so notoriouslie affronted his authoritie, to profer a submission to me was to break the vice-chancellour's head and desire me to take a plaister for mine.

As to all their ridiculous stories raised upon me, they are no more than I expected but more than I am concern'd to answer; and I farther declare I'll at any time give any sober man a full and satisfactorie account of anything I have acted publickly in relation to the towne or any stranger.]

Saturday, 4th Aug.; being verie wet and unseasonable, the duke of Ormond came into Oxford at East Gate between one and two in the afternoone, accompanied with fourteen coaches or more: in which besides himself were his duchess and certain ladies; Arthur Annesley earl of Anglesey (Lord Privy Seale); Richard <Butler> earl of Arran; Peirce <Butler> viscount Galmoy; Francis <Aungier> viscount Longford<sup>3</sup>, &c.—The vicechancellour, Doctors, and Masters, who had been about an hour before called together by the ringing of St. Marie's great bell, received him at St. Marie's church dore.—His coach stood still while Dr. <Robert> South the Orator speake a speech to welcom him to Oxon in the Universitie name.—The undergraduates (who were also summoned together by that bell) were placed on both sides of Southgate street<sup>4</sup> from Carfax to Ch. Ch. great gate: and not in the High Street because 'twas market day and that the butchers<sup>5</sup> and other markating people were there.—Going with his coach into Ch. Ch. great quadrangle, <he> was received by the deane and students; and being conducted into his lodgings was welcom'd with a speech by Thomas viscount Kilmarrey<sup>6</sup> an upper commoner of that house.—After he had tarried there more than half an houre, went in his coach by Merton Coll. (with his retinew) to Magd. Coll. where being received by the vicechancellor (president<sup>7</sup> of Magd. Coll.) and the fellowes, was wellcomd with a speech spoken by Richard Annesley,

Being come up to his chaire, the vicechancellor receeded and stood on his right hand, saluting him with a short oration; and when all the company was settled, the orator stood up, made a speech, [filled<sup>5</sup>, according as his custome is, with flatteries]. He dined at North-Aston; from thence he went to his daughter’s the countess of Chesterfeild; and so into Ireland.

Henry Bold, somtimes of Ch. Ch., fellow of Eaton, and who succeeded Mr. <Thomas> Tomkyns in the chantership<sup>3</sup> of Exeter, died in France (at Montpellier, quaere) about the latter end of Sept. or beginning of Oct.

October.—About the beginning of this month, Mr. <Timothy> Nourse of Univ. Coll., who formerly turn'd Catholic, fell sick at London; and having something laying heavie on his conscience, sent for Dr. Simon Patrick minister of St. Paul Covent Garden, and told him

<sup>2</sup> this note is scored out in consequence of the following note:—'He died the 3 or 4 of Oct., as his son told me: quaere his epitaph that I have.' William Thomas, dean of Worc., was elected bishop of S. David's, 19 Nov. 1677.

of the church at Exeter' (b) 'chanter.' The note is partly in error. Henry Bold, B.D., was installed precentor (chanter) of Exeter Cathedral 30 Nov. 1668 (in succession to John Wilkins, bishop of Chester) and died 9 Sept. 1677. Thomas Tomkins, B.D., was installed chancellor of Exeter 8 Nov. 1669, died 20 Aug. 1675, and was succeeded by Edward Drewe on 25 Aug. 1675 and he by John Coplestone on 18 Sept. 1675.

that having been in an error, he desired to receive the sacrament according to the Protestant way. The Dr. told him that if his disease was not desperate that he would do well to consider of what he would do, and he would come to him the next day. The Dr. accordingly came, and Mr. Nourse continuing in the same mind received the sacrament from his hands. But then recovering of his sickness and repenting of what he had done, returned to his former opinions. So Dr. Patrick in a letter to Mr. <Samuel> Thomas of Ch. Ch. Otherwise I should not trouble you with newes, supposing you have it there. But somewhat here may be newes to you, viz. Dr. (Robert) South's resignation of the Orator's place. Thomas Frankland had taken his degree of Dr. of Physick in the University. But upon search into the registers 'twas found that he never took that degree, as 'twas also commonlie knowne.

He did take his Bachelor's degree of Divinity and renouncing his orders practized physick, and being an ambitious man and supposing the University would not grant that degree, he forged a writing; and therupon was admitted into the college of Physitians, became censor, and I know not what.

You must note that all that was done at the Convocation was a letter from 9 members of the College of Physitians of London to the University to desire them to set the common seal to writing witnessing that Thomas Frankland was not D. of Ph<isick>. The convocation yeilded to have the seal set to it. He hath forged a will also—proved.

[Nov. 15, Th., Mr. Thomas Franckland<sup>1</sup>, B.D. somtimes of Brasenose College being a candidate for to be Dr. of the College of Physitians London, which he could not be, produced a false diploma for being Dr. of Physic of Oxon: but the phisitians of the College of London suspecting forgery (for among Cantabrigians he would be an Oxford doctor, and among Oxonians a Cambridge doctor) they sent privatly to Dr. <James> Hyde, Regius Professor <of Medicine>, and Benjamin Cooper, registrar, to search the registers whether ever he took such degree. So that being ascertain'd of it, sent a Latine letter to the vicechancellor, doctors, proctors, and masters, to acquaint them with the forgery, desiring withall to certifie the president and community of the College of Physitians under their seal that he is no Dr. of Phys. This letter was subscribed by 9 physitians of the college, wherof John Betts was one, Thomas Alvey and Nathaniel Hodges two more. The registers being searched, they by their diploma did certifie them that he was only B.D., etc., that <he was> never promoted to any degree of physick with them.—This Frankland is a proud haughty man, scornfull and undervaluing; and therefore not beloved by the physitians.]

Charles lord Herbert, eldest son of Henry marquis of Worcester, was matriculated as a member of Ch. Ch., aet. 16, natus Lond. I set this downe here because the father and ancestrey are and were all Catholiques, but because the mother is a presbyterian, she (against the father's will, as 'tis said) will have him bred up a Protestant. So that by this chang the Catholicks will loose the considerablest family in England, and the richest subject that the king hath.

Lord Courcy<sup>5</sup> of Ireland also, a child of 8 or 10, was lately sent to Ch. Ch. to be bred up under Dr. <John> Fell in the Protestant religion and now (Nov. 1678) is put into a gowne.

Dec. 14, F., a flying report that the M(aste)rs should be put out of the Convocation house, because that they in the election of orator had proved mutinous: for so Dr. (Richard) Allestreya had represented it to the King, who said that ‘they deserved to be put out.’ The vice-chancellor then<sup>3</sup> proposed his man (Thomas) Manningham of New Coll. The M(aste)rs they would not be imposed upon and therefore they set up Thomas Bayley of Magd. Coll.; but he being absent, the vice-chancellor told them that ‘he was not to be chosen because he being absent could not take the oath that he did not ambire’ (i.e. give money for voices to be chosen). So that he being cashi(e)red and the M(aste)rs as ’twere forced to take the vice-chancellor’s man (Manningham), they cried out as in election of a towne burgess ‘*Cradock! <sup>1</sup> see Clark's Wood's City of Oxford i. p. 474, note 4.

situated upon a sandy ground, and hath formerlie been well wooded. It once belonged to the Fyfeilds and from them to the Golafres, as from Leland's words [vol. 4 Itiner. p. 2 in initio] is attested. The 28 May 1678 I was at Fyfeild and in the church saw the monuments. . . . Note that <William> Latton<sup>1</sup>, now fellow of Wadham Coll. (son of Thomas aforesaid<sup>2</sup>), came into that College as a founder's kinsman. The aforesaid Thomas Latton (son of John Latton esq.) hath severall years since conveyed his estate away at Kingston<sup>3</sup>. He afterwards (or about that time) changed his religion to that of the Roman and lived at London. Upon the breaking out of the plot, 1678, he came to Oxon for refuge, and there (at Rewley house) hath with his wife ever since lived. He went thence to London and died there in the summer time 1681 aged 60 or therabouts.

Going hence towards Farington, wee have Buckland on the right, and Pusay on the left hand, two villages.

In the church of the first I found <coats of arms and monuments>.

In Pusay church, in the church yard a brass fixd to the side of a raised monument :—

'Richard Pusey alias Peasey, Pescod, Pecod, etc., died Aug. 2, 1655, aet. 34; relictæ p<osuit> Jun. 30, 1656.'

These Puseys are of antient extraction and hold their lands from their ancestors by the horne as given unto them in antient time by King Canutus the Dane. The picture of this horne with the inscription on it, Elias Ashmole, Windsore herald, took in his visitation of Berkshire anno 1664. Over the dore that goes into the chancell on the outside :—

'William White<sup>4</sup>:

God that sent him into the world May 21, 1651, said May 10, 1655,
"Returne, thou son of sorry man." Psm. 90, 3.'

From Pusey I returned into my old way and left Wadley on the left hand. A verie fine mannour belonging to Oriel Coll. (as I have told in that Coll. in 'Hist. Oxon.') now held by the Purefoyes of Draton in com. Leicester, and before by the Untons.

Thence I went to Faryndon [see Leland Itin. vol. 2 p. 21]. In the church I observed (the monuments). (The stone to Henry Unton <sup>1</sup>) was put up in 1658, because the former was pulled downe in the civill warr anno 1643 or therabouts.

MSS., and most notes of inscriptions in churches, giving only Wood's itinerary.

From Faryngdon I rode towards St. John's Bridge <sup>2</sup>. From S. John's bridge to Leechlade, about half a mile.

At this place of Leechlade John Rouse the Warwic antiquary tells us that in most antient time was a 'studium' for leeches or physitions as Creeklade was for Greecians, but our Historiola of Oxon (which is a preface to the Statutes of the Universitie) mentioneth no such thing. The chronicle called Brompton's Chronicle saith that the Latines settled a Latin schoole there and that it was from them called Latinelade and since Leechlade. But these things being dubious or rather vanities, I shall let them passe. See 'Hist. et Antiq. Oxon' lib. 1 in initio.

From Leechlade I rode to Fayrford. Going into the church I saw a raised monument of blew marble built between the chancell and north isle adjoining. On the said tombe are the portractures of a man in armour and a woman, engraven on larg brass plates, with this inscription round the verg:—

'Orate pro animabus Johannis Tame armigeri et Alicie uxoris ejus, qui quidem Johannes obiit VIII die mensis Maii anno domini MCCCCC et anno regni regis Henrici VII<sup>i</sup> XVI<sup>o</sup>, et praedicta Alicia obiit XX die mensis Decembris anno domini MCCCCLXXI.'

Round about the said tombe are Tame's armes cut on brass plates, viz. a dragon and a lyon combitant; impaling, a cheveron between 3 parrets <sup>3</sup> (or cootes or magpies). At the feet of their effigies is this engraven on a brass plate:—

'For Jesu's love pray for me,
I cannot pray now, pray ye,
With a Pater noster and an Ave,
That my panes releas'd may be.'

This inscription with part of the former that began with 'Orate' was taken away in the late warr or rebellion and laid up in the vestry, because, forsooth, it savoured too much of popery.

The church may compare with any country church in England.

'I believe it was dedicated to S. John

Baptist and from thence the bridge had its name.'

It is built crossways, hath a stately tower in the middle, and a tunable ring of bells. The church is adorned with pinacles and sculptures of men's faces and armes, within with a fair roof, floor, organ loft (containing a good set of organs before the warr time), altars, pedestalls, offering-places as well in the walls of the church as chancell. The windowes also, considering the time when set up (about 200 yeares agoe), may compare with severall cathedralls. See a copie of verses in a book of poems<sup>1</sup> called 'University Poems,' which largely testifieth the worth of them.

Some think that the Georg Inn in Fairford was a chauntry house for preists to celebrate for the soules of the Tames in the parish church. There is the same effigies of a man cut in stone over the dore, as there is on the tower of the church, perhaps the effigies of one of the Tames.

. . . Baker, present lord of Fairford, hath obtained of the king a weekly market here and two yearly faires. It lives by a thorow-faire, vide Gazet 167 $\frac{4}{5}$ .

On the 29 May 1678 I went to Cirencester from Fairford and in the verie fair church there with a steple and 8 bells therin I found these inscriptions on grave stones. . . . St. Catherin's chappell is on the north side of the chancell. On the north side of S. Katherine's is our Ladie's chappell. Trinitie chappell is on the north side of the church. S. John's chappell is on the south side of the chancell. Jesus chappell is by the south isle.—Note that in an old house in the street at the west end of the church are in every window therin old coates of armes, viz. the armes of Thame of Fairford with the impalements of that family and the empalements and quarterings of the wives of that family. 'Tis an old house built with a great deal of timber (knowne now by the name of the Swan) tempore Henr. VII by Tame that built Fairford church. Mr. Thomas Gore of Alderton in Wilts hath taken with his pen all the coates of armes in the house: see John Aubrey's book B, p. 309. [Wheras<sup>2</sup> severall causes have been alleged to us for putting off the public Act this yeare, by reason wherof it cannot be celebrated with the usuall solemnity, wee according to the power of the chancellor delegated to us in that behalf do hereby give our consent and recommend it to the heads of houses to have a dispensation proposed in Convocation that the Act for this present yeare be intermitted and that the proceeders in each faculty may, notwithstanding, upon payment of all fees, be compleated—given under our hands and seales, S., 8 June 1678.

John Nicholas, vicechancellor.
Tho. Jeames.

Hen. Clerke.
Ra. Bathurst.]

10 June, M., voted in Convocation that no Act should be celebrated this yeare, under pretence that there was no Doctor <of Divinity> proceeded; but the tru reason was, that (the town and Universitie being at variance) the Universitie would not contribute to their enrichment, to pluck out the Universitie's eyes. I heard this at the Bath, Th., 20th June.—Another reason was that the red coat dragoons watched and warded every night and kept guard at their officers' doors, and the University knew not but that they might abuse the strangers that came to the Act.

[Georg Croyden<sup>3</sup>, Doctor of Law and canon of Christ Church, died, F., 14 June 1678 aet. 60 and was buried in the Cathedrall of Christchurch. He was the son of Georg Croyden of Temple-Combe in com. Somerset, gent.; and took to wife . . . the daughter of . . . Heydon (descended from those of Hertfordshire), the widdow of Thomas Garfoot, gent.; but had no issue by her. <Arms:—> 'argent a chevron gules between 3 crowes (or ravens) sable armed gules; impaling, quarterlie argent and blue a cross ingrailed counterchanged of the feild.' verted beyond the memorie of man into a free schoole, and lodgings for a Master.

Over the dore, next to the street, leading into the said schoole is this engraven on a freestone table :—

‘Schola libera grammaticalis ad institutionem puerorum Bathon. in lingua Latina, instruct. ex institutione Edwardi Sexti quondam Regis Angliae, anno regni sui sexto, anno domini 1552.’]

[Memorandum<sup>1</sup> that June 19 anno 1678 being then at Bathe I walked out of the south gate to a village in the parish of Widcombe called Hollow-way, because deep and hollow in the side of a verie steep hill leading from Bathe to Wells. That part below the way is not verie steep and therefore most houses of the said village stand there, but the other part above is so steep that it lookes rather like a green wall than hill. In the middle part of this hollow way on the right hand stands a little old decrepit hospitall built originally for lunaticks. At this time there are but two; lately four; and formerlie there have been six lunaticks. On the west side of this hospitall is a pretty chappell now standing, and over the porch dore leading therunto hath been a brass inscription to shew who had been the founder of that chappell, but it hath been long since toren off. After I had entred into the porch I found on the east wall of the said porch these verses engraven on stone in an English character :—

‘Thys chapill floryschyd with formosyte spectabyll
In honor of Mary Magdalen prior Cantlow hath edyfyd
Desyring you to pray for hym with yowre prayers delectabyll
That sche wyll inhabyt hym in hevyn, there evyr to abyde.’

On the roof of the porch is cut in wood on a sheild a key and a dagger saltire wise, which is the armes of the priory of Bathe. . . .

The windows of this chappell are full of painted effigies (set up in the beginning of King Henry VIII) viz. of scripture saints, namelie, the two Maries, St. Peter, St. Barthelmew, S. Philip, S. James, etc. also on each side of the east window is a neach<sup>2</sup> in which probablie have been the images of the two Maries and on the north side of the chappell is another neach wherin probablie hath stood the image of S. Peter.

This hospitall and chappell is called S. Marie Magdalen’s hospitall and chappell: and hath belonging therunto as I conceive an yearlie fair which is kept on the hill above it.

The two lunaticks that are now there (of which one is a female) are kept by an old man who is a cobbler and keeper thereof, and hath paid yearlie to him for their diet and lodging 13*li*.]

[The<sup>1</sup> 28 June 1678 I went from Bathe to Malmsburie in Wiltshire, once famous for a rich and well endowed abbey, the ruins<sup>2</sup> of the church wherof do shew that it hath been a verie statelie and proud fabrick. It is seated upon a little hill which descends every way about it, and upon part of the descent stands the towne once verie famous for cloathing but now poore and ragged. When I came within the churchyard I found the body of the church onlie standing and that scarce to, for if I am not mistaken part<sup>3</sup> of its west end hath been pulled downe. As for the larg choire and north and south cross isles with the most larg and statelie tower<sup>4</sup> in the middle, were as I conceive demolished at the dissolution tempore Henr. VIII; and the bodie that remained was with much ado purchased of the king by T. Stumps a wealthie clothier of Malmburie to the end that it might serve for a church for the parish.

The porch leading into the said bodie is the most statelie and costlie carved peice of work that my eyes ever beheld, carrying with it also a verie venerable face of antiquity. It is broad withoutside and by degrees as you enter is lesser, and upon the columns that so lessen the entry are well carved little scripture stories in every little part of each columne, as before, in the proportion<sup>5</sup> of the gate, you may see.

When you are in the porch you may see on one side in the wall the effigies of 6 of Christ's disciples curiouslie cut in stone and the effigies of our Saviour hovering over them. On the other side you may see the like.

When I entred into the church I had a strang veneration came upon me to see the ruins of such a majestick and gigantick pile, with windowes over windowes and walkes over walks in the walls, statelie pillars, curious carved work every where. But as for monuments I found not one antient but that of king Ethelstan a Saxon king (son of Edward the elder) who died anno 940 which is more than an 100 and 20 yeares before the Norman conquest. The description of this monument is according to my observation thus:—Between the two upper pillars on the south side of this bodie of the church now remaining is an altar monument<sup>1</sup> of a yard and a quarter high, all built of plain free-stone, like in a manner to such stone monuments that wee see standing in our churchyards. On the top of the said monument layes the short<sup>2</sup> proportion of a man in a loose garment like a gowne, reaching to his feet, but without sleeves. He hath a coronet on his head, a ball in his left hand, and a scepter in his right. His head being defaced in the late civill warr, the inhabitants put on another with a bushie beard, but whether like to the former I cannot tell. At and beyond his head layes an antient carved peice of tabernacular worke, much like that over our founder's head (Walter de Merton) that is over Merton College gate. Under the said tabernacular work were not long since seen some bones. All which, except the scepter, is of free stone. There is a lyon also couchant at his feet and on each side of the king's head sets an angell all of freestone also; but the angells seeme to be new, and not unlikelie added to the monument. This monument I suppose did formerlie stand in the choire on the south side, but removed to this place at the dissolution.

In the place of the choire is now a garden belonging to a gentleman's house at the east end of the body of the church, or on the east side at some distance.

At the upper end of this body is a monument for one Hobbes who died anno 1606 of the family of Hobbes of Newport, a little hamlet joyning to Malmsbury, where our great philosopher, Thomas Hobbes of Malmsburie, received his first breath.

Not one coat of armes in the windowes of this church.]

[From<sup>3</sup> Malmsbury I went to Cricklade, a little mercat towne wherin are two churches, the biggest hath a steeple and within side of it are the Universitie armes of Oxon: supposed by some (but I believe false) that the Universitie of Oxon was at that place. 'Tis an wholesome seat and prettie places about it. Thence to Latton, a little village within 2 mile of it, where the Lattin tongue<sup>4</sup> was professed.]

<sup>1</sup> in closing his transcript of Leland's account of Malmsbury, Wood notes:— 'not one word of a monument in the abbey chirch, and particularly that of King Ethelstan which the inhabitants shew to this day.'

[Old Oates was originally a silke weaver in the city of Norwich where for many years he followed his trade, and married, and amongst other his children had Tytus Oates the informer, and was ever there justly esteemed as a moste turbulent and factious ffellow. And then in the tyme of Oliver's usurpacion removing his residence to Yarmouth, he became an annabaptist preacher and proceeded therein with great applause of the factious rabble, till haveing perswaded a woman great with childe and neare her time of delivery to be dipt or rebaptised, who instantly dyed in the water under his hands as he was performing his wickedly pretended function, it being in a cold season of the yeare; for which his villainous cryme he was there (being within the jurisdiction of the Sinque-Ports) tryed for his life, but the jury, consisting (as it was believed) of pickt rascalls of his owne gang, found him not guilty. And now finding himselfe somewhat ympayrd in his reputacion amongst his brethren, he quitted Yarmouth and betooke himselfe to the fleete at sea till, about his majestie's restoracion, by his cunning suttle tricks and behavior he became incumbent of a church in Hastings by the sea side in Sussex.

Tytus Oates the sonn, as a servant to a young gentleman, obtain'd some little learning in Cambridge, and then his father procured with the now duke of Norfolk who presented this young Tytus Oates to a small benefice in Norfolk whereby he quickly obtained orders, and almost as soone, by sale, made ready money thereof, causing another to be inducted in his roome; and with the money procured to be preferred a minister on board one of his majestie's men of warr in the Dutch war about anno 1666. And from thence, for severall yeares officiated on board divers other shippes to the streights and other parts. And since, being much at home with his said ffather at Hastings, haveing ended his sea voyadge, he frequently assisted his said ffather in his church duties of preaching, etc.; till being at London attending to get some ymployment as formerly at sea, he moste hipocritically in a great deal of seeming zeal applyed himself to some of the fathers at Sumerset house where, he saith, he was reconciled and became very gracious in their ffavour for at least a moneth, and then meeting with a dispatch for sea againe he found an oppertunity in the sacrist and thence stole away a box of breads which in derision he cal'd a 'box of gods' and said he used them to seal his lettres for above halfe a yeare after. This he reported at his returne from sea that voyadge, which was about the year 1670. And then continued with his ffather as formerly. Where both of them by their vile practices and behaviors became cumbersome and indeed odious to all or most of their parish, endeavoring (amongst other their wicked tricks) to supplant one William Parker th' younger of a schoole-master's place there, purposeing to settle this young Titus therein; which, together with many other their intollerable unjust dealings, moved and stir'd up the parishioners to exhibit articles to the ordinary to evict old Oates, of which, after a while, he grew to be in great apprehension, and therefore essayed the sollicitacion of divers of his ffrriends upon the parishioners but without ffruit, for they persisted effectually. Whereupon a certaine person who had been very instrumentall in endeavouring a reconciliacion amongst them, by accident meeting Tytus Oates, in conference (amongst other things) demaunded of him how now at last matters were like to goe betweene his ffather and his parishioners, who presently answered 'it was no matter, for there were now irons in the fire which if they tooke a right heat would doe the worke.' Whereupon shortly afterwards William Parker the elder (father of the said William the younger) governor of Hastings and one of the principall parishioners and sticklers to the byshop against Oats was sent for to his majestie's privy councell to answeere divers objections and articles of high treason exhibited by the two Oates; but after a great deal of trouble and charge capt. Wm. Parker was honorably dismiss, to the exceeding joy of all his neibors and friends, expressed at his returne home by ringing of bells etc., though the Oateses fayld not to make good their charge by possitive oat(h)es. Now this machinacion fayling, another within halfe a yeare was put on foote against William Parker the younger, sonne of the said capt. William Parker the governor; for young Oats about Easter then following inform'd the mayor of Hastings that, about 2 moneths then before, he accidentally tooke the young Parker (in the church porch of the parish, about the close of the day, he named) in the abominable and most unnaturall act of generacion with a young and tender man-childe; for which young Parker upon bayle was bound to answeere at their next sessions, which shortly after was purposely held for his tryall. Where old Oates swore as to circumstances, but the young one point-blanke as to the fact. Yet many of the suffici(ent)est of the prisoner's neibors there unanimously aver'd that the prisoner, the day, houre, and place alleadged in the bill of indiction, was with them in the same towne at a ffeast where they continued together till near midnight, the place of feasting being near halfe a mile from the place alleadged; and the child abused neither produced or heard of. So that the jury found the said young Parker not guilty. Who being dismissed, to the infinite gladness of the spectators, so soone as the court arose presently caused the said Tytus Oats to be arrested in an action of 1000*l.* damage. Who, for want of bayle, lay some tyme in Hastings goale, till by habeas corpus removed to the superior prison of Dover. Where after he had continued a while, he prevaile (as it was believed) by corruption, that he escaped thence to London and lay in obscurity there, being most earnestly pursued and sought for. But to avoid that danger flyeth into Flaunders; and reduc't to great necessity, bethinks himselfe of his former tricke, as at Sumerset house, and very penently addresses himselfe to the religious of the Society at St. Omer, where he pretended a great call to enter into religion but was soone discovered and sent to England againe, where he lived upon the allowance and charity of the order till, observing his extravagancies, they held their hand: and then he fell to acting another part.

Old Oats was outed of his benefice and lives sculking in London about Bloomsbury upon the friendly allowance of his holy sisters till now upon the point of advancement againe by meanes of his sonn's discoveries.]

him into another study and shew'd him divers letters from Mr. Ralf Sheldon (with others) the last of which was dated about the last of July 1678. All which he perused, but could find nothing but great expressions of love and kindness in Mr. Sheldon's letters. Afterwards he told me that I must receive the oath of alleigiance. I answered him I would if he would appoint a time. Wherefore he told me that next morning at 10 of the clock he should be at leisure.

Note that the reason why he should say that I kept correspondence, arose, I suppose, from my comming into Oxford on Thursday, 14(th) of Nov., at which time, as I rode by S. John's Coll. between 12 and one, severall of that college walking before the gate saw me, and the next day when I went out at that time they saw me againe; and one of them, as 'tis probable, made the report.

He studies to be active and shew himself zealous in his office; and sorry he seem'd to be, because he could find nothing, that he could not please the parliament: he would <have> hanged me.

Dec. 2, Munday, at 10 of the clock, I waited on Mr. vice-chancellor Dr. <John> Nicholas. Dec. 13, F., the archdeaconry of Gloucester <was> conferred on Thomas Hyde, A.M., proto-bibliothecarius, on the death of John Gregory somtimes a student of Cambridge, by bishop <John> Prichett<sup>1</sup> who marries Thomas Hyde's wife's kinswoman. Vide in Dr. Hugh Robinson 1655.

Note that one whom they call Father Lovell, a Jesuit, hath lived in Oxford many yeares to supply service for the Catholics in and neare Oxon; but upon the late proclamation for the taking and secur-ing all Jesuits and Rom<ish> preists, the house wherin he lives, viz. Mrs. Hunt'<s> at the Castle mill, hath, since the proclamation <hath> been published, <been> searched as they say twice for him: and Munday Dec. 16 (he being seen in Oxon early in the morning) the house againe was searched that day between 11 and 12 in the morning. His being seen is but a report, and the searching of that house was but in course when they did all the papists' houses in towne. They say once he took water behind Mrs. Fulks' house.

About a week before, Mr. William Joyner (somtimes of Magd. Coll., fellow, who left his religion in the late warr and became a Roman Catholic but not in orders, lived very pure<sup>2</sup> and had severall contributions made for him from that Colledge; but upon the late proclamation retiring to his brother's house at Horspath) was there taken; and, as 'tis said, upon refusall of the oath of supreamacy, was se<c>ured<sup>3</sup>; but upon security given to appeare at the sessions next was released. (This Joyner hath written a play or two, and therefore bring him in inter scriptores<sup>4</sup> Coll. Magd. Quaere Dr. Currie's letter to King James.) This was done by the vice-chancellor's warrant, supposing him to have been a preist; but he <gave> security for his appearance at the quarter sessions.

Thomas Latton, somtimes of Kingston Bakepuze in Berks, left his religion since the king's restauration and sheltred himself, as 'tis said, among the Jesuits, came to Oxon in this month, and lodged himself at Francis Aldar's against the Fleur de Liz. The mayor having notice of it, went and tendered to him the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, wherupon he gave security for his appearance next sessions after the 12 day<sup>1</sup>. His eldest son is with him, and he, they say, <has> taken it, and will leave the Roman religion.

One at London clapt up in prison for saying there were but 5 protestant bishops in England viz. Oxon (<John> Fell), London <Henry Compton,> Exeter <Thomas Lamplugh>, Sarum <Seth Ward>, and Lyncoln <Thomas Barlow>.

Dec. 23, M., din'd with Dr. <John> Lamph<ire>; Dr. J.<sup>2</sup> there ask'd me 'whether I was not yet summoned before the King's counsell' (I asked 'why he thought so<sup>3</sup>') and other foolery, but no more than I expected from him. Dr. <John> Hall M<aster of> P<embroke> there; took no notice of me when he came in or at the table or when he went away; only, if I were talking with any body, he would be still saying 'What is that he saith?' being minded to pick a quarrell with me about religion. A malepert presbyterian since this plot, nothing of maleperteness before.

Dec. 29, Su., in the news letter Sir Winstan Churchill removed from his place in the green cloth, somtimes of S. John's, quaere his book. Vide alibi.

This plot will undo all what the Catholicks have endeavoured to do since the king's restauration.

Many pamphlets come out now against popery and papists, and some old ones with new titles put to them; great rascallity and theev-ing from other books meerly to get money or cheat.

Nothing but pamphlets are taken into scolars' hands and they buy nothing else. Serious books and books of matter are neglected. Prating of news, and coffee-houses, bantering, annis 1678, 79, 80.

'Covenanters and presbyterians have been the ruine of many families, the authour of bloodshed, the causes of decay of common honesty; and from their base dealings wee see how the former pietie and plaine dealing of this nation is turned into cruelty and cunning'—so Isaac Walton in the 'life<sup>4</sup> of bishop Sanderson.'

Why doth solid and serious learning decline and few or none follow it now in the Universitie? Answer—because of coffey houses where they spend all their time; and in entertainments at their chambe⟨rs⟩, where their studies and cole-houses are become places for vittlers<sup>5</sup>; also great drinking at tavernes and ale-houses. Spending their time in common chambers whole afternoones, and thence to the coffee house.

<At the beginning of this Almanac are some notes which may be brought in here:—>

Dr.<sup>2</sup> Thomas Goodwin lives this yeare in S. Barthelmew's close, London. [Died there].

Before the warr brooke forth, sermons they say were 12*d* a peice (rather 8*d* or 9*d*) and playes 6*d* a-peice: but now (and from the fire, 1666) playes are 12*d* a peice and sermons 6*d*. Refer'd to in Almanac 1666, Sept.

4000 <li.> per annum collected for the poor of St. Giles-in-the-fields, London; but in a year's time after the plot was discovered, and the papists banished<sup>3</sup>, it fell 700*li.* the year.

The contributions throughout England and Wales for the poore arises to five hundred thousand pound per annum, but before the alteration of religion there was no such contribution, nor repairing of bridges or high-wayes. This is able to maintaine an army.

300*li.* per annum collected<sup>4</sup> in Oxon for the poore.

Is it not a shame that it should be accounted unusuall for scholars to go to Austen disputations, and that the Masters of the Schooles speake English to them?

[Matthew<sup>5</sup> Smalwood, decanus Lychfeld., olim commensalis Coll. Aen., succeeded Dr. Paul (quaere) 166—.] Dr. Thomas Wood succeeded him <Paul>: and him <Wood>, Smalwood.

I have noted somewhere that Dr. . . . Oldsworth<sup>6</sup> died in summer: but Mr. <Richard> Watkins tells me he died in Nov. 1679, quaere, or <16>80.

error; the second part is a correction of it. The succession in the deanery of Lichfield was—William Paul, dean 26 Jan. 166<sup>9</sup>/<sub>10</sub> to 1663; Thomas Wood, dean 166<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> to 1671; Matthew Smallwood, dean 1671 to 26 Apr. 1683.

<sup>6</sup> perhaps Thomas Holdsworth, prebendary of Durham (May 1675), died in 1680; or Giles Oldisworth, died in Nov. 1678.

After the breaking out of the popish plot severall of our scholars were tried<sup>1</sup> and at length were (1680) discovered to be whiggs, viz., in primo loco, Georg Reynell of C. C. C., looked upon as alwayes a round-head; <Henry> Hill<sup>2</sup> of C. C. C., a scandall to the clerical profession; Joseph Tayler of S. John's; <James> Parkinson of Lync. <Coll.>; . . . Duncomb<sup>3</sup>, a drunken M<aste>r of S. Marie Hall, a scandall to the cler<ical> profession (see in Almanac 1683); <John> Pratt<sup>4</sup> of Wadham; <John> Lock<sup>5</sup> of Ch. Ch., quaere elsw<ere>.

One <John> Huff<sup>6</sup> of Magd. Coll., who succeeded . . . Kyngsmyll<sup>7</sup> (that went over to the church of Rome anno 1671 or therabouts), had his chamber searched in Oct. or Nov. last for letters from Kyngsmyll. Became chaplain to the duke of Ormond 1681; went there and sea bound in Feb. 1681 <i. e.  $\frac{1}{2}$ >, and so lost preferment upon the translation and transmutation of places on the death of some bishops. Now (<16>85, 1686) chaplain to the duke of Ormond.

Upon this breaking out of the plot, papists, and men and women popishly affected, were avoided, as the prelatie were by the presbyterians and independents in the broken times. But the yeare after when people saw that presbyterians got advantage by it or endeavoured so to doe, then <they> were not shie.

January.—In the beginning of this month<sup>8</sup>, Dr. <Thomas> Barlow, bishop of Lyncoln, published a book against the papists<sup>9</sup>, price two shillings, sticht, 4to. None of all the bishops appeared in public but he. By most people laughed at because published to kick them further when they were falling. Had he published 8 yeares before when all people expected it, it had relished the better; but now not so, with sober and observing men.

Beginning of Jan. I heard that Benjamin Parry was dead, and that the pro-

A great complaint for want of trade and the stirring of money, not onlie in London but in Oxford and elsewhere. People fearfull because the plot might produce a rebellion.

In the beginning of this month Mr. W(illiam) Joyner told me that Mr. (Francis) Hunt (S. Clara) was dead half an yeare since. False: I heard in Sept. 1679 that he was living in Somerset house.

Jan 1, W., at night news came by the common letter that the parliament was prorogued the 30 Dec. till 4 of Feb. All supposed to be done in favour of the earl of Danby<sup>2</sup> lord Treasurer, who (about a week or ten days before) had six articles of impeachment drawne up against him by the house of Commons. See those articles which I have<sup>3</sup>; I sent them to Mr. (William) Fulman. The K(ing) was so wise as to send for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen to tell them what he had done and withall that prosecution against the plotters should go on: so that the edge of people's careere against the papists is somewhat blunted. The Parliament was prorogued Dec. 30 (Monday) at 2 in the afternoone.

[Tell me, my brother of the Roman see,
What meant our late and hasty thoughts to flee?
As if the lawes design'd against our church
Were like to prove more sharp than Busbye's<sup>3</sup> birch.
Run not away,
Doubt not to stay,
Our breech is safe, our danger is quite ore,
The rods wee feared are now throwne out of dore;
The angry Commons, who did like foxes sit,
Unkenneld are, thanks to an amorous fit.
Be not afraid, Doubt not of aid.
Things now grow ripe apace; ere long you'l see
Old England once more blessed with Popery:
Expect a happy issue of our plot,
Whatever Oates hath done hurts not one jot, Feare not, my boyes, Treasons are toyes.

How is that treacherous villaine greived to see
 No credit given to his discovery:
 Bedlow doth prove an ass; but honest Prank<sup>1</sup>
 For saying and unsaying wee must thanke.

Prick up your eares      Away with feares.
 'Twas wiselie done to send him in, whose test
 That's off and on supplants and voids the rest.
 The best rewards that wee can give are due
 To him who makes men think the plot's not true.

If not, then why      Must Coleman dye?
 What means Will. Ireland's blood, with that of Grove,
 Lately our martyrs, now our saints above?
 The court would faine have spared them, and they dye
 A sacrifice to bare necessity.

Their deaths delay      Did make men say
 Shrewd things too soone, for every Hugonot
 Talk'd that the Court itself was in the plot.
 But when the juncto was kick'd out, 'twas good
 To still the incensed rout with these men's blood

Whose fatal ends      Seemed some amends.
 That Pickering scapes, wee give it out that hee
 Lives yet to make some more discovery:
 With this poore silly Lollards rest content,
 And with vain hopes of their next parliament.

Courage, my boyes,      'Bate not your toyes:
 For should the expected juncto meet agen
 Three ladies can out-vote five hundred men.
 What bills shall pass 'tis at the females' choice:
 Good soules! 'Tis fit you have a negative voice:
 Such is your zeale that, to do good, 'tis knowne
 You'l kiss another's breech or shew your owne.

Doubt not success; We have a mess
 Of modest dames who for our sakes were faint
 To shew their other face that hath no paint:
 And whilst such well-skinn'd ladies take our part
 All votes against us are not worth a fart.

Cheer up, my lads,      Provide your pads:
 The cause wee have in hand cannot but thrive
 Whilst Mazarine and Portsmouth is alive.
 Bless these good madams, yee lords in the Tower;
 Feare not the block, whilst females are in power

Charles is too good      To shed more blood.
 What though your scaffolds be set up? The axe
 Which hewed those bords may never touch the necks.
 The house of Peers you need not feare
 Whilst great and trustie freinds do still sit there.

Courage my lords      Feare not big words.
 Perhaps the house of Commons wee may pack
 By giving smoake and ale to Tom and Jack:

<sup>1</sup> marginal note:—'Prance,' i. e. Miles Prance.

But whome wee cannot bribe, wee'l overawe
 And make them tast of militarie law:
 Lollards, comply
 Or look to dye.
 You must one of the twaine—
 Your soldiers may fight,
 Your bishops may write,—
 But now 'twill all be in vaine.

Great Tom of Lyncolne<sup>1</sup>, though the deepest bell,
 Too shallow is to sound our church'es knell.
 If he shall ring more peeles, our pope
 He<sup>2</sup> will tye up his clapper with a rope.
 With him if our strong reasons will not doe,
 Yet can he baffle swords and faggots too.
 He thinks his letter cant be answered,—but
 The knots wee cant untie, wee'l easily cut.
 Wee at command have so many men
 Defie the troopers' swords, the scholars' pen,
 Wee care not for our armed and learned foe,
 The plot goeth on cum privilegio.

After the writts had been read, was a strange noise made in the Convocation house: some cried out Hennage Finch, others Lamphire, another Edisbury; and being like to prove troublesome, the vicechancellor, with consent of the house, appointed two Masters for each person that was a candidate to take votes; viz. Mr. (Nathan) Pelham and Mr. (Anthony) Rouse of New Coll. for Dr. John Lamphire; (Baptist) Levins of Magd. Coll. and (Edward) Trelawny of Ch. Ch. for (Heneage) Fince; and . . . meet on the 6 March. A Convocation therefore being celebrated 27 Feb. (Th.) at 8 in the morning, stood to be elected <1> Heneage Finch, sollicitor gennerall in the place of Sir Fr<ancis> Wynnyngton, a yonger son of the Lord Chancellor—he was not here himself, but had his agents. <2> Dr. John Lamphire, M.D., History Professor. <3> Dr. John Eddisbury, LL.D. of Brasnose. Dr. Henry Yerbury of Magd. Coll. did stand also, but in compliment to the attorney<sup>1</sup> general was taken off by the vice-chancellor and others, about a fortnight before the election.

The sollicitor<sup>2</sup> general had 201 votes, Dr. Lamphire had 209, Dr. Eddisbury 245. But the vice-chancellor<sup>3</sup> and heads having a mind that the sollicitor general<sup>4</sup> should be chosen for the good of the universitie, would not pronounce the election after the scrutinie was finisht, which by statute he ought to have done, but delay'd till such time those that had given but one vote (who againe were called in) to give for another person. So that by that means Finch having more then Lamphire, the vice-chancellor proposed to the Convocation whether the indentures of election should be sealed, but the non-partie being most, the bishop (Dr. Fell) was sent for, who though he pleaded hard for his owne man (Finch somtimes of his house), yet the non's prevailed still, and Dr. Lamphire againe protested against the unlawfulness of it. So about one of the clock the Convocation was dissolved.

Eddisbury carried it by the juniors and potmen, he being one himselfe. But after all was done, it was found that the calculators had mistaken the votes and numbred Mr. Finches to be less by 4 than Dr. Lamphire's. Wherupon the vice-chancellour avouching it tru to Dr. Lamphire, he rests quiet.

Note that Eddisbury and his party went to, the night before the election, and got all Magd. and Ch. Ch. votes; for Dr. Lamphire had 18 at Magd. and more at Ch. Ch.

The vice-chancellor shew'd himself false to Dr. Lamphire at that time, though a pretended freind to him. We were poled by two writers, without swearing, in the Divinity School—Trewlawney one.

Friday, Apr. 11, a 'fast or day appointed for all his majestie's subjects to seek by fasting and prayer a reconciliation with Almighty God and with humble and penitent harts to implore him by his power and goodness to infatuate and defeat the wicked counsellors and imaginations of our enemies, and to continue his mercies and the light of the gospel to us and our posterity and to bestow his abundant blessings, upon his sacred majestie and this present parliament that their counsellors and endeavours may produce honorable safety.'—This is canting; for they do not care for the king: and their fast is that the preachers may rail and make the commonalty out of love with his majestie's loyall subjects. Damn'd presbytery! they pretend to love the king and rejoyce much in his recovery from a dangerous sickness at Windsore this yeare: but yet they'l not give him money in any of these parliaments.

Wheras in a sermon before the University of Oxon in the church of St. Peter's in the East on the 13 Apr. 1679, I, Thomas Smart of St. John's College in Oxon A.M., did very unadvisedly treat concerning God's decrees contrary to the king's commands in that case, and in irreverent and unseemly language, I am very sensible of my fault and hartily sorry for it and humbly crave pardon for the same; Thomas Smart, 17 Apr. 1679.]

July 4, F., I went to Weston, tarried there till the 6 of November, at what time Mr. Sheldon sent me home—pretended<sup>5</sup> then to goe to London but returned in three days after.

The same day I sent certaine animadversions on part of Gilbert Burnet’s ‘History of the Reformation of the Church of England,’ dated (S.) 5 July, to Sir Will. Dugdale who is to give them to the

<sup>5</sup> Wood is hurt at this polite fiction for getting him out of the house, and clearly is too dull to reflect that his visit had been prolonged beyond endurance. Wood 159 (Richard Lassel’s Voyage of Italy) is a souvenir of this visit, having this note by Wood, ‘Antonii à Wood ex dono Radulphi Sheldon de Beolie in agro Wigorn., 5 July 1679,’ and also Sheldon’s autograph book-motto ‘In posterum.’

published against the papists this <month>, the month before and after, and pamphlets also against the presbyterians, without any prohibition. But not one Universitie man that I know off nor one bishop but<sup>1</sup> he of Lyncoln published anything against the papists or presbyterians.

Given to brutish pleasures<sup>2</sup>.

There came out (in Aug. as I conceive) a most pestilent pamphlet against the bishops in one sheet, printed 1679, intit. 'Omnia comesta a bello<sup>3</sup>, or an Answer out of the West to a Question out of the North.' It shews what revenew the bishops deanes ch<apters> and archdeacons have, what servants officers and others belong to them, what mony they yearly get and lay up to the hindrance of trade, and yet will not write against Popery or Presbytery. [Mr.<sup>4</sup> Massey told me this, quaere.] Not one bishop answered it, not one in the Universities (I am sure, not in Oxon) nor by any, onlie Roger l'estrang, in his book intit. 'The<sup>5</sup> free borne subject, or the English man's birth right.'

<sup>6</sup> note in Wood MS. F 4, p. 141. In Wood MS. F 29 A, fol. 355 b, is a longer version of this note, which has some further particulars. It begins:—'John Snell, the son of Andrew Snell and Margaret his wife (daughter of John Carnachan), was borne in the parish of Comonnell in Carrick in the shrieve-dome of Aire in Scotland; bred in the Universitie of Glasgow under the care of Mr. James Darumpley, professor of philosophie; came into England in the time of Oliver Cromwell in a verie meane condition; and in his journey through Lancashire, calling at the house of the lady Houghton at Walton neare Houghton tower (one of the daughters of Sir Roger Aston a Scotchman who was first King James his barber and afterwards Master of the Robes) told the person that came to the dore to give him an answer that he was 'a poore Scotchman and a scholar and hearing that a gude lady his country-woman lived there he took the boldness to make himself knowne to her and to crave some employment in her service,' etc. Whereupon after the lady had discoursed with him, she appointed him to wait upon her and to say prayers in the family. After he had continued there about an yeare, he upon the recommendations of the lady Calverley (daughter of the said lady Houghton) was taken into the service of Sir Orlando Bridgmain who having much chamber practice did write severall conveyances Ayre in Scotland, bred in the Universitie of Glasgow under the care of Mr. James Darumpley professor of philosophie, and became Mr. of Arts there (as his testimonie which I have seen—written some yeares after his creation<sup>1</sup>—‘sub sigillo Universitatis Glasgow, dat. 1662’—testifieth), afterwards (in the time of Oliver Cromwell) he came into England verie meane, and being recommended by the lady Calverley to Sir Orlando Bridgman, who had then much chamber-practice, did write severall conveyances for him. At the king’s restauration when Sir Orlando was made Lord Cheif Baron of the Exchequer, the said Snell was made the cryer of that court; in which office he continued after Sir Orlando was made Cheif Justice of the Common Pleas, and when he was made Lord Keeper, he was (at the instance of duke Lauderdale) employed to be the seal-bearer. Being thus esteemed, he was employed somtimes into Scotland for the duke of Monmouth, and bore the great seale while the earl of Shaftsbury was chancellour. He died in the house of Mr. Benjamin Cooper situat in Halywell in the suburbs of Oxon on, W., the sixt day of August 1679, aged 50 or therabouts, and was buried in Halywell chancell by his wive’s mother. <Arms:—> ‘gules a cross patonce or; impaling, blue a fess ermine between 3 half moons or.’ He married Joane<sup>2</sup>, daughter of Vincent Coventry, rector of Begbroke neare Woodstock in com. You must note that <John Lovelace> lord Lovelace brought Oats to the hors-race at Woodstock on Holyroode day<sup>5</sup>; and because he would have company come there to the enriching of the towne, caused <him> to preach on Sunday and Tuesday. This was partly to spite the Lord Treasurer<sup>6</sup> and the King for taking away his place of ranger. After the horse race was done, Oats sent word to the vice-chancellor that 'he would come and wait on him, not surprise him, for his degree.' But they denied him—that is, if he was Doctor of Divinity at Salamanca they would incorporate him. See G. 6. Hereupon he and the citizens say wee are papists.

told some tidings <of> a presbyterian plot before the counsell was committed first to a messinger. The character of th<is> informer differs not much from that of the others, but I do not hear that he hath either asked pension or pardon as yet. The stress of this information was upon the papers of one colonell Mansell<sup>1</sup> which being seised under pretext of searching for french goods (for a speciall warrant to search the house was denied him by the secretary, as not having made affidavit before the counsell of the business) do not prove the accusation. But he to excuse this says that two thirds of the papers that were seised, were suppressed and never brought in. Committed afterwards to Newgate. His patroness, Mrs. Sillier<sup>2</sup>, the midwife, sent after him.

1679, Tuesday, Oct. 21, the feast of the attilery men kept at Marchant Taylors' hall<sup>3</sup>—the duke of York invited. The Lord Mayor<sup>4</sup> and aldermen and company met him in the same manner they use to do the king, payd him the same respects (as going bare by his coach, and the like) though his Highness did all he could to hinder it. After the usuall healths of King and Queen, the Lord Mayor drank the duke's health to the earl of Ossory there present and 'confusion to all his enimies.' The duke drank the Lord Mayor's health and 'prosperity to the city.' This caused a generall shout, and when the cause of it was knowne in the streets, they followed the example, throwing up their hats and crying 'God bless his Highness.' But for all this there were severall malicious papers put up upon Draper's hall<sup>5</sup> dore, in which they threatned those that entertained the duke, calling them 'betrayers of the king and country and Protestant religion.' The Lord Mayor and severall of the cheif took occasion to assure the duke of their loyalty to the King and affection to his person and that 'they would spend their lives and fortunes to maintaine his right.' To which the duke replied that 'he would alwaies maintaine the lawes and libertie of the subject, but yet he would not be catechised by any.' It contains this direction by Aubrey 'For his ever honoured friend Mr. Anthony à Wood, from his affectionate servant, J. Aubrey'; and this note by Wood 'received 25 Apr. 1680, A. W.' Aubrey indicates that he had intended that on the title-page under the date 1680 should be added 'It was first printed 1662'; and writes this note:—'These considerations were first printed 1662 (about 300 (copies)), of which I had two or three. The impression all sold long since and this was reprinted from mine. It was printed first ἀνονυμῶς. I spake to W. Crooke to mention the first impression, but he forgat it.' In the text of the book it is said that in 1642 Hobbes wrote a little treatise demonstrating that the regal power and rights were inseparably annexed to the sovereignty, on which Aubrey has written this note 'Bishop (Roger) Manwaring of St. David's preacht this doctrine, for which he was committed prisoner to the Tower: then, thought Mr. H., 'tis time for me to shift for myself.'

June 20, Su., Mr. ⟨Francis⟩ Nicolson<sup>1</sup>, of Univ. Coll., preached at S. Marie's for Mr. ⟨Obadiah⟩ Walker, something in favour of popery. Wherupon Dr. ⟨John⟩ Wallis and Dr. ⟨Arthur⟩ Bury complayning to the vice-chancellor<sup>2</sup>, he was called into question, and the rather because he preached for Mr. Walker, and that he had been his pupill. Note that when this sermon was delivered Bury or Wallis or both sent letters therof to the Archbishop and Lord Chancellor of England and this sermon was publicly discoursed of as a dangerous matter on Midsummer day at the meeting of governours of Charter-house at a feast on Midsommer day. The next Sunday, June 27, ⟨Arthur⟩ Bury preached against it. But none of the University but those two doctors not<sup>3</sup> taking note of it, then the day following (June 28) they complained to ⟨the⟩ vice-chancellor and then a copie of it was desired. This Wallis as he hath been a trumpeter of rebellion in the beginning of the warr, now doth he strive to bring an odium on the University.

Sunday, 20 June, ⟨Francis⟩ Nicholson, M.A. of Univ. Coll., preached at S. Marie's for Mr. ⟨Obadiah⟩ Walker, the Head. His text thus—from Psalm 58 verse 11, 'Surely there is a reward for the righteous: verily there is a God that judgeth in the earth.' Wheron he had these passages—'In consideration of which temporall punishment, after repentance, Holy Church (where her discipline is in her hands) imposes pennances on penitents, not onlie to satisfie other Xtians, but also to appease the divine displeasure, and, through the all-sufficient satisfaction of Jesus, to escape sorer judgments by suffering imposed or voluntary severities.' Tuesday following Dr. ⟨John⟩ Wallis, or Thomas Gilbert (a notorious independent, his great acquaintance), sent notice of this sermon to the Archbishop and Lord Chancellor of England, who being at a feast at the Charterhouse on the Thursday following (Midsummer day) all their talke was about this popish sermon, in an aggravating way. The Sunday following (27 June), Dr. ⟨Arthur⟩ Bury, head of Exeter, who was to preach, did, by the instigation of Wallis, animadvert upon that sermon in his, though Bury himself had not been there when 'twas delivered, but at Kidlington<sup>4</sup>. these passages, but Wallis and Gilbert; they on the 28 day of June complaine to the vice-chancellor of divers peices of popery in it. The vice-chancellor therupon sent for Mr. Nicolson and desired a copie of his sermon, which he brought; referred to the professor and severall Drs. of Divinity, who told him he had preached false doctrine, and must recant; he proved not<sup>1</sup>, but they seemed to disprove it; he denies to recant, so therfore they returne his name to the bishops to stop his preferment.

In Doctors of Divinity their vespers following, Dr. ⟨John⟩ Wallis shewed himself very domineering and insulting against Dr. ⟨John⟩ Hammond, insomuch as<sup>2</sup> the new professor<sup>3</sup> was faine to bid him proceed to his argument. His spirit is so poore that it domineers in this juncture with the Presbyterians, in hopes to get a bishoprick.

Mr. Obadiah Walker at St. Marie's, Dr. John Wallis and Dr. Arthur Bury complained that there was popery in it.—June 30, W., Mr. Nicholson, by command from the vice-chancellor, appeared in the Apoditerium before 9 Doctors<sup>1</sup> (of which Dr. Wallis and Dr. Bury were two). To the said Mr. Nicholson it was then objected that in divers clauses of his sermon (the originall of which was before given to the vicechancellor by command) he had given just cause of offence, as tending to establish the popish doctrines of purgatory and penance as they are now established in the church of Rome. Whereupon the board, after great deliberation, and after discourse had with Mr. Nicholson to convince him of his erroneous tenetts and great indiscretion, did order and decree that the said Mr. Nicholson should upon the next Munday (i. e. M., 5 July), at one of the clock in the afternoone, before the heads of houses then to meet in the vestry of the Convocation, acknowledge that he had given just cause of offence, and his sorrow for it, according to a prescribed forme then to be delivered to him in writing: and Mr. vice-chancellor did command him to attend at the time and place aforesaid to make and subscribe such his acknowledgment accordingly.—July 5, Munday, Mr. Nicholson did attend Mr. vicechancellor at his lodgings in Queen's College; but by reason of the neare approach of the Act severall of the heads of houses not being at leisure to meet this day, Mr. vicechancellor did command the said Mr. Nicholson to appeare before the heads of houses in the vestry of the Convocation House on Wednesday 14 July at 1 in the afternoone.—July 14, W., the heads of houses met, viz. 7 doctors, both the proctors, and 3 masters (of which Mr. Walker of University College was one). At which meeting Mr. Nicholson appearing, Mr. vice-chancellor gave into the hands of Mr. Nicholson an acknowledgment written in paper to be read and subscribed by him before the board. Which acknowledgment Mr. Nicholson did then and there readily read and subscribe. The tenor wherof is as followeth:—

'Wheras I, Francis Nicholson, M. of A. of University College, did in a sermon lately preached by me at St. Marie's in Oxon give just cause of offence to severall persons then present, as in other passages of my sermon, so more especially in saying that "after repentance of actuall sin, there commonly remaines some temporall punishment; in consideration of which temporall punishment after repentance, Holy Church (where her discipline is in her hands) imposes penances on penitents, not onlie to satisfie other Christians but also to appease the divine displeasure," I doe hereby acknowledge my unfaigned greif for the same, and do here in the presence of this reverend assembly humbly and heartily crave pardon for this great indiscretion wherof I was then guilty. And I doe hereby declare that by "holy church" I did not meane the church of Rome nor any member therof; neither had I any thought to establish either the doctrine of purgatory or that of pennance as now corruptly taught and practiced in the church of Rome: neither of which doctrines do I believe to be true. Nor, lastly, had I any designe to publish any tenet contrary to the doctrine established in the church of England. And this my submission I humbly crave may be accepted.—Francis Nicolson, 14 July 1680.'

After the said Mr. Nicolson had read and subscribed the before-mentioned acknowledgment, Mr. vicechancellor did publicly admonish him to forbear spreading either in the Universitie or elsewhere any such like tenetts which might give just cause of offence for the future.]

Nov. 29, Munday, a convocation. Votes of mourning gownes not taken, quaere Mr. Allum. The vice-chancellor not acquainting the M(aste)rs with what was to pass beforehand, they resolve to denie all. (Allum) [A short<sup>3</sup> account of a difference arising on the 29th of November 1680 between Mr. vicechancellor<sup>4</sup> and the Masters in Convocation wearing mourning gownes.

The Masters, in Dr. Henry Clerke's vice-chancellorship<sup>5</sup>, complaining that the letters read to them in Convocation were usually (and with design, as they thought) so ambiguously worded and doubtfully expressed, that, having not the least time allowed them to weigh and consider of the matters therein contain'd, they having immediately upon the proposall of matters either to grant or deny them, they could not so easily sometimes distinguish the giving of terms from the dispensation of them<sup>6</sup> or whether a grace<sup>7</sup> included in the dispensation—after some bustle and noise, obtain'd at last that the heads and contents of all letters to be propos'd should in one or more papers be dispers'd among the Masters before the Convocation sate. Such custome continuing not long, and the same inconveniences as formerly following upon its omission, on the 29th of November 1680 those few Masters who met in Convocation being most of them acquainted with each other engaged themselves to deny all things<sup>8</sup>—unknown it was at first to Mr. vice-chancellor that they made such a resolution—which should be propos'd, till such time as this usage so soon laid down should be reviv'd. One of the Masters being ask'd to assent to the designe, notwithstanding the disswasions of the rest inform'd Mr. vice-chancellor therewith who said that if they proceeded, they would not wrong or injure him but those only who were concern'd in the letters. The first letter being propos'd, it was denied upon the proctors' scrutiny by the major votes. The second being also denied and the proctors going to scrutiny, Mr. vice-chancellor order'd them not to take the votes of them who appear'd there, contrary to the statute, in mourning gownes, he observing a considerable number of them to have such gowns on. Yet they for the most part take the votes of them who had those gowns on if they voted for the letter; but refused theirs, tho' in like incapacity and circumstances, who were against it.—Mr. vice-chancellor commanded one of the bedles to tell the number of them and afterwards to enquire of them their names—upon this some of them left the house—some whereof he sent for by the bedle to his lodging some time after and gave them pretty sharp checks, expressing great dissatisfaction that some denied to give in their names when he sent the bedle to them in the house.]

Dec. 11, S., at six at night I and severall of the fellowes went up to the Colledge Tower; and there wee saw a white list reaching from the bottom of the firmament in the west to the middle therof over our heads like a demi-rainbow—this is called a comet—or a shaft like a sword. Dec. 12<sup>1</sup>, Su., at 5 of the clock at night I saw it as <it> were come out of the earth in <the> west like a shaft, and the shaft grew higher by degrees: that night was extreame cold. Dec. 15, W., the star it self was seen about 5 at night, but being just up went downe againe; the shaft bigg<er> then <it> use<d> to be. Dec. 17, F., the starr visible at 5, deemed then to be an hour high, the shaft at the same hight, so that when the star is at its highest 'twill have a blazing tayle<sup>2</sup>. Note that frost hath continued a month this time, 18 Dec., S., Dec. 27, M., I saw it againe inter horas 7 et 8 in nocte, but obscured by clouds. Dec. 29, W., againe, removed n<orth> w<est> higher and so consequently the shaft not so long. Dec. 30, Th., againe, in the same place at 9 or 10 <o'clock>. 168<sup>o</sup><sub>f</sub>; Jan. 3, M., againe, no blazing tayle, but a tayle of the same hue or colour as the Via lactea. Jan. 4, T., again, n<orth> w<est>. Jan. 5, W., againe. Jan. 8, S., againe. Jan. 9, Su., againe; 10, 13, 14 (M., Th., F.). I saw it no more after (F.) the 14<th> day, for a week after being gloomy weather, it could not be seen. Yet then, following frost after, it could not be seen neither. 27 Jan., Th., 'twas seen by Mr. <Nathaniel> Wight n<orth> west<sup>3</sup>, being frosty and star light. Jan. 28, F., againe. Jan. 30, Su., againe; and so no more.

Jan. 18, T., Mr. <Andrew> Al<lum> told me that the citizens have taxed or sessed the privileged men of Oxon<sup>4</sup> towards the militia which trained when the Prince Elector was here. Dr. <James> Hyde, principal of Magd. hall, who lives in the towne, denies it and they seize on his goods.

Lord Norris<sup>5</sup>, leivtenant of the county, hath been hitherto a freind to the University about these matters and hath refused to give his hand to it, yet the deputy leivtenants, as Pudsey, . . . , have set their hands.

The city would also have a night watch of their owne, but this and the former the mayor (<John> Bowell) pretends that he will have nothing to do with it.

⟨Allum<sup>2</sup>⟩ On the 28th of this month died the very learn'd, most loyal, honest, good man, and incomparable throly accomplish'd Divine, Dor Allestry, Provost of Eaton, Canon of Ch. Ch. Oxon, and lately Regius Professor of Divinity in Oxford, who is much lamented.

A little before died at London Georg Wall M.A. student of Ch. Ch. (borne at Gloucester) of a fistula in ano. [Two<sup>3</sup> Georg Walls of Ch. Ch.]

30 Jan., Su., news came that Dr. ⟨Richard⟩ Allestrie died [in<sup>4</sup> Dr. ⟨Walter⟩ Needham's house at London] 28 Jan., Friday.

30 Jan., Su., Mr. ⟨Peter⟩ Birch of Ch. Ch., son to Col. ⟨Thomas⟩ Birch, preached the fast sermon at S. Marie's and swinged the phanaticques and presbyterians away. He is of the Birches of Birch in Lanc. His father sent him and his brother ⟨Andrew Birch⟩ to be bred here under Mr. ⟨William⟩ Ashton of Brasnose. They layd at ⟨John⟩ Fulks the apothecary, went without gownes, and because this preacher was not to take the oaths he had his bachelor of Arts degree given him. Since, he hath become a zealous man for the Church of England.

Feb. 1, T., sent a letter to Mr. Richard Baxter for matter about Mr. John Corbet and himselfe.

[Feb. 1<sup>2</sup>, T., there was a meeting of the delegates for the king’s reception, who referred the whole management of preachers before the king and parliament to a select sub-delegacy of 7. Which sub-delegacy ordered that ‘all such extraordinary courses of preaching to be by them appointed either before the king or his parliament should pass for the next course or turne to be preached by them, or any of them, before the University.’

Wherupon the vice-chancellor being amazed at it, bid the company, those that were for Sir Leoline Jenkyns goe on one side, and those for another on the other. Wherupon all went on one side, and left <Ames> Crimes, <Samuel> Adams, <Thomas> New<sup>1</sup>, and others of Exeter on the other; but they being ashamed went there too. This is entred elsewhere.

The same day, the duke of Buckingham <George Villiers> came into Oxford over Magdalen bridge at 7 at night, conducted by the citizens by torch-light from St. Clement's to his lodging, to help forward the election for Whorwood and Wright. He layd at alderman <William> Wright's in Candicth.

Feb. 4, Friday, election of burgesses for the citie. Brome Whorwood, William Wright, and Georg Pudsey stood. This last lost it by almost an 100 votes. This is the third time he hath been canvassed within these two yeares. <He> lost it by the means of Bucks<sup>2</sup> and Lovelace<sup>3</sup>, who were appointed by the Cabalists to promote this election here, that is, rebellion and discord which the last parliament hath done among the commons and vulgar. Some of the citizens, though bred among scholars, cried 'No Universities! no scholars! no clergy! no bishops!'

Feb. 6, Su., news came that Mr. <Richard> Annesley, somtimes of Magd. Coll., son of privi seale, was made dean of Exeter in the place of Dr. <George> Cary, lately deceased. He hath been prebendary of Westminster these 3 or 4 yeares<sup>4</sup>. Admitted Bac. Theol. 23 June 1677: Fasti 1680.

In the afternoone, went with his retinew and the bishop to the Apoditerium and there put on scarlet with 3 of his retinue and went thence with 2 or 3 bedells before them and the professors of Law and Physic into the Theater where comming neare the vice-chancellor's seat the Law Professor presented him Dr. of Law and seated him in a place of state provided for him on the right hand. Which done, one of his retinue was admitted Dr. of Law by the said professor, and two more Drs. of Physick by the professor of that faculty. Afterwards the Orator made a speech: and then he departed. At which time, as also when he came in, the organ played. Afterwards he went and veiued the library and so to other colleges and then home to Ch. entit. 'A<sup>1</sup> letter from a student of Oxford, etc. '; see in what I have said in White Kennet <in the Ath.> It came to Oxford against the parliament was to sit. It gave great offence to the factious party of the House of Commons who would have endeavour'd to find out the author to have him punished, had not they been dissolved. The pamphlet by some passages<sup>2</sup> therein shews him not to be a scholar of Oxon as in p. 3, 5. Yet John Trenchard, formerly of New Coll., then a burgess for Taunton, did publickly say that 'by severall passages therein it did appeare to be written by a scholar' (of Oxford). Some of the House desired the vice-chancellor to make enquiry after the author; and so he would, but the parliament was suddenly dissolved.

Mar. 21, M., parliament sate<sup>3</sup>. W<hite> Kennet's book came out. Kennet not knowne to <be> the authour, but there was great search after the authour; and the parliament would have done somewhat had they not been dissolved. <John> Trenchard, of New Coll. formerly, active in it.

[Anno 1680 ⟨i. e. 1680<sup>q</sup>⟩ Jan. 24, Munday, was a meeting of heads of houses in the Apoditerium to consult about preachers before the king at Ch. Ch. and before the parliament at St Marie's. They ordered that the turns should be altered, that able and grave men should preach, especially such that should not give offence by flashy notions and expressions or make reflections as the yong masters do.

27 Jan., Th., a Convocation at one in the afternoon, wherin the king's letters were read, signifying that he had ordered his parliament to sit at Oxon, M., 21 March; that he would have Ch. Ch., Corp. Xti, and Merton Coll. for the use of him and his court; other colleges for his privie counsell ⟨and⟩ parliament men. And that there might be full roome made, he commands that the junior scholars depart to their homes and that the time of absence go for their degrees, as if present.

[Feb. 3, Th.; Sir Liolin Jenkyns and Dr. Charls Perot ⟨were⟩ elected burgesses for the Universitie, in a Convocation held at nine in the morning; so that though no body stood but those two, yet Mr. Ames Crimes fellow of Exeter Coll. (a hot headed person) called for a pole ('ad capitationem'). Wherupon the vice-chancellor beinge amazed at it, bid those of the company that were for Sir L⟨eoline⟩ Jenkyns go on one side and those for any other, on the other side. Wherupon all went on one side and left Crimes with ⟨Samuel⟩ Adams, ⟨Thomas⟩ New, and others of Exeter of his gang on the other; but they being ashamed, went there too.—The same day the duke of Buckingham ⟨George Villiers⟩ came into Oxon over Magdalen bridge about seven of the clock at night; and was conducted by torch-light by certaine citizens from S. Clement's up the street to Allhallowes, and thence<sup>2</sup> to Canditch<sup>3</sup> to the house of alderman ⟨William⟩ Wright, where he lodged. All the way he passed, those that favoured him cried 'a Whorwood! a Whorwood!'; which he also answered with the waving his hat over his head. Yet the greatest noise there was 'a Pudsey! a Pudsey!'—You must note that he<sup>1</sup>, the lord Lovelace<sup>2</sup>, and other grandees of the discontented faction came purposely to the towne to have Brome Whorwood and alderman William Wright (two clownish and ill natured persons) chose againe for the ensuing parliament.

Feb. 4, Friday, day of election for the burgesses of the citie. The two old ones stood, viz. Brome Whorwood and alderman <William> Wright; and against them Georg Pudsey of Ellesfeld, esq. The two former were commended to the commons by the duke of Bucks in a set speech, who never yet failed of one for that purpose; so that by his meanes and the lord Lovelace and other discontented grandees of that faction, Pudsey lost it by almost an hundred votes. He would have carried it had not most of his men been false to him, especially such whome certaine scholars had engaged to vote for him—I meane such that worked for scholars, or such to whome scholars were good customers. This is the third time he hath lost it in two yeares' space, purposely by the meanes of <the duke of> B<ucks> and <lord> L<ovelace> who goe from place to place to get in their freinds to be burgesses, purposely to cross the king, raise rebellion and discord in the nation, and to vilifie or make cheap the king, court, and clergy in the minds of the commons. Some of the ruder citizens, though bred among scholars, cried out in the time of pol<1>ing (being heated with strong drink) 'No Universities! no scholars! no clergy! no bishops!' which being heard by the grandees, were not in the least reprehended by them<sup>3</sup>.

Of the King's comming to Oxon.

Munday, 14 March 168 $\frac{0}{1}$ .—About one or two of the clock in the afternoone, upon notice of the king's approach, went from the Cross Inn and other inns adjoyning, James (Bertie) lord Norrys, Lord Lieutenant, with the loyall gentry of the countie, to meet his majestie comming from Windsore (cross the road) by Tetsworth to meet the queen, who came straight from London. He (the said lord Norrys) had two or three horses of state lead before him, richly adorned. After him went Sir Thomas Spencer, Bt, in the head of one of the militia troopes of the county. And after him captain Henry Bertie

(the Lord Lieutenant's brother) in the head of another troop, with two horses of state in the like livery as those before; with trumpets sounding, having the lord's livery on, and flaggs to their trumpets containing the lord's armes and quarterings.—Between two and three of the clock proceeded by twoes on foot from the Guild hall downe the High Street about eighteen constables of the citie and suburbs of Oxon with their painted and gilt staves. Next to them were the four sergeants at mace, two on foot and two on horseback, with their silver staves erected. Then the macebearer, and townclerke (John Paynton) with a chaine of silver gilt about his neck (a Royallist this day and when the times serve a Cromwellian). After these rode the loyall mayor, John Bowell esq., in his scarlet gowne, and a livery on one side walking by his horse, and on the other the recorder on horsback in his black gowne. After them the aldermen, thirteen, baylives, and such that had been baylives, to the number of about twenty-four, all in scarlet gownes, fac'd with furr, and each person with a livery servant by his side, to lead their horses in case they should strike out and disturb the formality. After these rode, by twoes also, the rest of the house and common councill (about sixty in number) in their blak gownes, fac'd with furr. All which being come to the East gate made a stop.—Soon after the king approaching within the gate, the mayor, recorder, and some of the scarleteers alighted, while the rest put them selves out to march before the king. The coach being by the king commanded to stand, the mayor and recorder<sup>1</sup> knelt downe on a mat by the coach side, who latter of which (being the city mouth) verie smoothly spake an English speech. Which being concluded, the mayor surrendred up the gestamen of his authority. Which being graciously returned (and therupon a rich pair of gloves was delivered to his majestie and another to the queen) they mounted and marched bare-headed the same way they went, not in like order as they went downe, but the black first, then the scarleters next, and just before the king's coach the mayor with the mace on his shoulder, respectively put theron by the mace-bearer. Behind their majesties' coach marched the life guard and after them other coaches of his majestie's retinew. Then went the Lord Lieutenant<sup>2</sup>, High Sheriff<sup>3</sup>, gentry<sup>4</sup> of the county, and their liveries; amonge whome was one of the knights of the shire calld Sir Philipp Harcourt, who though of most antient and noble extract and of a generous<sup>1</sup> and sweet nature, yet fame tells us that he is tinged with presbyterian leaven<sup>2</sup>, but whether hee'l appeare so in the parliament house, wee cannot yet tell. And lastly went the county troopes, buff-coated and well horsed.—In this order they passed to Quatervoyes (the market place) and thence downe the South Street to Christ Church, where their majesties intend to lodge during their abode in this place.—But that which is most to be noted is that all the way the king passed were such shoutings, acclamations, and ringing of bells, made by loyall hearts and smart lads of the layetie of Oxon, that the aire was so much peirced that the clouds seemed to divide. The generall cry was 'Long live King Charles,' and many drawing up to the very coach window cryed 'Let the king live, and the devill hang up all roundheads:' at which his majestie smiled and seemed well pleased.—The throng and violence of people to express their affections were such that the coach was scarce able to pass. The youths were all on fire, and when love and joy are mixed, cannot but follow rudeness and boysterousness. Their hats did continually fly, and seriouslie had you been there, you would have thought that they would have thrown away their verie heads and leggs. Here was an arme for joy flung out of joynt and there a legge displaced, but by what art they can find their way back let the R. S.<sup>3</sup> tell you.—['Twas<sup>4</sup> observed by some of our curiosi that as the king passed westward up the High Street, the small raine that then fell which was driven by the west wind, was returned back all the way in that street at least a man's length by the verie strength of voices and hummings. This perhaps might be thought incredible, but I'le assure you, I being then in a stationer's shop did partly observe it in myselfe, and had I not been so much diverted by the zealous rage of young blood, I might have given it in upon mine oath.]—At the king's comming into the most spatious quadrangle of Christ Church, what by the shouts and the melodious ringing of the ten statelie bells there, the colledge sounded and the buildings did learne from its scolars to eccho forth his majestie's welcome. You might have heard it ring againe and againe:—'Welcome! welcome!! thrice welcome!!! Charles the great!'

After nine at night were bonfiers made in severall streets, wherin were onlie wanting rumps and cropt eares to make the flame burne merily;

and at some, were tables of refection erected by our bonny youths, who being e'ne mad with joy, forced all that passed by to carouse on their knees a health to their beloved Charles.—So without preface or ceremony let it be spoken, the genius of this place by Caesar's approach is quite altered: the severest muses smoothe their brow and all the graces begin to smile; not a frowne or ill natured look to be seen but candid aspects in every phismony<sup>1</sup>; our senses are alleviated and nothing is wanting.

March 15, T., about eleven of the clock in the morning, went from S. Marie's church to the king's apartment in Ch. Ch., the vergerer, yeomen- and squire-beadles, with their silver and silver-gilt staves erected; after them followed the vice-chancellour, who is deputy to the illustrious prince, James <Butler> duke of Ormond, chancellour of our Universitie. After him followed by twoes about fortie Doctors in their scarlet habits and velvet caps (among whom was the honorable Sir Leolin Jenkins, principall secretary of state) and after them the Proctors, with their liveries behind them. All these, with some Masters of Art, being admitted into his majestie's presence-chamber, the public oratour welcomd him in the name of the Universitie with a Latin speech. That done, he directed himself to the queen and entertained her with one in English.

William Wiat, Orator of the University, his speech to the Queen at Ch. Ch., T., 15 March 1681.

' The transcendency of birth and the highest fortune, in conjunction with vertues superior and more radiant than them, be subjects which usually deterr the pretenders to oratory and force them perhaps by the easier methods to fly to silence as the interpreter of their admiration. Yet our more serious study shall venter to break thorough all those amazing obstacles and our devotion be vocal, though the object to which it's directed transcend our noblest faculties. For since heaven is pleased with addresses from those by whom it's impossible the excellency of it should be comprehended and commands us to adore what wee must not presume to interpret, your majestie, who, by such an innumerable traine of splendid demonstrations of your highest vertue, seem to be even now above a raigne on earth, and to convers with the blessed, may perhaps pittie the frailty of adoring mortalls, but cannot but be pleased with the sincerity of the adoration prostrate then before your feete, with all possible testimony of a perfect obedience and lowest humility, and by the approaches to so glorious and powerfull a light seen already inspired and illuminated, which must necessarily happen to all those that make application to so divine a goodness and without any more miracle then considering that the nature of good is diffusiveness and that it is like light communicable. To be in the nearest relation to two monarchs is inimitably great and indeed nothing can be greater but the endeavouring after a title to heaven. This you must seem to the most uncharitable to have made sure unto your blessed selfe, amidst the larg empire of beauty and majestie, nature and grandure in which you are equally soveraigne, by purchasing a solid eternitie have collaterally purchased all that the bounty of fame can bestow. Thus secured by a double mortality your sacred majestie lives the glory now and will hereafter the wonder of the world, the expectation of the first and the joy of the future; but now out of an innate kindness to our owne felicity wee will onlie seem injurious in this one particular to what may advance your majestie's glories, that is, by imploring a long procrastination in the future triumphs that you may to a satietie of dayes continue to adorne the crowne you weare till you receive that which is inaccessible, and that the constant tenor of your life by which you bless the world be as free from all tumults, stormes, and tempests as the heaven from which you derive your originall and to which you will triumphantly returne. May the sun constantly return upon your person with an unsullied and defacate ray and let no clouds occasioned by envy or malice ever corrupt the purity of its emanations. May every light be like your sacred selfe, innoxious and alwayes dispersing benigne influences, and may all addresses and applications to your majestie be as sincere as this of ours, where the humble approachers, whatsoever other arts or sciences they may be converst in, are perfectly strangers to those too much practised of flattery and dissimulation.'

Their majesties were most graciouslie pleased to admit all the company to the kissing of their hands. That also done, the vicechancellor presented to the king a larg Oxford bible, and to the queen the cuts belonging to the History and Antiquities of the University of Oxon, both richlie bound and gilt.—This was all they did, because his majestie had prohibited, about a month before, any public reception to be made for him, as formerlie was used to be; and the reason was, because there would be a great paucity of academians in the University, being about that time commanded to retreat, as indeed there is at this present. However though they were incapacitated, for that reason, of shewing their affection, yet are they not wanting to pray daylie in their public chappells and privat oratories for his majestie and for a blessed union and accomdation between him and his honorable houses of parliament.—In the afternoon between two and three the king went incognito to the Schooles in the Lord Chamberlaine's coach, accompanied by the duke of Albemarle (Christopher Monck), Grafton<sup>1</sup> and Lord Chamberlayne<sup>2</sup>, where being received onlie by the vicechancellour, bishop (Dr. John Fell), and Sir Leolin Jenkyns, all the dores were immediatly shut to keep out the company, and going straightway to the Divinity Schoole spent some time in viewing the roofe therof, so much admired by forreigners for its great varietie of exquisit sculpture. Thence through a posterne he went into the Convocation house, wherein the honorable house of Commons is to sit. Thence through the Apoditerium to the Theater, where he spent some time in veiwing the fabric and painting of the roof. Afterward he surveyed the places of imprimerie and all conveniences belonging therunto. Then he went to the top and viewed the north suburb; comming downe he was pleased to spend some time in viewing the Marmora Oxoniensia on the walls of the Theater yard. And so going through the Proscholium in the Schoole-quadrangle, beheld on the top of the tower therof the exact effigies of his grandfather, that blessed peacemaker and the mirrour of the Christian world for his profound learning, the statue also of Alma Mater Academiae, and that of Fame, sounding out the worth of king James to the world. Thence he went up to the house of Lords and other Schooles which are appointed for committees. Then he went downe, and ascended our Vatican, where he was entertained with the rarities of the place as with books of all sorts, with manuscripts containing curious and antique limning &c. Thence into the most spacious gallerie adjoyning where he beheld the pictures of the founders of the colleges, besides many others that hang there; also medalls and coynes of all sorts and metals. Thence into the Anatomy Schoole, where many incomparable curiosities he viewed. All which giving him great content, he receeded to Christ Church at five of the clock, and so to his usuall recreations of walking in the pleasant ambulatories adjoyning. After his returne he was pleased to conferr the honor of knighthood upon the loyall and generous Georg Pudsey of Ellesfeild esq, deputy lieutenant of this countie and one of the captaines of the militia companies. This is the person who for these three last elections of our citie burgesses hath been by the prevalency of the faction and the discontented grandees that head it (with shame be it spoken) put aside from being chosen a member of the honorable house of Commons.

March 16, W., this day his majestie was pleased to conferre the honour of knighthood on Richard Croke esq, recorder of the citie of Oxon, serjeant at law, and lately one of the members of the long parliament (for the said citie) dissolved two yeares agoe.

March 17, Th., early in the morning his majestie left this place and went to Burford, fourteen miles distant, where he intends to dine, and after dinner to see the hors-race on the larg plaine adjoyning, where will meet him all the loyall gentry far and neare.—Towards the evening hee'l goe to Cornbury (which is the middway between Burford and Oxon) where he will sup and lodge in the house of (Henry Hyde) the earl of Clarendon [and <sup>1</sup> next day betimes will be in Oxford]. He <sup>2</sup> was at some distance from the towne <sup>3</sup> received by the two baylives with their maces and others of that corporation, who presented him a rich saddle (more <sup>4</sup> worth as our citizens' gift <sup>5</sup>) and then they accompanied him to Sir John Lenthall's house, where taking a little repast he went to the hors-race on the plaines adjoining, where met him more nobility and gentry than at any time on Newmarket-heath.

You are to note that wheras in the public coffey letter which within these few dayes came into these parts, is mention made that the mayor of this citie should send word to the king, that the innholders therof were verie unwilling and absolutely refused to quarter his majestie's horse- and foot-guards within the citie, this is therefore to assure you that there is no such matter, but that the horse which are upon service quarter in the inns in the heart of the citie, and the foot-guards in the out-parishes.

You are likewise to understand, that wheras in the said letter that came to us, W., 16 March, there is some account of a report at London, as if some of the building that was set apart for the use of the house of Commons was lately fallen downe, this is also to certify you that there is no such matter, onlie that that which fell <sup>6</sup> was some part of the vaulting built half an yeare since under that magnificent structure <sup>7</sup> (not yet finished), distant at least thirty foot from the house of Commons, to receive Tredeskyn's rarities given to the Universitie by that eminent virtuoso Elias Ashmole esq.

I must also tell you that the vicechancellor and clerks of the market have stated <sup>8</sup> (and will twice a weeke) all vendibles in Oxford market, and will take order that all edibles for man and horse shall not exceed the usuall price.

March 19, S., was a pamphlet <sup>9</sup> dispersed intit. 'A letter from a student in Oxon to a freind in the country concerning the approaching parliament,' &c, which hath occasioned some hot discourses here and severe and threatning reflections of some in power against the Universitie by reason therof; but upon rationall and warrant-able grounds it is concluded by the most discerning and intelligent that it was wrot by a malicious adversary purposely to cast an odium on the Universitie to interest and exasperate the spirits of men (otherwise well disposed and affected) against her, that it was not wrot by any Universitie pen, as by sevrall instances it may appeare: vide: I have it with notes in the margin.

Dr. ⟨William⟩ Jane ⟨preached⟩ at St Marie's in the morning and Mr. ⟨Thomas⟩ Wills <sup>2</sup> of Trinity in the afternoon: the latter exceedingly liked by the house of Commons. The same day Dr. ⟨Robert⟩ Frampton was consecrated bishop of Gloucester—vide Almanac <sup>3</sup>.—The same day in the afternoon the Lord Chamberlain <sup>4</sup> and Speaker <sup>5</sup> surveyed the Theater to have it made ready for the Commons on the next day or Tuesday at farthest. All the next morning the printers were removing their cases under the Theater to the Morall Philosophy Schoole.

March 28, Munday, the king having had notice how vigorously the parliament proceeded on Friday and Saturday <sup>6</sup> (directly opposit to what he desired in his speech) did about ten of the clock in the morning send for his robes and crowne privatly, the former they say in a sedan, the other under a cloake.—Half an hour after, sending for the Speaker and Commons dissolved (without ceremony of attendance, as heralds, &c.) the parliament, to the amazement of all.—In the afternoon at one of the clock the king went away and caused the post not to goe away till 6 at night. He went to Windsore that evening and the next moving to London. Many of the nobility forthwith followed, but some that lived at a distance and had sent away their horses tarried here four dayes or more.

March 29, T., the queen with her retinew departed at four in the morning.

On the other side we have pamphlets such as Wood 657 (50) 'Vox populi, vox Dei, or England's general lamentations for the dissolution of the parliament,' 1681.

<sup>3</sup> from Wood MS. F 22 fol. 159; found also (not in Wood's hand) in Wood MS. D 19 (2). A fuller copy is found in print in Wood 416 no. 47. Wood 416 no. 48 is an answer to them, entitled 'The tune to the Devonshire cant,' beginning by stating that these '500 kings' were the hope of well-being for the three kingdoms.

[On<sup>1</sup> the dissolution of the Parliament at Oxon March the 28th 1681.

- 1 An Atheist now must a monster be
Of a strange gigantick birth;
His omnipotence does let all men see
That our king's a God upon earth.
- 2 'Fiat,' says he, by proclamation
And the parliament's creat'd.
He repents of his work; then dissolution
Makes all annihilat'd.
- 3 We schollars were expell'd awhile
To let the senatours in
But they behaved themselves so ill
That we returned agen.
- 4 And wonder'd to see our geometry schoole
All round about beseated
Tho there is no need of an Euclid's rule
To demonstrate them all defeated.
- 5 The Commons yn voteing problems would
In riddles so involve
That what the peers scarce understood
The king was forced to solve.
- 6 The commons for a good omen chose
An old consulting station
Being glad to dispossess their foes
Of the House of Convocation.
- 7 So statesmen like poor schollers be;
For near the usual place
They stood, we know, for a great degree
But the king denied their grace.
- 8 Tho sure he must his reason give
And charge you of some crime
Or else by course they'le have reprieve
For this is the third time.

<sup>1</sup> in Wood MS. F 22 fol. 77, 78; the handwriting, I think, is that of Andrew Allam. Wood 276 A no. CCCCCXXIV is a ballad 'To Mr. E. L., on his majestie's dissolving the late parliament at Oxford, March 28, 1681,' which Wood notes to have come out 'in the beginning of April 1681; White Kennet, a batler of S. Edmund Hall of 3 years standing, the authour.' Wood 276 A no. CCCCCXXV is a 'Dialogue between the two last parliaments at their late interview,' Lond. 1681, three columns of verses: Wood notes that the 'first part' i.e. column, 'was published in the middle of March 1681, the rest following in the beginning of April 1681.'—It may be noted here that, beginning at no. CCCCCXLIV, Woods 276 A contains many of the political verses, in single-sheet form, of the years 1681-1683.

- 9 It was because they did begin
 With insolent behaviour;
 And who should expiate their sin?
 The king himself no saviour.
- 10 Their faults grew to a bulk so high
 As mercy did forestall
 So Charter forfeited thereby
 They must like Adam fall.
- 11 It is resolved the Duke shall fail
 A freyter to inherit
 No right or desert shall prevail
 'Tis Popish to plead merit.
- 12 Let the king respect the duke his brother
 And keep affection still
 As duty to the Church his mother,
 In both they'l cross his will.
- 13 They would dissenters harmless save
 And penalty repeale
 As if they'd humour their's who crave
 A liberty to steale.
- 14 Thus he that does a pardon lack
 For treason damned to dy
 They'll tempt, poor man, to save his neck
 By adding perjury.
- 15 The nobles threw the impeachment out
 Because no doubt they saw
 'Twas best to bring his case about
 By Common not by Commons law.
- 16 But hence 'twas plaguily suspected
 Nay 'twas resolved by vote
 That the Lords are Popishly affected
 And stiffers of the plot.
- 17 The Commons courage can't endure
 To be affronted thus
 Soe for the future to be sure
 They'll be the Upper House.
- 18 But by such fev'rish malady
 Their strength so soon was spent.
 The punning wits noe doubt will cry
 Oh! weeked Parliament.]

[The allusions in stanzas 7, 8, are explained by the place of meeting (see supra p. 60, line 25) and the conditions of objecting to graces for degrees (see Clark's Reg. Univ. Oxon. II. i. 39).]

Mr. vice. threatn'd him to send him to the Castle if he dar'd to speake one word more in that business. Before the proctors went to scrutiny for his dispensation for not visiting etc., Lindsey desired that Mr. vice. would command all such Masters who were in the Convocation and had not votes either to goe out of the house or to separate themselves from the rest which had, which all they did.

Catalogues of Books, is a 'Catalogus Librorum' on sale by John Gellibrand of London, dated 1682, in which Wood has this note, 'given to me by . . . Crittenden (Henry Cruttenden), a printer, being then in the Castle Yard Oxon to see Stephen Colledge executed 31 Aug. 1681.' In Wood 427 it is noted that 'Dr. Thomas Marshall of Linc. Coll. was sent to visit him by the bishop of Oxford' (John Fell); that 'Dr. John Hall, Master of Pembroke Coll. and Dr. George Reynell of C. C. C. had several times prayed with him'; and that 'Thomas Chrosthwait of Queen's Coll. was with him on the gallows.' Dr. Bliss in 1848 printed Colledge's farewell letter to his children, without stating where the copy he printed from was reposed.

"To his loving and most dear children Stephen and Edith Colledge with my blessing to you.

My dear children

Stephen } and } Colledge
Edith }

The Lord God Almighty bless keep and preserve you both in your Souls and Bodies: and grant you his grace that ye may above all thing seek his honour and glory to your own eternal comfort both here and hereafter. Keep his laws; read his holy word, which is able with his grace to make you wise to salvation. Be sure to keep his holy Sabbaths to the end of your lives. Be constant in prayer as for your lives, and let not one day or night pass over your heads without that duty. Frequent sermons, where you find them best preached in all truth and sincerity. Take the sacrament of the Lord Jesus Christ his last supper: and be sure to keep faithfully what is there given you in charge: and lead your lives accordingly. Live honestly, soberly, quietly and justly, and if possibly peaceably, with all men. Abstain yourselves from all manner of evil. Quell all evil thoughts that shall attempt you, in the bud. Resist the Devill in his very first attempts, and he will fly from you. Be dutyfull to my dear mother. Be truly loving (for my sake) to each other and all your relations. I desire that Edith, Betty and yourself may live together untill such time your sister is grown up, and God shal otherwise dispose of you. Pray follow your private calling quietly. Have a care of what company you keep, and whom you ever trust: and leave the righting of my wrongs to God Almighty. And be sure you take my death patiently; as, I thank my God, I doe. My best duty to my mother, my love to my sister Ruth and her husband, and to every particular person you know my friends, as if I named them: with my dearest love, hearty affections, and blessings to you both, my most dearly beloved children, whos faces I must never more behold in earth; therefore heaven be the place where through the merits of Christ I hope to meet you all. My tears stop my pen: farewell, my dear dear dear children. I am

Your dying Father

Stephen Colledge.

Oct. 23, Sunday, between 10 and 11 in the morning Mr. ⟨William⟩ Cardinall hanged himself in his bedchamber on his dore, discovered by his maide after 12 of the clock. He had only his shirt and night cap on, and there he hung till between 7 and 8 at night; and then the coroner and jury, coming and seing him there, pronounced that he was not compos mentis. About 11 at night he was buried stark naked in the vestrie yard on the south side of the chancell<sup>4</sup>. [He<sup>5</sup> was troubled in conscience, for cheating the college of 3*li* or 4*li* when he was bursar the yeare before, and troubled for the warden's misusing him for another matter, as he thought.] When he was bursar last spring or deputy bursar, the warden sent a gardiner to him for money due to the gardener for doing work for the warden in his garden. Mr. Cardinall being not in a right humour, bid 'the warden be hang'd, he should have no money.' The gardener told the warden these words, the warden took affidavit of it, drew up a recantation, which being shewn the fellows, Cardinall at a meeting read it, but this stuck so close to him, that bringing a melancholy fit on him, he could never shake it off. In July or Aug. before, he threw himself into the water in Magd. walks to drowne himself but could not effect it.

Robert Hancock, fellow of Clare hall in Cambridge and rector of Northill in Bedfordshire, answer’d this book in another entitled ‘The loyaltie of Popish principles examined’ etc.]

Dec. 18, Su., another flood much larger than the former.

Dec. 18, Sunday, died Edward Turbervill<sup>2</sup> of the small pox, one of the King’s witnesses in the popish plot<sup>3</sup>.

(Allum) On the 18th died Mr. Francis Blake at his father’s at Cogs Oxfordshire of the small-pox.

Dec. 20, T., at 10 at night Mr. (William) Low of Great Milton, belonging to the Cursitor’s Office, was drowned comming over Cudesdon Mill from the . . .<sup>4</sup> house.

[Dec.<sup>5</sup> 21st 1681, Sir, This is only to let you know that on Thursday last being the 15th instant our Lord Lieutenant, James (Compton), earle of Northampton, died at his house of Castle-Ashby in Northamptonshire. The rest is my best wishes for your health, as I am, Sir, your humble servant, Raphe Sheldon.]

Dec. 24, S., paid goodwife Watson the laundress from July last to this time, 6s 6d.

Dec. 25, Su., news came in the letter that a Colledge of Physitians was settled in Scotland, and one Dr. . . . Burnet was made president, first cozen to Dr. Gilbert Burnet. Vide inter Doctores Med.

In a letter from Mr. R(alph) Sheldon at London 6 Jan. 1681 (i. e.  $\frac{1}{2}$ ) thus:— ‘I am advertised from Paris that Dr. Stephen Gough died upon our Christmas

E 1 has this note of an inscription ‘in Milton Church’—‘William Loe, esq., died Dec. 20, 1681; left behind him three children William, Thomas, and Elizabeth; and was interred in this grave with his wife.’

<sup>5</sup> an autograph letter of Ralph Sheldon’s inserted in the Almanac for Dec. Wood notes on it ‘Fasti 1642.’

Day last, which according to<sup>1</sup> the Gregorian accompt was the 5 Jan. in France. He died in the house of the Fathers of the Oratory (of which company he was one) in the street commonly called St. Honoré at Parys.' Fasti 1636.

Dec. 27, T., news came in the coffey letter that Mr. Nicholas Ondart, Latin Secretary to the King, was dead, and that John Cook who hath been Undersecretary to several secretaries since the King's restauration is to succede him<sup>2</sup>. Fasti 1642.

In latter end of this month of December I heard that Sir Thomas Overbury, lately of Borton-on-the-hill, died at . . . Fals, he lives at Adminton by Tredington. Quaere Antiq. Warw.

Merton College,

This College as I have said before, should according to the time of its endowment, crane the first place of all colleges in Oxford: But because most, & the chiefest of Historians have allowed it the 3d, I shall also do the like, knowing verie well that the custome for errors, yet have been by all received, must be continued at, lest the ye authority of those authors be im-pinged. The first foundation of it was at Meandon (now called Maldon) in Surrey; laid & appointed<sup>(n)</sup> there by Walter de Merton Clerk (sometime
Lord Chancellor of England & afterwards Bp of Rochester) A.D. 1264, for the maintenance of whome & scholars there in the number of 20 besides 3
